Apart from the search for gold, Balty was dull, uninteresting, even stupid. On the trail after a lead, he brightened up. All sense and keenness seemed poured through that channel. The rest were dry. Something led him unerringly to the place in the Flat where lay a "dollar prospect." Industry and sobriety sank their shaft foot after foot of "hard pan" and barren gravel. On the ledge, Industry and Sobriety found half a cent to the pan prospect, "fine flour gold." Fine flour gold will cover your pan's bottom with a "thousand colors"—so fine that glass is needed to reveal them; but in weight they are as the dust on the butterfly's wing.

There was Crane Flat. For years, the river and bank yielded richly; it had been overlooked. But Balty had ever kept an eye on it. A ragged scrawl on a certain live-oak informed the public that—

"We, the undersigned, claime this ground, and are going to work the same as sune as we have a chance.

BALTY, GOTHAM."

Such a notice was neither legal nor definite. It was not desired that it should be—old settlers like Balty and Gotham felt they had a certain feudal right to territory near which they had so long lived.

Miner's law required of them to state how many feet they claimed. That was what Balty and Gotham did not wish to do. Their claim was indefinite. It overshadowed the whole Flat. A stranger might come along and "jump" a portion; but, in so doing, he would incur a dangerous unpopularity with the whole community. Balty and Gotham constituted the whole community. Of the hundreds, yes, thousands, whose rockers crashed and grated the river pebbles in '50, from Red Mountain to Indian Bar, Balty and Gotham now alone remained.

Miner's law in '50 gave thirty feet front to the man. Miner's law in 1865 was whatever Balty and Gotham chose to make it. In 1850 it concerned thousands; in 1855, hundreds; in 1865, two—Balty and Gotham. Vox populi, etc.

Out of the tag-end of the Flat, out of a light, alluvial sand, mixed with irregularly shaped gulch bowlders, Balty panned a "two-bit prospect." Two sober, hard-working men living near by, whose lives were patterns of order and neatness; whose cabin was a marvel of man's housekeeping; whose bread was the lightest on the river, but who for years had never been able to strike anything better than a "two-dollar per day claim," (Balty, in scorn, called

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NEWTON, only Agent for selling the

SCIENTIFIC AND POPULAR MEDICAL WORKS

—ON—

MANHOOD, WOMANHOOD AND NERVOUS DISEASES,

PUBLISHED BY THE

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE,

No. 4 Bulfinch Street, Boston,

(Opposite Revere House.)

DR. W. H. PARKER, Assistant Physician.

Medical knowledge for everybody. 250,000 copies sold in two years.

A Book for every Man.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE, OR SELF-PRESERVATION. A Medical Treatise on the Cause and Cure of EXHAUSTED VITALITY, PREMATURE DECLINE IN MAN, NERVOUS AND PHYSICAL DEBILITY, HYPOCHONDRIA, and all other diseases arising from the EFFECTS OF YOUTH, OR THE INDISCRETIONS OR EXCESSES of mature years. This is indeed a book for every man. Price only $1.00. 285 pages, bound in cloth.

A Book For Every Woman,

Entitled SEXUAL PHYSIOLOGY OF WOMAN, AND HER DISEASES. A WOMAN TREATED OF PHYSIOLOGICALLY AND PATHOLOGICALLY, from INFANCY TO OLD AGE, with elegant ILLUSTRATIVE ENGRAVINGS. 350 pages, bound in beautiful French cloth. Price $2.00.

A Book for Everybody.

Flattered by the reception of, and great demand for, the above valuable and timely treatises, and also to meet a great need of the present age, the author has just published a new book, treating exclusively of NERVOUS AND MENTAL DISEASES. 150 pp. cloth. Price $1, or SENT FREE on receipt of $3 for the other two books, postpage paid.

These are, beyond all comparison, the most extraordinary works on Physiology ever published. There is nothing whatever that the MARRIED OR SINGLE, of EITHER SEX, can either require or wish to know, but what is fully explained, and many matters of the most important and interesting character are introduced to which no allusion even can be found in any other works in our language. All the NEW DISCOVERIES of the author, whose experience is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any man, are given in full. No person should be without these valuable books.

VALUABLE BOOKS.—We have received the valuable medical works published by the Peabody Medical Institute. These books are of actual merit, and should find a place in every intelligent family. They are not the cheap order of abominable trash, published by irresponsible parties, and purchased to gratify coarse tastes, but are written by a responsible professional gentleman of eminence, as a source of instruction on vital matters, concerning which lamentable ignorance exists. The important subjects presented are treated with delicacy, ability and care, and, as an appendix, many useful prescriptions for prevailing complaints are added.—Coos Republican, Lancaster, N. H.

"The author of these books is one of the most learned and popular physicians of the day, and is entitled to the gratitude of our race for these valuable productions. It seems to be his aim to induce men and women to avoid the cause of those diseases to which they are liable, and he tells them just how and when to do it."—Chronicle, Farmington, Maine, Sept. 7, 1869.

Either book sent by mail on receipt of price.

N. B. The author of the above-named medical works is the Chief Consulting Physician of the Peabody Medical Institute, and is so constantly employed in consultation with invalids from all parts of the country, that he has no time to attend to mere business details. Therefore all letters should be addressed to the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, or to Dr. W. H. PARKER, the Medical Assistant of the Author, and his Business Agent, who, as well as the Author himself, may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill, secrecy and experience. oct261yr

LIVER AND SPLEEN, ENLARGEMENT OR OBSTRUCTION OF INTESTINES, URINARY, UTERINE OR ABDOMINAL ORGANS, PURITY OR A WANT OF BLOOD, INTERMITTENT OR REMITTENT FEVERS, INFLAMMATION OF THE LIVER, DROPSY, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD, ABSCESSES, TUMORS, JAUNDICE, SCROFULA, DYSPEPSIA, AGUE AND FEVER, OR THEIR CONCOMITANTS.

Dr. WELLS, having become aware of the extraordinary medicinal properties of the South American Plant, called

JURUBEBA,

Sent a special commission to that country to procure it in its native purity, and having found its wonderful curative properties to even exceed the anticipations formed by its great reputation, has concluded to offer it to the public, and is happy to state that he has perfected arrangements for a regular monthly supply of this wonderful Plant. He has spent much time experimenting and investigating as to the most efficient preparation from its symptomatic properties, and has for most time used in his own practice with most happy results the effectual medicine now presented to the public as

Dr. Wells' Extract of Jurubeba,

and he confidently recommends it to every family as a household remedy which should be freely taken as a BLOOD PURIFIER in all derangements of the system, and to animate and fortify all weak and Lymphatic Temperaments. 4wap10

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

FRIDAY, APRIL 14, 1871.

THE POLITICAL SITUATION.—The death at Claremont of Hon. S. P. Thrasher, the Democratic and Labor Reform Senator elect from the Tenth District, makes the Senate stand five Republicans to five Democrats, with vacancies in two Districts. With such a political status it will probably be a difficult thing for the upper house to effect an organization. The vacancies in the Senate will be filled by the two Houses in joint convention. When there is no choice by the people in a Senatorial District the constitutional candidates for the Legislature are the highest two candidates voted for by the people. The same regulation prevails when a Senator elect dies. In Mr. Thrasher's District the next highest two candidates were Albina Hill of Croydon, the Republican nominee, and Alvah Smith of Lempster, also a thorough-going Republican, who got four votes. It is not probable now that the Democrats will get control of the Legislature on a joint ballot, but if they should succeed they would have to choose a Republican Senator in the Tenth District and would, of course, elect a Democrat in the Fifth District. In that case there would be a tie in the Senate.

Mr. Thrasher was a native of Cornish and fifty-five years old. He had resided in Claremont some three years. He was an industrious workingman, and we believe had not heretofore had much to do with politics. The contest in his District was very close and exciting, and only a few hours before his death the intelligence came to him that the official count of votes gave him the election. He expressed his deep regret that he could not live to serve his many political associates who had so faithfully supported him at the election.

THE LABOR REFORM ORGAN (Concord Monitor) of the 12th seemed quite pleased over the fact that the Democracy had one majority in the State Senate, thereby giving them the organization next June, prior to filling the vacancy in the 1st District. By the death of Hon. S. P. Thrasher, the Senate is tied, with two vacancies. The indications are that the Republican candidates will be chosen in both Districts, thus giving the control of the Senate to the Republicans by two majority. No business can be done until the Senate is organized, and the organization can only be effected by a compromise or by casting lots—unless another Senator dies or is absent.

THE ELECTIONS throughout New Jersey show astonishing Republican successes. Tuttle, Republican, was chosen Mayor of Paterson by 548 majority. Belleville, Clinton and Livingston have elected Republican officers.

Somerset county went Republican for the first time in 20 years. Little Falls, Wayne and Pompton have chosen Republican officers.

WATERVLIET, New York, has given the Republican ticket nearly 400 plurality.

JACKSONVILLE, Florida, has elected a Republican Mayor by 398 majority.

Franklin Rand of Exeter, being somewhat intoxicated, on the 11th took the train for Newmarket Junction, accompanied by his son, and from there the two started to walk to Greenland on the track of the Portsmouth and Concord Railroad. While crossing the long bridge across the Squamscott River, the elder Rand made a misstep, was precipitated into the water and was drowned. He was about fifty years of age.

Alonzo Berry of Dover met with a severe accident on the 8th while unloading stone, one of which, weighing near half a ton, fell upon one of his feet crushing it in a shocking manner.

DEMOCRATIC FRAUDS IN CONNECTICUT.

[From the Hartford Courant.]

At last we have full and clear accounts of one of the frauds which the Republicans believe have for several years been committed in New Haven. The Democratic counters figured and the Democratic moderator returned one hundred more votes for English in the Fourth Ward of New Haven than were actually cast! The facts can be established to the perfect satisfaction of any honest man. They are substantially as follows:

Whole number of votes registered	1,404
Number not voting	190
Number legally voting	1,214
Illegal votes cast	2
Total	1,216

Subtract nineteen votes for assessors put in the State box, and the total for Governor becomes 1,197. But the vote returned is:

For Jewell	579
For English	718
Fraudulent excess	100

One year ago the Republican canvass in this ward gave the Democrats about fifty majority, and the Democrats themselves claimed only about 60. But they made the returns give English about 250. The Republicans then believed that they were cheated, and they determined to keep closer watch the next time. The check list has been repeatedly and most carefully counted. It justifies the statement above given—1,404 voters registered, 190 not voting, 2 illegal votes. Total for governor, after subtracting the votes for assessors, 1,197. But by giving English 718 votes instead of 618, they made the total 1,297, which is 100 more than could possible have been given.

Both the Democratic and Republican registrars certified to the correctness of the list. There are very nearly the same number of votes given for the Republican candidate for representatives as for the Republican State ticket. But one hundred more votes are declared for the Democratic State ticket than for the Democratic representatives! Men who watched the polls all day say there could not possibly be any such discrepancy. There could not have been more than half a dozen difference. All persons familiar with elections know that when electors once come to the polls they almost without exception put a vote in every box.

The Fourth Ward is one in which Gov. English himself resides. His nephew, named English, and the well-known Democrat citizen, Sam Bishop, have been among the counters both years, and perhaps longer. The latter is reported as acknowledging that he "supposed there was a mistake!" When the matter began to be publicly discussed, young English, the nephew, urged a re-count, and was hastening to unseal the boxes, when he was warned not to touch the ballots. It is reported, however, the seals have actually been broken.

After the count had been finished on the evening of the election, Democratic tickets were found between the oil-cloth cover and the table. One theory as to the manner in which the fraud was committed is this; the Democratic counters proposed to count the "clean" (or unscratched) tickets by fifties. But after the bundles had been quite or nearly made up, they concluded to count by hundreds, but they did not double up all the packages! So that in two instances packs of fifty were counted as hundreds, making a clear gain of one hundred. In the meantime the Republican counters were kept busy counting Republican clean tickets or scattering votes.

How many ballots are now sealed up in that box? If there are but 1,197 for State officers then the return of 1,297 is plainly a mistake or a fraud. If 1,297 ballots for State officers, are found while only 1,197 were cast for Representatives, and the check list carefully counted over and over again shows that deducting the 19 blunders, only 1,197 could have been lawfully put in, then it is a clear case of ballot-box stuffing, a pure specimen of Tammany tactics. Let them take which horn of the dilemma they please, the detected error or fraud shows that Marshall Jewell was elected Governor by a clear majority.

FRANCE.

A Versailles dispatch, dated at midnight of the 12th, says that a general engagement between the government troops, under Marshal McMahon, and the insurgents, took place in front of Issy, Vanvres and Montrouge. The fighting was very severe, and after a desperate struggle the government troops advanced upon the trenches of the Nationals, where a terrific conflict ensued. After several hours' hard fighting, the government troops were repulsed with heavy loss, and retreated toward Issy, where they are now bivouacked in and around the park at that place. The enemy suffered heavy losses, but the number of killed and wounded upon either side is as yet unknown. Great preparations were being made for a revival of the contest at daybreak.

CONGRESS.

On the 13th, the House passed the bill to repeal the law requiring Congress to assemble on the 4th of March, by a vote of 99 to 98.

NO TRACES of Henry L. Joy have yet been found. The Maine Democrat states that therewere marks of violence on the neck of Mary McCarthy, found at Saco, and the supposition is that she was murdered. Joy has a wife and five children living at Biddeford.

The Mountain-Heart's Ease.

BY F. BRET HARTE.

By scattered rocks and turbid waters shifting,
By furrowed glade and dell,
To fervish men thy calm, sweet face uplifting,
Thou stayest them to tell.

The delicate thought, that cannot find expression,
For ruder speech too fair,
That, like thy petals, trembles in possession,
And scatters on the air.

The miner pauses in his rugged labor,
And leaning on his spade,
Laughingly calls upon his comrade neighbor
To see thy charms displayed;

But in his eyes a mist unwonted rises,
And for a moment clear,
Some sweet home-face his foolish thought surprises,
And passes in a tear,—

Some boyish vision of his eastern village,
Of uneventful toil,
Where golden harvest followed quiet tillage

One moment only, for the pick, uplifting,
Through root and thee cleaves,
And on the sandy current slowly drifting,
Are swept thy bruised leaves.

And yet, O poet, in thy homely fashion,
Thy work thou dost faithful,
For on the turbid current of his passion,
Thy face is shining still.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Veterinary Surgeons all over the country are recommending Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders for the following trouble in horses:—Loss of appetite, roughness of the hair, stoppage of bowels or water, thick water, coughs and colds, swelling of the glands, worms, horse sill, thick wind and heaves.

A friend of ours who is chief clerk in the Governmental Dispensary, says that no medicine chest is now complete without Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. We always supposed it was prescribed by law; if it is not, it ought to be, for certainly there is nothing in the whole materia medica of so much importance to the soldier and the sailor as Johnson's Anodyne Liniment.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Exhaustion.

Invalids, broken down in health and spirits by Chronic Dyspepsia, or suffering from the terrible exhaustion which follows the attacks of acute disease, the testimony of thousands who have been raised as by a miracle from a similar state of prostration by HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, is a sure guarantee that by the same means you too may be strengthened and restored. But to those who stand in peril of epidemics, to all who, by reason of exposure, privations and uncongenial climate or unhealthy pursuits, may at any moment be stricken down, this paragraph is most particularly and emphatically addressed. You, who, are thus situated, are proffered an absolute safeguard against the danger that menaces you. Tone and regulate the system with this harmless medicinal stimulant and alterative, and you will be forearmed against the maladies whose seeds float around you in the air unseen. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS are not only a standard tonic and alterative throughout the United States, but they are accredited by the certificates of the most distinguished citizens of the Union, to the people of all other lands. In Canada, Australia and the West Indies, they are gradually taking the place of all other stomachics, whether native or foreign, and as surely as truth is progressive and demonstration overthrows doubt, they will eventually supersede every other invigorant and restorative now employed in medicinal practice.

An Unpublished Item of Uncle Toby's.

THE ROMANCE OF LAFAYETTE ROAD. Adeter writer for the Boston Journal, writing from Rye Beach, says:—

Passing through the western portion of the town of Rye is the "Lafayette Road"—so called. In 1825, when General Lafayette made his celebrated visit to this country, it was decided that he would travel through this section of the State on his way to Portsmouth. The highway in this town, which he was to pass over, was then a poor and a narrow one. The news of the expected journey of the brave General through here was noised among the people, and they turned out in full numbers and toiled night and day until their road was widened and thoroughly improved. It is stated that the men who did the good work stood by the highway with their implements of labor in their hands when the distinguished party went past, and that Lafayette was greatly pleased with so significant an expression of their respect and esteem for him. To this day the road has borne the name of America's great Friend of the Revolution.

The name Lafayette was given to the road, we think, by Hon. Langley Boardman, then Chairman of the Board of Selectmen; and was, by his order, put on the Guide Board at this end of the road. A short piece only of the road, is in Rye;—and the story about the laborers working night and day, is all new and strange to us. We think it is mere romance, told to the writer by some one who supposed such a thing might happen, and who supposed also that there was no public burial ground in Rye, though there happens to be one.

[The above we found among Uncle Toby's papers. It would seem that he suppressed it from publication, for some reason, perhaps for inaccuracy—in which case will some of his and our old friends can inform us?—Eds. Chron.

SCHOONER SULIOTE, Capt. Dexter, with coal for E. F. Sise & Co., while coming up the river on Thursday in charge of a pilot, got on the rocks off Grogan's Point, (Badger's Island,) and was stove. As the flood tide made in the afternoon the schooner filled, and the water flowed over her deck, forward. She will have to be discharged where she is, and will probably not be worth a great deal when she comes off, as she is an old vessel.

How well we remember in days that are gone,
The feelings we felt as we saw the cork drawn—
The disgust—the recoil
From "Cod Liver Oil,"
Dealt out to poor souls in the days that are gone!

Of this to be ta'en?
It swallows as easy as sparkling Champagne—
Does "Marvins' Deodorized Oil."

Consumption.

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE,

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self assuring, self-convincing.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here, then comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophyllin Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsibly, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing without its previous torpidity. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Its future care is to cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gutturous phlegm it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten tissue that is occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the cases of some of our friends, is sinful. In others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Paculty of his own cure was in these modest words:

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption; confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. I attribute to them alone that I could feel then perfectly my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. "As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pains and night sweats all began to abate, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since."

I was weighed shortly after my recovery, "added the inventor," then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is one hundred and twenty-seven (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed unbroken health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., will be found at his office, corner of Fifth and Ann, 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily see whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the peculiar condition of a cure. Follow these directions, and Kind Nature will do the rest, excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken occasionally to keep the liver medicines need no other accompaniments than the ample instructions that accompany them. Firing create appetite. Of returning health hunger is the most welcome symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the inspiring of it once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweat is abated. In a short time both of those morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation; while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylacteric against consumption in any of its forms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

FIRST MORTGAGE

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX,

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established character equal to any mortgage issue dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market price—thus placing them on the same basis; for temporary or permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.

These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands, without competition, all the traffic of Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota—shortening the distance from St. Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 50 miles.

The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists that they will more than double within the ensuing year.

A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company obligating the latter to invest 50 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Road in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the Bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stock, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder, at his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the into est obligation.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 9½ per cent. interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all the Government may at present price, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.

All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. f24 WaS

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS,

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawsb16

THE CENTRAL RAILROAD CO.

OF IOWA,

have now built and equipped, in first-class manner, about

180 MILES OF RAILROAD,

which will complete their entire line, with the exception of laying the track on twenty-five miles, which is already graded. They will thus open

The First Through Line Across the State

from north to south, and, by making a slight detour at one point, they will give

DIRECT COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ST. LOUIS AND ST. PAUL.

This line of Railroad will have very special advantages for both local and through business, besides such superior railroad connections as will secure to it a large portion of the carrying trade of the Great Northwest. The

First Mortgage

which are issued upon this road, are limited in amount to $16,000 per mile (while many roads issue from $20,000 to $40,000,) and are offered at 90 and accrued interest, in currency. About two millions and a half of these bonds have already been disposed of, leaving but a small balance unsold, which are being rapidly taken.

The most experienced financiers agree that First Mortgage Bonds, to a limited amount, upon a finished railroad, which is well located for business, are one of the very safest forms of investment.

Parties desiring to secure a first-class security, based upon a railroad practically done, and in the hands of leading capitalists who have a large pecuniary and business interest in its success, will do well to apply at the office of the Company, or any of its advertised agents, for a pamphlet and map, showing the characteristics of the enterprise.

Holders of Government Bonds may exchange them for Central Iowas at a large present profit, beside a handsome increase of interest for a long term of years. Parties making such exchange will receive for each $1,000 Bond a $1,000 Central Iowa Bond, and the following difference in cash (less the accrued interest in currency upon the latter bond,) and in annual interest, this calculation being based upon market prices of December 27th, 1870:—

7-30 GOLD LOAN

—OF THE—

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are now at work in Minnesota and the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 200 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 140 miles of finished road, and the laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 560.

"GOOD OBJECTS OF INVESTMENT"—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend as a Profitable and perfectly Safe investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths' per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on GOOD LOTS OF LAND, in every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,000 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. Tax; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations, Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are very advantageous for payment for Lands, ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, safer for the people, which is more PROFITABLE OR SAFE.

EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by such "grub-and-whiskey diggings,") made him a liberal offer of four hundred feet of this ground. Balty never prospected another pan from that "gouge" in the bank. He was in want of ready cash. He was ever thus. He owned much and indefinite ground above. He accepted the offer. That "gouge" proved the only play-spot in the claim. Balty's golden instincts always told him not to prospect saleable ground too much. Leave well enough alone. When a prospect-hole develops two bits to the pan, leave it in statu quo. Leave it with the biggest berries on the top of the basket, as does the fruit-dealer.

Balty accumulated stores of whiskey in his cabin. He stayed by it and pursued an industrious life of inebriation. When Hawkins' Bar — once a lively camp of eight hundred souls—was reduced to its last house and its last residents; when the traveller, on some still, hot summer afternoon, passed through, hearing only the ceaseless roar of the river over the riffle, seeing only in imagination the life and excitement of '50, he might then be hailed from the last house by one of the last residents in tones of jovial inebriation. This would be Balty, arrived at the afternoon stage in his cups, when he was desirous of fraternizing with everybody. When the domestic whiskey was exhausted, when the Chinese in the vicinity would no longer hospitably offer their tea-bowls of "blandy," Balty, half-crazed with thirst for stimulant, would go home, discipline by degrees his stomach to its natural food, and restore, day by day, the steadiness of his nerves. In a week he was at work. In a few months, some overlooked spot in the flat or bar, some riffle, untouched for years, on which the fine "drift gold" had been steadily accumulating, "panned out" richly for Balty, and industry and sobriety stood by again and cursed.

Balty was the principal owner in the Gen. Scott, a river-bed claim. None save he and Gotham lived near, who, twelve years before, had seen that portion of the bed laid bare. Balty had long waited this chance to work this ground. Year after year had the Franklin Pierce claim, just below, put up their dam, "backing water" over the General Scott riffle. At last the Franklin Pierce was "worked out." The General Scott people could now "go in." They did so. Fifteen years before, the General Scott Company numbered a dozen persons. One by one they had dropped off. Hawkins' Bar dwindled from forty houses to twenty, from twenty to ten, from ten to five, from five to one. Only Balty and Gotham were left. They now constituted the General Scott Company.

At the end of the season, when the river rose, Balty stood upon its banks five thousand dollars the richer man. Phœnix and Pike, hearing of Balty's luck, again cursed the undisciplined brute which had borne him once and forever beyond the spell of Chinese Camp; Sonora anticipated. All were disappointed, Balty said he was going East. Everybody in secret laughed. As soon should Table Mountain slip its moorings and go to San Francisco. But Balty was in earnest. He bought a team of mustangs and a rickety buggy. Gotham opened his eyes. Balty had certain ideas as to the style in which Opulence should travel. He dashed around the country for a few days. Every groggery received a new financial impetus. People wondered how soon the team would run away and the buggy become a wreck. They wondered and waited in vain. Balty, after coruscating about Tuolumne for a fortnight, suddenly dashed off at a tangent—gold, mustangs, buggy and all. The establishment was never seen nor heard of after. Balty was invisible for two months and two weeks. At the end of that period, he dropped down again on "Hawkins' Bar, without a cent, and the two bottles tied together by a string—one full, the other empty. Receipt in full. He had been East. He had seen his native city.

It was a miracle that Balty—for eighteen years not able to get further than twenty miles from Hawkins, should weather all the temptations of San Francisco, and go on board the steamer, with a sound skin, and a comparatively sound purse, as he did. But the marvel of the miracle was, that he saved money to buy a return ticket. The miracle was at last partially explained. Balty, in San Francisco, had deposited sufficient to purchase that return ticket. Community had not given him enough credit for forethought. Balty knew he was to squander that five thousand East; so he planned not only to keep his communications open with California, but even with Hawkins. For all the way to Stockton, he had paid even the stage-fare, lodgings, and meals for the return trip, two months and two weeks in advance.

Beyond this mere fact that Balty had been to the States, the sparse population on the river were not much wiser. He rambled vaguely, at times, about sundry trips between New York and Philadelphia, and a "lady."

Gotham had intrusted him with messages for a mother and brother. Gotham regarded their proper delivery, being dependent on Balty, in the light of a forlorn hope. But years had passed since any one had gone from the river to the States. Balty might make good his promised connections. A few strange things had happened. Balty promised. Gotham received those promises in silence. He knew Balty could and would promise.

A few months after, Gotham received a letter from his brother. "I saw your friend Balty," it read, "he did not seem quite himself."

"It's easy enough to know how it was with Balty," said Gotham, speaking confidently on the subject. "He met Mac in Philadelphia. Mac, you know, was a "sport" here in '55. Mac says to himself: "Here—Balty will rid himself of his cash as fast as he can. If I don't get some of it, some one else will! And so I guess they worked Balty's lead out as quick as they could, and whizzed him back again to California."

Balty is now working in Doestick's Gulch. He has struck nothing for eighteen months. He knows he must soon. It has been ordained that he shall unearth a certain amount of virgin gold before he dies. Destiny sent him to the Tuolumne River for that purpose. It matters but little to him whether the "strikes" be near together or far apart. He was born to develop, not to retain wealth. He fully realizes this. It is that which impels him, doggedly, stolidly, to work on. Of what use for him to speculate, or enter upon any legitimate business? Once he struck out and invested in hogs; bought a mother with a large litter; he saw himself, in fancy, a hog-drover, and the whole surrounding country covered with his stock. His hogs brought only trouble; they broke into the miners' cabins, and ate their provisions; bread, baking in Dutch-ovens by out-door fires—the men being at work on their claims—was polluted by them; infuriated sufferers clamored at Balty's cabin for redress. His hogs disturbed his own rest during the frosty nights; they slept in a pile by his door; the inside of that pile was warm, the outside cold; the external pig wanted to be the internal, the internal wished to remain so. There was the long night steady squeal, grunt and struggle. Balty at last became disgusted with the pig business. He sold out; the money was immediately put in circulation; that was Balty's mission. He saw it clearly; he sees it now clearer than ever. He holds that it is not for him to accumulate wealth; he is merely a medium in the hands of ghostly gold seekers, to find gold, dig it, and keep up the metallic course of our currency.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS, For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON, After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

COMPOUND FLUID

Extract Catawba

GRAPE PILLS.

Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant to taste, children will not be deterred their being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

E

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND

FLUID EXT. SARSAPARILLA

Will radically exterminate from the system Scrofula, Syphilis, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Sore Legs, Sore Mouth, Sore Head, Bronchitis, Skin Diseases, Salt Rheum, Cankers, Runnings from the Ear, White Swellings, Tumors, Cancerous Affections, Nodes, Rickets, Glandular Swellings, Night Sweats, Rash, Tetter, Humors of all kinds, Chronic Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and all diseases that have been established in the system for years.

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than other preparations of Sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of Health and Purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pains and swelling of the bones, ulcerations of the throat and legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, and Beautifying the Complexion.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

CONCENTRATED

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

THE GREAT DIURETIC,

has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of Prostate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucus or Mucoid Discharges, and for Enfeebled and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, and Excesses and Imprudences in Life, such as Pain in the Back, Dimness of the Sight, Nervous Debility, Premature Decay, Loss of the Blood, etc., superseding Copaiba in Affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.

LADIES.

In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is unsquelled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU CURES DISEASES ARISING FROM IMPRUDENCES, HABITS OF DISSIPATION, &c., in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Preventing Gravel, Strictures of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED

ROSE WASH

cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Eruption, it speedily eradicates Pimples, Spots, Scorbutic Dryness, Inflammations of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Rash, Moth Patches, Dryness of Scalp or Skin, Frost Bites, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin, H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unbounded patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant formula these prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

D

Full and explicit directions accompany the medicines.

Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character furnished on application, with hundreds of thousands of living witnesses and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, some of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, etc. The proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

Henry T. Helmbold's Genuine Preparations.

Delivered to any address. Secure from observation. ESTABLISHED UPWARD OF TWENTY YEARS. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Address letters for information, in confidence to HENRY T. HELMBOLD, Druggist and Chemist. Only Depots; H. T. HELMBOLD'S Drug and Chemical Warehouse, No. 594 Broadway, New York, or to H. T. CULTIVATION OF ONIONS. — When grown as a field-crop, the land should be level, comparatively free from stones, or other obstructions, deep and mellow. The onion will grow best on such a soil when well drained, either naturally or by artificial means. Fall ploughing, throwing the land into twelve-feet ridges, is advisable. In the spring an application of twenty to thirty two-horse loads of well-rotted yard or hog-pen manure, are spread broadcast and ploughed under. The ground is then ploughed, harrowed and sometimes levelled with a wooden roller before sowing the seed. An application of two or three hundred pounds of ground bones to the acre will benefit the crop.

The seed is sown in drills, one foot apart either for field or garden, by a machine, using four pounds of fresh seed to an acre. To insure the seed being well covered, a light roller is drawn by hand over the ground, in the directions of the rows.

The early running of the hand hoes between the rows, is the only way to do in growing onions for profit. If the weeds gain headway, the cultivation will cost ten times what it otherwise would. As soon as the rows are designated by the young plants, keep the scuffle and onion-hoes active until the tops are large enough to give shade. Weeds appearing in the lines of the rows must be removed, before they attain any size, by hand—the boy carrying a knife with a curved point, made for the purpose. The seed sown early in April, the crop will be ready to harvest in the latter part of August or the beginning of September.

The onions are pulled out by hand, throwing three or four rows together, and leaving them in this way for a few weeks, until they are dry enough to be stored—when they are gathered, carted and placed on a barn floor or loft until marketed. If kept over winter, they should be protected by a covering of straw or salt hay, before cold weather sets in. Onions keep better with the tops left on, therefore they are not trimmed till a few days before sending them to market.—Quinn's Money in the Garden.

ASHES.—I have seen several articles in your paper written upon the use of wood ashes for manure, alone or mixed with other fertilizers, and I thought I would give my experience of ten years. I have used ashes quite freely for the past ten years, and find them to be the cheapest and most reliable manure I can purchase. What a great part of our land needs is potash, and this ashes supply to the soil. Wheat, grass and fruit trees seem to derive the greatest benefit from the use of ashes; but vegetables of all kinds thrive and are less liable to be troubled by worms than when other manures are used. I have used ashes around my fruit trees for eight years and have lost no trees by borers or root worms in that time. I remove the soil a few inches deep around the trunk and fill the space with ashes, and find that mice think more of their warm coats than of bark, and it is a rare thing for mice to knaw trees thus treated.

I have a young orchard that has never been plowed since the trees were set, twelve years ago. I have used ashes and yard manure mixed for a top dressing each fall, and my trees thrive nobly and the soil is light and in good condition.—Cor. Me. Farmer.

APPLE BARK-LOUSE.—The plan suggested for the extermination of the bark-louse infecting apple trees, is to syringe them with strong suds in which some carbolic acid has been put, using a small force pump for the purpose. It is a good plan. The application should be made the last of May or first of June, or as soon as minute white specks (the larva just hatched and escaped from under the scales, the scales being the reliss of the bodies of the gravid females covering and protecting their eggs) are seen moving about upon the tree. It is necessary to look sharply for them, or they may be mistaken for the points or glands of the bark. Strong tobacco wash is recommended by Dr. Fitch, but if not applied at the exact period to be effective, washes of whatever decoction have little value. We should think carbolic acid would form a valuable ingredient in such a wash, and from our experience in its use, believe the saturated solution of it, obtained from the druggists, should be used fully in accordance with the directions usually accompanying the packages sold.

—A good story is told of a late college president near Boston. On one occasion the students substituted a large dictionary in place of the Bible, at the morning devotions. On opening the book he at once saw the situation: but he said nothing, and proceed to the prayer, which he prolonged for an hour. The students got out of all patience, but they appreciated the sly remark of the venerable president on his retiring, that he "found all the words he needed in the volume they had placed on his desk."

—Nast is said to worry along on $15,000 a year.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

SCIENTIFIC AND POPULAR MEDICAL WORKS

—ON—

MANHOOD, WOMANHOOD AND NERVOUS DISEASES,

PUBLISHED BY THE

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE,

No. 4 Bulfinch Street, Boston,

(Opposite Revere House.)

DR. W. H. PARKER, Assistant Physician.

Medical knowledge for everybody. 250,000 copies sold in two years.

A Book for every Man.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE, OR SELF-PRESERVATION. A Medical Treatise on the Cause and Cure of EXHAUSTED VITALITY, PREMATURE DECLINE IN MAN, NERVOUS AND PHYSICAL DEBILITY, HYPOCHONDRIA, and all other diseases arising from the ERRORS OF YOUTH, OR THE INDISCRETIONS OF MATURE YEARS. This is indeed a book for every man. Price only $1.00. 285 pages, bound in cloth.

A Book For Every Woman,

Entitled SEXUAL PHYSIOLOGY OF WOMAN, AND HER DISEASES; or, WOMAN TREATED PHYSIOLOGICALLY AND PATHOLOGICALLY, from INFANCY TO OLD AGE, with elegant ILLUSTRATIVE ENGRAVINGS. 350 pages, bound in beautiful French cloth. Price $2.00.

A Book for Everybody.

Flattered by the reception of, and great demand for, the above valuable and timely treatises, and also to meet a great need of the present age, the author has just published a new book, treating exclusively of NERVOUS AND MENTAL DISEASES. 150 pp., cloth. Price $1, or SENT FREE on receipt of $3 for the other two books, postpage paid.

These are, beyond all comparison, the most extraordinary works on Physiology ever published There is nothing whatever that the MARRIED OR SINGLE, of EITHER SEX, can either require or wish to know, but what is fully explained, and many matters of the most important and interesting character are introduced to which no allusion even can be found in any other works in our language. All the NEW DISCOVERIES of the author, whose experience is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any man, are given in full. No person should be without these valuable books.

VALUABLE BOOKS.—We have received the valuable medical works published by the Peabody Medical Institute. These books are of actual merit, and should find a place in every intelligent family. They are not the cheap order of abominable trash, published by irresponsible parties, and purchased to gratify coarse tastes, but are written by a responsible professional gentleman of eminence, as a source of in-truction on vital matters, concerning which lamentable ignorance exists. The important subjects presented are treated with delicacy, ability and care, and, as an appendix, many useful prescriptions for prevailing complaints are added."—Coos Republican, Lancaster, N. H.

"The author of these books is one of the most learned and popular physicians of the day, and is entitled to the gratitude of our race for these invaluable productions. It seems to be his aim to induce men and women to avoid the cause of those diseases to which they are subject, and he tells them just how and when to do it."—Chronicle, Farmington, Maine, Sept. 7, 1869.

Either book sent by mail on receipt of price.

N. B. The Author of the above-named medical works is the Chief Consulting Physician of the Peabody Medical Institute, and is so constantly employed in consultation with invalids from all parts of the country, that he has no time to attend to mere business details. Therefore all letters should be addressed to the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, or to Dr. W. H. PARKER, the Medical Assistant of the Author, and his Business Agent, who, as well as the Author himself, may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill, secrecy and experience. oct261yr

JURUBEBA. WHAT IS IT?

IT IS A SURE AND Perfect Remedy for all diseases of the LIVER AND SPLEEN, ENLARGEMENT OR OBSTRUCTION OF INTESTINES, URINARY, UTERINE OR ABDOMINAL ORGANS, POVERTY OR A WANT OF BLOOD, INTERMITTENT OR REMITTENT FEVERS, INFLAMMATION OF THE LIVER, DROPSY, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD, ABSCESSES, TUMORS, JAUNDICE, SCROFULA, DYSPEPSIA, AGUE AND FEVER, OR THEIR CONCOMITANTS.

DR. WELLS, having become aware of the extraordinary medicinal properties of the South American Plant, called

JURUBEBA,

Sent a special commission to that country to procure it in its native purity, and having found its wonderful curative properties to even exceed the anticipations formed by its great reputation, has concluded to offer it to the public, and is happy to state that he has perfected arrangements for a regular monthly supply of this wonderful Plant. He has spent much time experimenting and investigating as to the most efficient preparation from it, for popular use, and has for some time used it in his own practice with happy results the effectual medicine now presented to the public as

"Dr. Wells' Extract of Jurubeba,

and he confidently recommends it to every family as a household remedy which should be freely taken as a BLOOD PURIFIER in all derangements of the system and to animate and fortify all weak and languishing Temperaments. 4wap10

SATURDAY, APRIL 15, 1871.

THE DRIFT OF THE TIDE.—We give below a table of Supervisors elelcted in New York this year, compared with the same counties last year. Each one represents a ward of a city or town, and they have generally been a sure indication of the political sentiment of the State. They give little comfort to the KuKlux:

	1871		1870
Counties	R	D	R	D
Alleghany	23	6	21	8
Cattaraugus	21	11	23	9
Chautauqua	20	6	18	8
Chemung	8	9	7	10
Chenango	15	6	16	5
Columbia	7	12	8	11
Cortland	12	3	11	4
Delaware	11	7	8	10
Dutchess	15	10	14	11
Erie	25	27	22	30
Fulton	4	6	4	6
Jefferson	18	7	14	11
Lewis	9	8	6	11
Livingston	9	8	8	9
Madison	11	3	9	5
Montgomery	2	8	4	6
Oneida	21	19	17	23
Ontario (in part)	7	3	6	4
Orange	8	13	6	15
Oswego	16	11	17	10
Otsego	15	9	12	12
Putnam	5	1	3	3

Westchester	13	11	13	11
Wyoming	11	5	8	8
Yates	8	1	7	2
32 counties	403	284	353	334

A net gain of 50 towns giving us now 119 majority where we last year had 19. To these we may add the following counties that we cannot compare with last year:

Broome	13	7
Cayuga	24	6
Genessee	9	4
Herkimer	9	10
Monroe	17	16
Onondaga	18	9
St. Lawrence	29	4
Tiago	8	2
	129	58

Which added to the preceding make 582 Republicans to 342 Democrats, or 190 Republican majority.

New Hampshire Items.

A very small island in Ossipee River constitutes a part of four towns, three counties and two States. The towns are Parsonsfield and Porter in Maine, Freedom and Effingham in New Hampshire. The counties are York and Oxford in Maine, and Carroll in New Hampshire.

The Nashua Iron Company has shipped to New York two monster grappling anchors, weighing three tons each. They are intended to steady the ships from which divers descend in the work of widening the channel at Hell Gate.

Lake Winnepisaukee is open. The steamer Chocorua made her first trip of the season on the 13th, and will begin to run regularly on Monday.

In October last, Mr. C. H. DeRochemont of Kingston lost a twenty dollar bill, which was blown away by the wind. A protracted search proved fruitless, and the was bill given up as lost. A few days ago, two boys were crossing a piece of ploughed ground, a considerable distance from DeRochemont's house, when they discovered and picked up the identical bill, which was at once returned to the loser.

THE PRESIDENT has removed Commissioner Van Aernam from the Pension office, and has appointed James A. Baker of Minnesota to the place.

Benjamin R. Cowan of Ohio has been appointed Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

TEN YEARS AGO last Friday, the 14th, President Lincoln issued his call for 75,000 troops.

NAVAL.—The Tennessee has gone out of commission and her officers are detached.

THE Presque Isle, Me., Sunrise appeared last week enlarged and with new type.

SENATOR SUMNER spoke in favor of the Ku-Klux bill in the Senate on the 13th.

—The Democracy of St. Louis are bathed in tears; about the only sort of a bath, by the way, they have seen for a long time. They managed to scratch a tie in the Council, but one of their number sold out to the Republicans, who, electing him president, got from him about all the Council offices.—Traveller.

—Boston thinks that eggs at twenty cents a dozen are cheaper than beef at thirty or forty cents a pound; and the general opinion is that Boston is right.

EX-GOVERNOR HARRIMAN has the following letter in the Nashua Telegraph:—

WARNER, April 8, 1871.

O. C. MOORE, Esq—Dear Sir: I take no exceptions to the comments which you made through the columns of the Telegraph, on my late letter to Senator Morton. Your judgment is as likely to be correct as mine, but I cannot forbear to remark that recent events have strengthened the conviction, in my own mind, that New Hampshire was lost, mainly through the influence of "local causes."

I was in the late Connecticut campaign. Last year, Gov. English was elected by a clean majority, over all, of 843. This year we have redeemed the State, electing by a decisive majority, our Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Comptroller and State Treasurer; having a majority of 5 in the Senate, and 26 in the House of Representatives, and carrying the choice of Governor into the Legislature, where Marshall Jewell is sure of an election. Besides, we have elected 3 of the 4 members of Congress. And all this was accomplished under the crushing weight of our unexpected defeat in New Hampshire,—in the full blaze of the San Domingo discussion in the United States Senate,—only five days after Sumner's great speech, which was printed and spread broadcast, by the Democratic party all over the State,—in spite of Tammany's corrupting power, and in defiance of the New York Herald, which turned a sudden summersault and took up the refrain of every Democratic and disaffected Journal in the land, declaring Grant politically dead and his Administration as wretched a failure as that of Frank Pierce!

In spite of all, the State is redeemed! The honest men of Connecticut believe that President Grant has done no wrong in connection with this San Domingo business. The republican party there, borne down by no local quarrels, has developed a strength which is refreshing to every friend of the Republican cause.

True, the negroes voted, in this election, for the first time, and, without doubt, voted largely on the republican side; but their numbers were small, and some white republicans, (to their shame be it said,) voted against us because these black republicans were enfranchised.

On the morning after the Connecticut election, the Boston Journal, with much directness, said, (and I wish to emphasize the declaration,) that the republicans of Connecticut "have proved that New Hampshire was lost wholly through local and temporary causes."

On Wednesday March 29th, our Republican State Committee and other members of the party, held a council at the Eagle Hotel in Concord. "The causes of defeat were discussed," (so says the Dover Enquirer,) "and they wisely resolved to bury in one common grave feuds and jealousies that have recently proved so disastrous," and the following Resolution was unanimously adopted:

"The Republicans of New Hampshire in council assembled, undismayed by the result of the recent election, firmly and unanimously resolved to bury all animosities and dissensions, and from this day are determined to labor as one man for the success of the Republican cause in the State and Nation in 1872."

Such "success" I predict, with the utmost assurance, and I am ready to stand shoulder to shoulder with any man who is actuated by this spirit.

Truly yours. WALTER HARRIMAN.

THE "National Transition Moonly Voice" is published at Salem, N. J., by Robert Sinnickson, "at each full moon, at $1 per volume." The Moonly adverts the New Man-form Nation," and its editor thinks he has an advantage at starting over the old-school politicians, as "while we have taken our course of instruction in a lunatic asylum preparatory to our political career, they are reserving their courses for the closing scenes of theirs." Mr. Sinnickson was a while ago confined in the New Jersey Lunatic Asylum—wrongfully, of course, for he says that himself. He speaks out boldly, and his editorials are as easily understood as Emerson's "Brahma;" a page from a dictionary that had been struck by lightning of the Jersey brand would read about as they do. No travelling agents employed.

—George Alfred Townsend some months ago wrote Gen. Farnsworth down a corrupt and bad man and at the same time made all sorts of terrible charges against him as his clerk. Now he is on a new track and labors through several of the immense columns of the Chicago Tribune to show that Gen. Butler is the worst man in existence and singularly enough he gives Gen. Farnsworth as authority for all the charges he makes. Townsend is a forgiving fellow and means no harm. He will probably in his next letter take back all he has said in his last. Washington is such a wicked place that a pure and spotless man like Townsend is apt to be easily imposed upon.—N. Y. Standard.

—Two Frenchmen were badly bitten by rats one night last week, in a house on Water street. One had his heel so gnawed that he could not walk on it next day, and the other was bitten through the nose and neck.—Biddeford Journal.

—A lady calls the little memorandum her butcher sends in with the meat "pencilings by the weigh."

—A consolation for the ladies—This world abounds in him-perfections.—Punch.

EDWIN MARSTON, foreman of the Prohibitionist office of Chicago, and his wife, Jenny Marston, were run over by the Kalamazoo train on the Michigan Central Railroad and killed. They were about to get aboard the Hyde Park train when the Kalamazoo train approached at a high rate of speed, and as the engine passed, the long dress of the lady was drawn by a current of air under the wheels of the locomotive and she was almost instantly drawn beneath the train. At the same time her husband seized her with the intent of rescuing her, but he also was drawn under the wheels. They were a young and highly respected couple and had been married but a few months.

DURING THE THUNDER STORM on Wednesday morning, the house and barn of Cyrus H. Hobbs, Wells, were struck by lightning and totally destroyed. Mr. Hobbs and his little boy, who were the only inmates of the house, had hardly time to escape. The furniture and other contents of the house, together with the stock of horses, cattle, etc., in the barn, were also burned. The buildings were the best in the town, and the loss is quite heavy.

—When Mrs. Farragut, accompanied by her husband the Admiral, visited the school-ship in Boston harbor last year, she sought the boy who had the reputation of being the worst of them all, and by a few kindly spoken words exerted such an influence over him that the little fellow has since been the best boy instead of the worst one.

Beware! KNAVES!! SWINDLERS!!! These are mild terms with which to designate those mean contemptible adventurers, who have been induced by the high reputation which Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy has won to put up and offer for sale a worthless imitation of this celebrated medicine. Remember that Dr. Pierce's private Stamp, which is the only positive guarantee of genuineness, should be upon every package. This private stamp, issued by the U.S. Government expressly for stamping Dr. Pierce's medicines, has upon it his portrait, name and address, and the words "U. S. Certificate of Genuineness." Dont get swindled by men calling themselves Dr. Sage; Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., is the only man now living that has the right and can prepare the genuine and original Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Sold by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of sixty cents.

Oppression after eating, headache, nervous debility, are the effects of indigestion. One, or two at most of Parsons' Purgative Pills will give immediate relief.

Johnson's Anodyne Liniment may be administered to children with perfect success, in cases of croup, whooping-cough, influenza and almost any of the diseases to which they are liable. 1wap15

SPECIAL NOTICES.

What Is It?

Many, many people suffer from they know not what. They are not sick—they are not well. There is no name for it. It is simply weakness—a breaking of the vital forces. Whatever its causes, (and they are innumerable,) its symptoms are in the main the same. Among the most prominent are extreme lassitude, loss of appetite, loss of flesh, and great mental depression. Indigestion and a stomach cough are also frequently concomitants of this distressing state of body and of mind. The common remark in relation to persons in such a condition is, that they are consumptive. Now, what these unfortunates really want is vigor, vital strength, and, as certainly as dawn succeeds darkness, they can recuperate their systems and regain perfect health by resorting to HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS. It is as clear that a life-reviving tonic is required in such cases, as that the dying flame of an empty lamp requires to be revived with a new supply of oil. Perfectly pure and innocuous, containing nothing but the most genial vegetable extracts, and combining the three grand elements of a stomachic, an alterative, and a genial invigorant, Hostetter's Bitters are suitable to all constitutions, and are as applicable to the diseases and disabilities of the feebler sex as to those of men.

A GOOD OFFER TO THE

Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.

E. A. JOY

Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to bring in lots of work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing whether a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.

MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make the above generous offer.

His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an excellent judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the Agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the best SEWING MACHINES may always be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 9 PLEASANT ST., nearly opposite the Post Office, Portsmouth, N. H. Twelve Different Kinds to Select from. mh7

REMOVAL.—Mr. Wm. H. Noyes, Foreman Sailmaker at the Navy Yard, was superseded by Mr. H. C. Lovell of Portland, Me., on Friday morning.

—We understand that an invitation, which is under consideration, has been extended to Miss Lizzie Ham, of the Middle Street church choir, to become the Prima Donna of the Unitarian choir at Worcester, Mass., with a salary of four hundred and fifty dollars.

JAMES GILCHRIST, yclept "Scotty," got pounded on the eye by a stone in hands of James Woods, and had the satisfaction of seeing Woods shell out $23.04 by order of the Police Justice.

—No ordinary personal item will give more real pleasure to those who know him, than to learn that Payson Tucker, Esq., conductor on and paymaster of the P. S. & P. R. R., has so far recovered from his serious and continued illness, as to report himself for duty on Monday.—Biddeford Journal.

U. S. S. PUSCARORA is to be taken out at the Navy Yard Dry Dock, immediately, to give place to the Wyoming, which is nearly ready for sea. We understand that the latter vessel is to have a new propeller and a new well room for the same.

THERE are two young persons in this city who are born artists—Masters Louis Wyman and Joseph Muchmore. Both display excellent taste and produce drawings which indicate the possession of extraordinary genius. Young Muchmore is employed at the confectionery establishment of Mr. Fred F. Moses, and his caricatures are enjoyed by the public generally—while Master Wyman's productions are seen only by a limited circle of friends. Portsmouth is famous for producing poets, authors and artists, and should the two young gentlemen of whom we write be placed where their talents may be properly developed under the teachings of a master of the art, Nast may soon find a couple of rivals, and Portsmouth's sons will be proud to boast of valuable acquisitions to its list of public men.

CITY COUNCIL, APRIL 13th.

IN BOARD OF MAYOR AND ALDERMEN, licenses were granted for billiard rooms to James Partridge, 4 tables, and James F. Mahoney, one table.

A message was received from the Common Council concurring in the ordinance relating to City Accounts.

A bill establishing the compensation of the Collector of Taxes at five eighths of one per cent., offered by the brevet "Mayor" of Ward Three, was defeated—2 yeas, 5 nays.

Aldermen Giddings, from the Committee on Fire Department, reported it inexpedient to substitute volunteer fire companies in place of paid companies for hand engines Nos. 5 and 6. The Committee also recommend that Engine House No. 5 be repaired, inside and out; that as Steamer Dearborn cannot be depended on, the Mayor and Chief Engineer be empowered to sell the same and purchase a new one; and that the Committee on Fire Department with the Mayor be authorized to finish off the lower story of the Court House for a tenement for the man who has charge of the Steamer's horses, so that in case of fire at night he may be in readiness at a moment's notice. So much of the report as refers to the sale of Steamer Dearborn, was re-committed.

Voted, to discontinue the payment of witness fees to the police force.

Aldermen Mendum and Fernald were appointed a Committee to report what in their opinion would be proper compensation for collection of taxes.

Resolution on Ports. & Dover R. R. was passed and sent down, to appoint two Aldermen and three members of the Common Council to petition the Legislature in the name of the City to pass a law authorizing the Cities of Portsmouth and Dover by their City Councils, any town or towns on the line of the proposed route, to guarantee the payment of semi-annual dividends on the shares of the P. & D. Road for a term not exceeding fifty years, to an amount equal to five per cent on the total valuation of said cities and towns, and provided that the whole amount of said shares so guaranteed by said City or town shall not exceed an amount equal to five per cent of the valuation of such City or town respectively; and provided said P. & D. R. R. Corporation shall a complete railroad between Portsmouth and Dover within one year from the time when said dividends so guaranteed shall begin.

Said Joint Com. being empowered to appoint an Agent to represent this body before the Legislature and urge the proper passage of a bill for the above purposes, and the Representatives from this city requested to use their influence to procure the passage of such a bill. Ald. Marvin and Annable were appointed on part of the Aldermen.

The Common Council had a special meeting Friday evening, and passed the joint resolution relating to P. & D. Railroad, Messrs. Tibbetts, French and Gardner being appointed a committee on the part of the Council.

MR. GEORGE CHATLIN has been appointed Assistant at the Whalesback light-house.

WE LEARN that the quiet home of Mr. Eben F. Brackett, on Union Street, was invaded on Thursday evening by a number of individuals, his tables and other articles connected therewith seized, while no notice whatever was taken of the protestations of the innocent and unsuspecting man of the house. His feelings were much subdued, however, when he discovered that instead of removing his tables, &c., from his dwelling, the invaders proceeded to load them with many kinds of carefully prepared food, until it seemed as though the miracle of the twelve baskets full would be repeated. In short, it was a genuine surprise party; the good lady of the house was presented with a splendid cake box.

SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT, Exeter.—On Wednesday morning was commenced the trial of the case, Clements vs. Marston. The plaintiff, Charles W. Clements of Hampton, claimed that the defendant, Weare Marston of North Hampton, a gentleman of 80 years, desired him to move with his family to his house, and live with him and take care of him for the remainder of his life, for which service he was to receive his property, including the farm on which he lived. Clements moved there in April, 1869, and remained until July, when he left, as he claims, because defendant would not make out the papers giving him a title to the farm. The plaintiff brought this suit to recover for the board of defendant, and for work done on his farm, amounting to $107.75. The defendant died after the suit was commenced. His executors filed an offset for board of plaintiff and family, and for house rent, etc., during the time he was there, amounting to $226. The case was given to the jury, Wednesday afternoon. Verdict for plaintiff, $96. Thomas Leavitt and Joseph Wiggin for plaintiff; Page and Hatch for the defence.

The grand jury reported, Thursday morning, the following indictments, and were discharged.

State vs. Jeremiah Sullivan and James Burke of Lawrence, Mass., for stealing fifty-two railroad tickets from the station in Salem. Plea, not guilty.

State vs. Charles H. Bancroft, for stealing jewelry from Frank P. Philbrick of Rye. Plea, not guilty. Trial assigned for Monday morning. J. S. H Frink, counsel for defence.

State vs. Manchester and Lawrence Railroad, for killing Benj. Woodbury, at Salem, on the 7th of December, 1870, he having been run over by a train of cars at Ballard's crossing.

State vs. Charles Johnson of Windham, for assault upon Lucy A. Johnson, his wife. Two indictments. Plea, not guilty.

Thursday morning was tried the case, James Jones vs. E. Washington Brown. An action of libel against the defendant, who is Clerk of Ward 2, in Portsmouth, for certifying that James Jones of Eliot, Maine, voted in Ward 2 at the annual meeting, in March, 1867. Taken from the jury. Judgment by agreement for plaintiff, $20 and costs. At a former trial of this action, (October, 1868,) the jury disagreed.

The libel for divorce—Lucy A. Johnson vs. Charles A. Johnson, was tried by the court, and a divorce decreed, with custody of children and alimony. G. C. Bartlett for libellant; J. F. Wiggin for libellee.—Exeter News Letter.

Consumption,

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE,

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure. Those near and dear to them, have followed them sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not thoroughly substantiated by the testimony of many visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self assuring, self-convincing.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in a deranged and functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They correspond to the morbific action of the liver. Here, then comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Pedophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing, without its previous torpiditure. Digestion comes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no concentration of bowelsound. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greater Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. It proceeds to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten throne that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, if he has faithfully regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

The second thing is, the patients must stay in a warm room, until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be guarded of a cure cannot be effected. Fresh air and riding out, especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter season, are fatal to life. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased; and yet, because they are in the house they begin to feel quite well, and can walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear, to get up a good circulation of blood. The patients must keep in good spirits—be determined to get well. This has a great deal to do with the cure, and is the great point to gain.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases of consumption as Schenck's is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words:

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption; confined to my bed and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive pus at a time, continuing for a long time. As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pains and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have enjoyed good health ever since."

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "there was a gain of twenty pounds; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds. Since I have so enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can read for themselves whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions, and Nature will do the rest, excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increasing doses, and in three medicines need no other accompaniments than the simple instructions that accompany them: First, create appetite, by returning health hunger is the most welcome symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the despairing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweat is abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms have gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation: while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure of coughs and colds, may be remarked as a prophylactic against consumption in any of its forms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

FIRST MORTGAGE

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX,

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established character equal to any mortgage issue dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market price—thus placing them on the same basis for temporary or permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.

These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands, without competition, all the traffic of Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota—shortening the distance from St. Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 90 miles.

The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists that they will more than double within the ensuing year.

A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company obligating the latter to invest 50 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Road in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stock, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder, at his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the interest obligation.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 9½ per cent. interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Governments pay at present price, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.

All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. f24dWaS

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.

Dr. Walker's Vinegar Bitters are a mild Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawMb16

THE CENTRAL RAILROAD CO. OF IOWA,

have now built and equipped, in first-class manner, about

180 MILES OF RAILROAD,

which will complete their entire line, with the exception of laying the track on twenty-five miles, which is already graded. They will thus open

The First Through Line Across the State

from north to south, and, by making a slight detour at one point, they will give

DIRECT COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ST. LOUIS AND ST. PAUL.

This line of Railroad will have very special advantages for both local and through business, besides such superior railroad connections as will secure to it a large portion of the carrying trade of the Great Northwest. The

First Mortgage

which are issued upon this road, are limited in amount to $16,000 per mile (while many roads issue from $30,000 to $40 000,) and are offered at 90 and accrued interest, in currency. About two millions and a half of these bonds have already been disposed of, leaving but a small balance unsold, which are being rapidly taken.

The most experienced financiers agree that First Mortgage Bonds, to a limited amount, upon a finished railroad, which is well located for business, are one of the very safest forms of investment.

Parties desiring to secure a first-class security, based upon a railroad practically done, and in the hands of leading capitalists who have a large pecuniary and business interest in its success, will do well to apply at the office of the Company, or any of its advertised agents, for a pamphlet and map, showing the characteristics of the enterprise.

Holders of Government Bonds may exchange them for Central Iowas at a large present profit, besides a handsome increase of interest for a long term of years. Parties making such exchange will receive for each $1,000 Bond a $1,000 Central Iowa Bond, and the following difference in cash (less the accrued interest in currency upon the latter bond,) and in annual interest, this calculation being based upon market prices of December 27th, 1870:—

7-30 GOLD LOAN

OF THE

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 200 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 130 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase, the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 453 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 560.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend as a Profitable and Perfectly Safe Investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 340 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the NORTHERN PACIFIC EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on

23,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,00 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. Tax; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LAND FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable at TEN PER CENT. ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, which I have ever yet offered, on the terms, them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, accessible to the people, which is more PROFITABLE OR SAFE.

EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by Morning Chronicle.

IN DEATH NOT DIVIDED.

The following striking sketch in verse, appearing lately in The Toledo (O.) Blade, over the signature of Mr. Will M. Carleton of Hillsdale, Mich., is not only profoundly true to human nature, but also invests such nature, even through a hard, superficial aspect, with that struggling instinct towards the good and gentle which is never wholly eradicated from any human soul. The use of examples from the lowest grades of vice to illustrate the immortality of this latter innate trait is usually a device of the genius seeking the strongest and most immediate dramatic effect for its picture; but in the present case the poet goes no lower in the moral scale than a hard-headed, self-willed old farmer, directing the drawing up of "the papers" which shall "separate" his Betsey and himself for the brief remainder of their nearly-told lives, and the result is at once an admirable study of character and a moral demonstration in nowise violative of the purest epic art. The melting, by swift degrees, of the husband's heart as he enumerates one after another the things to be "made over" to the renounced wife; the incidental recollections of loving offices in the past; the increasing spirit of generous self-sacrifice; and, through all, the never-relaxing, stern purpose of absolute separation from the woman—until death, are characteristics and contrasts constituting that consistency in inconsistency which it is the inspiration of genius to recognize in human nature, and the prerogative of the best art fully to portray.

BETSEY AND I ARE OUT.

(A Farm Ballad.)

Draw up the papers, lawyer, and make 'em good and stout;
For things at home are cross-ways, and Betsey
and I are out;
We who have worked together so long as man and wife,
Must pull in single harness the rest of our nat'ral life.

"What is the matter?" say you? I swan! it's hard to tell;
Most of the years behind us we've passed by very well;
I have no other woman—she has no other man,
Only we've lived together as long as we ever can.

So I have talked with Betsey, and Betsey has talked with me;
So we've agreed together that we can't never agree;
Not that we've catched each other in any terrible crime;
We've been a gatherin' this for years, a little at a time.

There was a stock of temper we both had, for a spell;
Although we never suspected 'twould take us two apart;
I had my various failings, bred in the flesh and bone;
And Betsey, like all good women, had a temper of her own.

The first thing I remember whereon we disagreed,
Was somethin' concerning heaven—a difference in our creed;
We arg'd the thing at breakfast—we arg'ed the thing at inn—
And the more we arg'ed the question, the more we did'nt agree.

And the next that I remember was when we lost a cow;
She had kicked the bucket, for certain—the question was only—how?
I held my own opinion, and Betsey another had;
And when we were done a talkin', we both of us was mad.

And the next that I remember, it started in a joke;
But full for a week it lasted, and neither of us spoke;
And the text was when I scolded because she broke a bowl;
And she said I was mean and stingy, and hadn't any soul.

And so that bowl kept pourin' dissensions in our cups;
And so that blamed cow-critter was always a comin' up;
And so that heaven we arg'ed no nearer to us got;
But it give us a taste of somethin' a thousand times as hot.

And so the thing kept workin', and all the self-same way;
Always somethin' to arg'e, and something sharp
to say,
And down on us come the neighbors, a couple dozen strong,
And lent their kindest service for to help the thing along.

And there has been days together—and many a weary week—
We was both of us cross and spunky, and both too proud to speak;
And I have been thinkin' and thinkin', the whole of the winter and fall,
If I can't live kind with a woman, why, then I won't at all.

And so I have talked with Betsey, and Betsey has talked with me;
And we have agreed together that we can't never agree;
And what is hers shall be hers, and what is mine shall be mine;
And I'll put it in the agreement, and take it to her to sign.

Write on the paper, lawyer—the very first paragraph—
Of all the farm and live-stock, that she shall have her half;
For she has helped to earn it, through many a weary day,
And it's nothin' more than justice that Betsey has her pay.

Give her the house and homestead; a man can thrive and roam,
But women are cheery critters, unless they have a home;
And I have always determined, and never failed
to say,
That Betsey never should want a home, if I was taken away.

There's a little hard money that's drawin' to'rards pay;
A couple of hundred dollars will go by for a rainy day;
Safe in the hands of good men and easy to get at;
Put in another clause, there, and give her half of that.

Yes, I see you smile, sir, at my givin' her so much;
Yes, divorce is cheap, sir, but I take no stock in such;
True and fair I married her, when she was blithe and young;
And Betsey was al'ays good to me, except with her tongue.

Once, when I was young as you, and not so smart, perhaps,
For me she mittened a lawyer, and several other chaps;
And all of 'em was flustered, and fairly taken down;
And I for a time was counted the luckiest man in town.

Once when I had a fever—I won't forget it soon—
I was hot as a heated turkey and crazy as a loon—
Never an hour went by me when she was out of sight;
She nursed me true and tender, and stuck to me day and night.

And if ever a house was tidy, and ever a kitchen clean,
Her house and kitchen was tidy as any I ever seen,
And I don't complain of Betsey or any of her acts, Exceptin' when we've quarrelled and told each other facts.

So draw up the paper, lawyer; and I'll go home to-night,
And read the agreement to her and see it's all right;
And then in the mornin' I'll sell to a tradin' man
I know—
And kiss the child that was left to us and out in the world I'll go.

And one thing put in the paper, that first to me didn't occur,
That when I am dead at last she bring me back to her,
And lay me under the maples I planted years ago,
When she and I was happy before we quarrelled so.

And when she dies, I wish that she would be laid by me;
And lyin' together in silence, perhaps we will agree;
And if ever we meet in heaven, I wouldn't think it queer,
If we loved each other the better because we have quarrelled here.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

Mr. Eddy is in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

COMPOUND FLUID

Extract Catawba

GRAPE PILLS.

Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not necessitate their being sugar-coated. They are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

E

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND

FLUID EXT. SARSAPARILLA

Will radically exterminate from the system Scrofula, Syphilis, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Sore Legs, Sore Mouth, Sore Head, Bronchitis, Skin Diseases, Salt Rheum, Cankers, Runnings from the Ear, White Swellings, Tumors, Cancerous Affections, Nodes, Rickets, Glandular Swellings, Night Sweats, Mercurial Mal-Ady, and all kinds, Chronic Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and all diseases that have been established in the system for years.

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than other preparations of Sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of Health and Purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pains and swelling of the bones, ulcerations of the throat and legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, and Beautifying the Complexion.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

CONCENTRATED

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

THE GREAT DIURETIC,

has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of Prostate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, Gout in Enfeebled and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, and Excesses and Imprudences in Life, Impurities of the Blood, etc., superseding Copaiba in Affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.

LADIES.

In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU CURES DISEASES ARISING FROM IMPRUDENCES, HABITS OF DISSIPATION, &c., in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Preventing and Curing Strictures of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED

ROSE WASH

cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It speedily eradicates Pimples, Spots, Scurvy, Tetter, Dryness, Irritations of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Rash, Moth Patches, Dryness of Scalp or Skin, Frost Bites, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin, H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unbounded patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant form all those prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

D

Full and explicit directions accompany the medicines.

Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character furnished on application, with hundreds of thousands of living witnesses and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, etc. The proprietor has never resorted to the publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

Henry T. Helmbold's Genuine Preparations.

Delivered to any address. Secure from observation. ESTABLISHED IN THE YEAR OF TWENTY YEARS. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Address letters for information, in confidence to HENRY T. A Woman's Answer to a Man's Question.

Do you know you have asked for the costliest thing
Ever made by the hand above?
A woman's heart and a woman's life—
And a woman's wonderful love?

Do you know you have asked for this priceless thing,
As a child might ask for a toy?
Demanding what others have died to win,
With the reckless dash of a boy?

You have written my lesson of duty out—
Man-like have you questioned me—
Now stand at the bar of my woman's soul—
Until I shall question thee.

You require your mutton shall always be hot,
Your socks and your shirts be whole;
I require your heart to be true as God's stars,
And as pure as His heaven your soul.

You require a cook for your mutton and beef;
I require a far greater thing;
A seamstress you're wanting for socks and for shirts,
I look for a man and a king.

A king for the beautiful realm called home,
And a man that the maker, God,
Shall look upon as he did on the first,
And say "It is very good."

I am fair and young, but the rose will fade,
From my soft young cheek one day—
Will you love me then 'mid the falling leaves,
As you did 'mong the bloom of May?

Is your heart an ocean so strong and deep,
I may launch my all on its tide?
A loving woman finds heaven or hell,
On the day she is made a bride.

I require all things that are grand and true,
All things that a man should be;
If you give this all, I would stake my life
To be all you demand of me.

If you cannot be this—a laundress and cook
You can hire, and a little to pay;
But a woman's heart and a woman's life,
Are not won in that way.

FEED FOR COWS.—The milk produced from our cows is sold as soon as taken from the cows, therefore we have no interest in producing butter, but aim to secure a large flow of milk. In view of that we have experimented somewhat in the matter of feed. First, we see that the hay is of the best quality. As to provender, we have tried most every kind and perhaps with the exception of oil cake, all kinds in use. Brewers' grain increases the quantity but not the quality; dishonest milkmen need not water their milk. Oat meal produces more milk than shorts and of a better quality. Indian and cotton seed meal improves the quality but do not influence the quantity as much as oat meal or shorts. My method of feeding is, to ten bushels of oats add two bushels of corn and grind together; scald the meal and add water enough to make it thin and blood warm. In the winter the cows are kept in a warm stable well bedded and not exposed to the cold nor storms, and usually have the chill taken from their drink. The result is that we have a large flow of milk and make a profit. We find that there is a great difference in cows on the same feed. In my stable are two cows who come in at nearly the same time, and have the same quantity and quality of feed. One produces one-third more than the other—from which we are to learn to select good milkers if they do not come to high.—Maine Farmer.

PERPETUATING THE POTATO.—The results of many years experimenting with the potato, carried on with minuteness at Dundee, Scotland, have recently been published in the English agricultural journals. The experimenter studied the culture and diseases of the potato very carefully during the greater part of his life, experimenting largely in the propagation of new varieties from the seed, and obtaining some varieties of great value. He believes that every variety of the potato becomes gradually weakened by repeated planting, and ultimately dies out, and that there is no way prepetuating the plant but by propagating new kinds from the seed or ball, secured from the best and strongest varieties grown. This work must be continued without ceasing, that new and healthy kinds may be always ready to take the place of old and worn out varieties. He regarded it as desirable that fresh seed should be obtained every year, as the liability to disease is increased if the last year's seed is planted on the same ground. Picking the balls was found to improve the crop one third, and more of the strength of the plant goes to nourish the seed.

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who have sold

CONGRESS.

On the 14th, the Senate passed the Ku-Klux bill, amended so that it is more severe than the House bill, by a vote of 45 to 19. The only republicans who voted in the negative were Messrs. Robertson of South Carolina, Schurz, Tipton and Trumbull.

FRANCE.

A Paris dispatch of the 14th says an important victory has been gained by the insurgents at the village of Courcelles over the Versailles troops. Two thousand of the latter surrendered to the communal forces.

Twelve shells have been fired into Paris and caused great damage. Shells are continuing to fall, and house property of the value of two million francs has been already destroyed. Fighting still continues.

The commune is trying to enforce the order against the departure of persons without passports. Even women are preventing from leaving the city. Notwithstanding the precautions taken, upwards of 500,000 people have left since the troubles commenced.

SOME MORE TIDAL WAVE.

In Madison, Wis., the result is the election of a Republican Mayor by 53 majority.

In Kenosha, A. Farr, Republican, was elected Mayor by a large majority. The Democrats elected their Assessor and one or two Aldermen. The rest of the Republican ticket was elected by large majorities. The city had generally gone Democratic, and the result of the election was rejoiced over as a great Republican victory.

Racine was carried by the Republicans by a rousing majority, M. B. Erskine being re-elected Mayor by nearly 700 majority, and the Republicans electing all their ticket, by good majorities.

In Oshkosh the entire Republican ticket was elected by majorities ranging from 95 to 512. James V. Jones, Republican, was elected mayor by 512 majority, over J. H. Porter.

In Portage City, S. S. Brannon, Republican, was elected Mayor.

At Beloit, John Foster, Republican, was elected Mayor by 487 majority, and the rest of the Republican ticket by about the same vote.

AMONG the able and efficient scoundrels sent from New York to Connecticut to assist in the election of English, was Reddy the Blacksmith; a worthy Democrat at whom the gallows has long been grabbing, and may not always grab in vain.

—If the Democratic party has to bear the burdens of Jeff Davis in the South and such malcontents as Frank Blair in Congress, it may as well hang its harp upon the willows. If it insists upon fighting over again the issues settled by the war its defeat is sure in advance. The war settled forever the question of "State Sovereignty" which Jeff Davis still prates about. It settled slavery and the civil rights of the blacks, including the right to vote and hold office. The issues upon these questions are dead. The Republicans may try to keep them above ground by Ku-Klux legislation, but they cannot violate the laws of nature which order that which is dead to rot, unless the Democrats are foolish enough to breathe the breath of life into them again. If the Democrats are wise they will let the dead past bury its dead, including the fossils of the party, and reorganize upon the vital issues of the day—amnesty, civil service and revenue reform and specie payments.—Boston Herald.

—The Nashville (Tenn.) Union vouches for the truth of a story, the important facts of which are as follows: A confederate soldier went to Brazil at the close of the war, taking with him his wife and two daughters—one ten, the other twelve years of age. He was an educated man, having been a preacher in Montgomery county, Tennessee, but apparently his was not the sort of ability which makes men rich in such a place as Brazil, and after a while he became a bankrupt. According to Brazilian law the children of a citizen who cannot pay his debts may be sold as slaves, and the money thus obtained applied in payment of his obligations. The unfortunate Tennesseean had become a naturalized citizen of the empire, and in accordance with the law both his children, now near grown to womanhood, were taken to the slave market and sold to the highest bidder. The price paid was $1200, by returning which, the father can buy them back again.

P. T. BARNUM is again in the show business, with the biggest collection that ever travelled in America.

BESIDES a delegate to Congress, the people of the District of Columbia are to choose a House of Delegates, composed of twenty-two members, at the election on the 20th inst. The Republican nominations include two colored men.

BUNGLERS AS ARCHITECTS.

The Tennessee isn't a great credit to our naval architects. She consumed 45 tons of coal daily during her late voyage; and her engines, which are of the Ericsson make, were found to require 82 gallons of crude olive oil daily, worth over $1 a gallon, merely as a lubricator. Without the aid of sail her average speed was five miles an hour. Portland Advertiser.

A flour-barrel is a good thing to hold flour; and if it fails to serve a good purpose as a gate-post or gas-metre, such failures should not reflect discredit on the man who made it, as it answers its original purpose well. And if many of our national ships are but worthless and expensive toys, the men who have made them so should be blamed, and not the "naval architects" whose plans they are constantly overturning.

The Tennessee (or "Madawaska") was a sister ship to the Wampanoag, (now the Florida,) built on the same lines and of the same dimensions—each 335 feet long at the water line, 354 feet over all, 45 feet 2 inches beam, 23 feet 6 inches depth of hold, and about 20 feet draught of water. Their engines were of the same size but of different designs—diameter of cylinder 100 inches, length of stroke 48 inches, propeller 4-bladed. Both ships were built in the best manner of live oak, expressly for excessive speed. On the trial trips, the Wampanoag actually made 17 3-4 knots per hour, and for over 40 consecutive hours averaged 16 3-4 knots; the Madawaska (Tennessee) made 14 1-2 knots per hour, and with half her boiler power—exactly what she has now—10 1-2 knots.

But when Porter & Co. came into power and took full charge of the construction, medical, pay, religious and engineer departments of the navy, everything had to be at once altered to suit their fancy; the ships were all rechristened with the names of ancient gods or devils; and the 4-bladed screws, that had proved the best ever used, were replaced with 2-bladed ones that have proved about the worst; and other changes were made. By these alterations the speed of the Tennessee has been reduced from 10 1-2 knots, as above, to 7 1-2 knots maximum, under the same circumstances of engines and boilers; and the "slip" of the propeller, which when 4-bladed was seven per cent., has with the Porter & Co. improvements increased to from thirty to fifty per cent. No wonder her engines need so much oil. She was good for something before Porter "improved" her; now she isn't fit for a collier.

There is hardly a ship in the navy but what has been altered from the original plans on which she was built, to suit the whims or conveniences of the autocratic line. For instance, the "Brooklyn" was draughted to be a barque, was rigged as a barque, and for a long time cruised as a barque. Even with that rig her after sail was almost useless, we are informed by one of her former company,—in fact, she was virtually sailed as a brig, for the canvas on her mizzen-mast was seldom set. But she would "look better" under ship rig, so a heavier mizzen-mast was stepped and yards fitted to it, and she sailed away with a lot of canvas aloft that she could never use except in calms or when laying at anchor. The bills were paid out of the U. S. Treasury.

The California was a good-looking and apparently serviceable ship when she left the stocks; but here "line" accommodations were not extensive enough to suit the fancy of the irresponsible remodellers, so her coal-bunkers were reduced in size and shifted forward, the weight of her battery got as near the end of her bowsprit as practicable, the old sailors squeezed into the smallest possible space, a large part of the entire ship fitted up palatially as "line officers' quarters," a few hundred tons of old iron stowed away in the run to bring the vessel on an even keel, and then she went to sea "down by the head" a foot.

But if the Tennessee isn't of much account now except to burn coal, use up oil and grind water, that is not the fault of the men who built her and the Wampanoag; if the Brooklyn does not work well as a ship, that is not the fault of the men who intended her for a barque; and if the California is but a line officers' palace instead of a man-of-war, the builders of the "Minnetonka" (the name she bore until the then Vice Admiral was graciously pleased to change it) should not be blamed. So long as men who are wiser in their own conceit than in any thing else are allowed to do just as they please with the navy, and have all the expense of their pet schemes paid out of the public purse, just so long will queer pranks be played with the national ships, and our "naval architects" make ludicrous blunders and costly failures.

And perhaps by the time our costly and inefficient navy is completly ruined, the people will find out that men whose minds are mainly filled with ideas of their own personal importance are not the proper ones to show naval constructors, surgeons, chaplains and engineers how to perform their duties.

—Kate Downs, of Newark, threw a cupful of soap suds in her lover's face because he came bothering about the kitchen on washing day. "Why! don't you love me, Kate?" exclaimed the astonished swain. "No," said she," I never love you here." "When do you love me, then?" The angry shadow fled away from the maiden's face, and a soft light came to her eyes as she answered, "I love you dearly when my work is done and I lay my head upon my pillow. Then I have nothing to think about but you."

SPECIAL NOTICES.

What Is It?

Many, many people suffer from they know not what. They are not sick—they are not well. There is no name for it. It is simply weakness—a breaking of the vital forces. Whatever its causes, (and they are innumerable,) its symptoms are in the main the same. Among the most prominent are extreme lassitude, loss of appetite, loss of flesh, and great mental depression. Indigestion and a stomach cough are also frequently concomitants of this distressing state of body and of mind. The common remark in relation to persons in such a condition is, that they are consumptive. Now, what these unfortunates really want is vigor, vital strength, and, as certainly as dawn succeeds darkness, they can recuperate their systems and regain perfect health by resorting to HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS. It is as clear that a life-reviving tonic is required in such cases, as that the dying flame of an empty lamp requires to be revived with a new supply of oil. Perfectly pure and innocuous, containing nothing but the most genial vegetable extracts, and combining the three grand elements of a stomachic, an alterative, and a genial invigorant, Hostetter's Bitters are suitable to all constitutions, and are as applicable to the diseases and disabilities of the feeble sex as to those of men.

IMPROVEMENT OF MERRIMAC RIVER.

U. S. ENGINEER'S OFFICE, CITY HALL, BOSTON, MASS., April 14th, 1871.

PROPOSALS will be received at this office until the 13th of May, 1871, for the excavation of a channel through the Upper and Lower Falls, and the removal of other obstructions in the Merrimac River, above Haverhill. The work will be commenced at the Lower Falls, where the channel commenced to be exhavated last year will be completed; then a channel will be excavated through the Upper Falls, after which such other obstructions as shall be deemed by the Engineer in charge most dangerous to navigation will be removed.

The channel is to be 4 feet deep at low water, and 60 feet wide. The material to be excavated consists of large and small boulders, mixed with clay and gravel.

The proposals must state the price per cubic yard for the material excavated, to be measured in the dumping scows.

The total amount available for the contract is $25,000. J. G. FOSTER,

Chief Engineer D. B. Macomb of this city has been placed on waiting orders.

OUR CITIZENS are to be pleased this week by the performances of Hall's Comedy, and Burlesque Opera Company. Our New England exchanges give them the biggest kind of recommendations, and say the Company is composed not only of excellent actors but ladies and gentlemen. See advertisement.

THE gentlemen who on Friday called upon some of our citizens to see how much inducement would be offered to secure the holding of the State Fair in this city, report a good degree of success, and much interest in the matter. The right men are at the head of the movement, and if they are properly encouraged and supported the Fair will come here, sure.

PAYSON TUCKER, Esq., the well known Conductor and Paymaster of the P. S. & P. R. R. was in town on Saturday, looking as radiant as of old, having recovered from the severe illness which threatened his life and being once more able to speak aloud. The P. S. & P. R. R. and the public generally could ill afford to lose his valuable services. Those who know him best have missed him sadly during the six months in which he was off duty, and the congratulations offered him on his return are sincere and heartfelt.

THE captain of the schooner Suliote, wrecked on Grogan's Point last week, exonerates pilot Randall, who had charge of her when she got on the rocks, from blame, as he wished to bring the vessel to an anchor lower down the river, but the captain insisted on trying to reach the wharf. The heavily laden vessel "mis-stayed" and backed on the rocks. The cargo of coal was insured; it will be nearly worthless when recovered, as salt water unfits bituminous coal for use. The schooner was uninsured, and the loss on the vessel will be about $2000.

We get the above account of the affair from the "copper horn;" but we do not see of what good a pilot would be on board a vessel, if he yielded his own judgment to the captain's wishes. If he did so, he should bear the blame of any mishap that might result.

Since writing the above, we have been informed, we know not with how much truth, that the pilot understood he was bringing up a vessel drawing but thirteen feet of water; the depth on the reef was about fifteen feet, and the schooner drawing just fifteen feet refused to go over.

THE FIRST CHURCH gathered in Maine was at York, in the year 1673; the next at Wells, in 1704; and another at South Berwick, the same year; the next at Kittery, in 1714; then at Eliot in 1721.

THE WEST LYNN STATION on the Eastern Railroad has been moved about half its length in an easterly direction, and is now to go back about twenty feet, in order to admit of a wider platform being constructed between it and the railroad track.

THREE London papers have been judged guilty of libel and fined £2000 for publishing an article from Claflin and Woodhull's Weekly of New York, which stated that Jenny Lind had separated from her husband, the latter having dissipated his wife's fortune and driven her to give music lessons for a living.

Mrs. Goldschmidt testified that her fortune had not only been unimpaired since her marriage, but had been actually more than doubled. Her husband was addicted to no expensive tastes or habits whatever, was not a gambler, and did not even smoke, and his life was absolutely blameless and had been so ever since their marriage. Further, she declared that they had lived together in entire concord and harmony and had never lived apart. Mr. Goldschmidt gave similar testimony.

—Brigham Young has ordered daily prayers against the grasshoppers this Summer. The false account of his death was probably got up by some one who wishes to marry Mrs. Young.

BASE BALL.—It is settled that the Boston nine shall start upon their first tour the 25th or 26th of this month, in which they will play all the crack clubs, with the exception of the White Stockings.

MR. JAMES T. FIELDS will retire from the editorship of the Alantic Monthly in July and will be succeeded by Mr. W. D. Howells. Mr. Fields will continue his "Whispering Gallery" papers through the present year.

THE FRENCH FAIR at the Boston Theatre, in aid of the sufferers by the great Prussian-French war, is now in progress. The Boston papers speak highly of the attractions offered, and a full band, led by P. S. Gilmore, is present each evening. Aside from any considerations of the amusement afforded, the object cannot fail to meet the approval of all; and none need fear that a cent of the money raised by this Fair will go to prolong in any manner the terrible, fratricidal contest now raging in Paris, as it will be distributed by trusty agents directly to the innocent and suffering peasantry. An advertisement of the Fair will be found in another column.

HEAVEN.—Henry Ward Beecher says:—When I think of Heaven, I do not think of angels standing like wax candles, in long altar-rows, singing hymns of praise; I think of saintly life, the sweetest, the gayest, the most joyous, the fullest of every mood of fancy and goodness. I think of beings that carry light in the eye, and joy in the heart, and ecstacy in every touch."

Consumption,

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE,

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure. Those near and dear to friends and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr. Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful action.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as its history is plain. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self-assuring, self-convincing.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in Dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here, then comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing, without its previous torpitude. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the great Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup. It begins to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the immaterial and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings it prepares for expectoration, and behold! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten thrown that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

The second thing is, the patients must stay in a warm room, until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be prevented or a cure cannot be effected. Many have died from exposure, especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter seasons, are all wrong. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased; and yet, because they are in the house they must not sit down quiet; they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will hold out to get up a good circulation of blood. The patients must keep in good spirits—be determined to get well. This has a great deal to do with the appetite, and it is the great point to rain. To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is wrong. Dr. Schenck's medicines

Communicated.

COAL.—Wood on the earth is abundant, and in all ages has served important purposes. Next in importance in keeping fire and driving machinery is coal. Nature is rich in its provisions of this article. Many countries have it, Belgium furnishes more in proportion to its size than any country, 13,000,000 tons a year being its product. Germany produces about the same amount. France also about the same, China twice as much. In Great Britain it is 120,000,000 tons.

In our country it is immense. Those who live in Ports mouth or along the line of the railroad to Manchester,are struck with surprise at the amount seen carried over that road. But this is but a fraction of what is used. In all, 30,000,000 tons are produced yearly, and vast mines of it in some of the Western States are yet remaining untouched, but will be in time.

Thirty million tons! Few realize the vastness of this amount. Let an illustration be given. The largest of the Pyramids in Egypt is 480 feet high or four times the height of Bunker Hill Monument, and at its base covers 30 acres. That Pyramid contains a pile only about one-tenth as large in volume as the quantity of coal dug yearly in our country.

The coal operation is one of the wonders of which the world is full. Man is the great "chief for whom the whole creation smiles" and labors to bless.

STARVES HIMSELF. — The Warren (Ill.) Sentinel contains the following account of the death, by starvation, of D. J. Tuttle, a victim of a horrible superstition:

For twenty-five days, ending last Thursday morning, Mr. Tuttle had existed without food or nourishment, taking only a few ounces of wine and water; but on the morning alluded to, nature gave way and the spirit took its flight. Tuttle was a strong believer in Spiritualism, and claimed that the spirits had told him that he must fast for forty days, after which he would go into a trance and the spirit would depart, but after six days it would come back, and he would rise up and eat, and then we would all be brethren. He said he suffered no pain of any kind, but was tormented by those who came to talk with him. The day before he died we visited him at the residence of his mother, in this place. Going in, we found him alone, in a small room, without furniture, lying on a bed with a quilt thrown over him. On entering the room, he told us to go out. "If you want to talk to me," he said, "go round to the north end of the house and talk through the window. You make the air too close—too close." To gratify him we proceeded to the window. "Do you suffer any pain, or are you troubled, Mr. Tuttle?" "No, I am perfectly easy. You torment me when you talk to me. My strength is almost gone now." "What do you think is to become of you?" "I am going to sleep now pretty soon, when the spirit will depart. After six days it will return, and I will rise up and we will all be brothers."

To gratify him we were then driven away from the window. Lying there on the bed he presented a horrified appearance. All his flesh had been consumed by the vital organs to sustain life, and the skin clung tight to the bones. With long, uncombed hair and whiskers, sunken eyes and hollow cheeks he presented a wreck to look upon. The Sunday before he died he was immersed in Spafford Branch; he believed that it was necessary to cleanse his spirit, and he also had some of his teeth pulled out to carry on the cleansing process. On Wednesday last the authorities called in, who endeavored to persuade him to eat, succeeding in getting him to take a little beef tea; but the remedy came too late. He was past redemption, and gradually sank into the "trance" from which there was no awakening.

AFTER MARRIAGE.—Many a woman has gone into her room and had a "good cry" because her husband called her by her baptismal name and not by some absurd nickname invented in the days of their folly; or because, pressed for time, he hurried out of the house without going through the established formula of leave-taking. The lover has merged into the husband; security has taken place of wooing, and the woman does not take kindly to the transformation. Sometimes she plays a dangerous game, and tries what flirting with other men will do. If her scheme does not answer, and her husband is not made jealous, she is revolted, and holds herself that hardly-used being, a neglected wife. She cannot accept as a compliment the quiet trust which certain cool-headed men of a loyal kind, place in their wives; and his tolerance of her flirting manner—which he takes to be manner only, with no evil in it, and with which though he may not especially like it, he does not interfere—seems to her indifference rather than tolerance. Yet the confidence implied in this forbearance is, in point of fact a compliment worth all the petits soins ever invented, though this hearty faith is just the thing which annoys her, and which she stigmatizes as neglect. If she were to go far enough she would find out her mistake. But by that time she would have gone too far to profit by her experience.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS, For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs, No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON, After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all cases touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COMPOUND FLUID

Extract Catawba

GRAPE PILLS.

Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not necessitate their being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

E

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND

FLUID EXT. SARSAPARILLA

Will radically exterminate from the system Scrofula, Syphilis, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Sore Legs, Sore Mouth, Sore Head, Bronchitis, Skin Disease, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Runnings from the Ear, White Swellings, Tumors, Cancerous Affections, Nodes, Rickets, Glandular Swellings, Night Sweats, Gravel, Tetter, Humors of all kinds, Chronic Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and all diseases that have been established in the system for years.

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than other preparations of Sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of Health and Purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pains and swelling of the bones, ulcerations of the throat and legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, and Beautifying the Complexion.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

CONCENTRATED

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

THE GREAT DIURETIC,

has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of Prostate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for Enfeebled and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, and Excesses and Improprieties in Life, Impurities of the Blood, etc., superseding Copaiba in Affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.

LADIES.

In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to females, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU CURES DISEASES ARISING FROM IMPRUDENCES, HABITS OF DISSIPATION, &c., in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Preventing and Curing Strictures of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED

ROSE WASH

cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It speedily eradicates Pimples, Spots, Scorbutic Dryness, Irritations of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Rash, Moth Patches, Dryness of Scalp or Skin, Fever Blisters, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin, H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unbounded patronage, by its peculiar fitness when used as a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an Injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

Full and explicit directions accompany the medicines.

Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character furnished on application, with hundreds of thousands of living witnesses and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, etc. The proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

SONG OF THE DUCKS.

One little black duck, one little gray,
Six little white ducks running out to play;
One white lady-duck, motherly and trim,
Eight little baby-ducks bound for a swim!

One little white duck holding up his wings,
One little bobbing duck making water-rings,
One little black duck turning round its head,
One big black duck—guess he's gone to bed.

One little white duck running from the water,
One very fat duck—pretty little daughter!
One very grave duck swimming off alone,
One little white duck standing on a stone.

One little white duck walking by its mother,
Look among the water-reeds, maybe there's another;
Not another anywhere? Surely you are blind.
Push away the grass, dear, ducks are hard to find.

Bright little brown eyes! o'er the picture linger!
Point me all the ducks out, chubby little finger.
Make the picture musical, merry little shout!
Now, where's that other duck? What is he about?

I think the other duck's the nicest duck of all;
He hasn't any feathers, and his mouth is sweet and small!
He runs with a light step, and jumps upon my knee,
And though he cannot swim, he is very dear to me.

One little lady-duck, motherly and trim!
Eight little baby-ducks bound for a swim;
One lazy black duck taking quite a nap;
One little precious duck, here on mamma's lap!

KILLING WHALES BY CANNON.—The inventive genius of America has of late years been directed very largely toward improved modes of capturing fish, in which, not satisfied with the comparatively rude methods of hooks and lines, spears, and even nets, an effort is made to destroy them in a much more wholesale manner. Even the whale-fishery, which for so long a time has been carried on by means of the harpoon, has, as is well known, lately been prosecuted by firing explosive substances into the body of the animal with shoulder-guns or with cannon, and thus disabling it very quickly. This method has been adopted by many whalers in the Greenland seas, and has been especially applied of late to the taking of the large finback whales of the Norwegian coast. These animals have hitherto been but little disturbed by whalers, as, although of enormous size (from sixty to ninety feet,) they possess comparatively little blubber, and are so active as to be rarely, if ever, successfully attacked by the harpoon.

A recent writer in Land and Water recounts a late visit to the establishment of Herr Foyen, in the Varanger Fiord, where, from a small island, the fishery is prosecuted by means of two small steamers of about seventy tons each. The special apparatus employed consists of a harpoon, inclosing in its head half a pound of gunpowder, and with jointed or hinged barbs containing some percussion powder between them. When the whale is within gunshot, this harpoon, attached to the end of a long cord coiled around a drum, is fired into the animal from a cannon about the size of a four-pounder. As the flukes penetrate the side of the whale they are naturally brought together or pressed down toward the shaft, and in so doing ignite the percussion-powder, which sets fire to the gunpowder, causing an explosion in the body of the animal that usually produces a mortal wound. The whale, of course, starts off under the stimulus of the pain, and the rope is carried out for a time, being uncoiled from the drum precisely like a fishing-line from the reel of a fishing rod, the steamer following after so as to prevent any undue strain. If necessary a second discharge takes place, which almost invariably produces death.

The steamer then tows the animal back to the station, where the blubber is taken off in a long strip by means of properly constructed apparatus, after which the flesh is removed in a somewhat similar manner, and finally the bones are separated and hauled out. It is the intention of the proprietor to prepare a farm fertilizer by drying the flesh and reducing it to powder, and a brisk trade has already sprung up in Germany in this article. The bones are likewise to be ground and utilized in various ways; so that the entire animal,—blubber, flesh and bones—will be put to economical purposes. The carcasses of over thirty whales were heaped up on the island at the time of the visit referred to, forming a red hill of very considerable magnitude, visible at a great distance. The proprietor stated that the factory would not answer its expectations unless fifty whales could be taken every summer. It was thought however, that there would be comparatively little difficulty in, securing this number; and in fact, as we learn from later advices, over sixty in all were captured during the season.—EDITOR'S SCIENTIFIC RECORD, in Harper's Magazine for May.

CALIFORNIA papers tell a delightful little story about a youth who recently won $11,000 in a lottery and straightway hunted up his most intimate friend and divided his new-gained wealth with him. Such rare, unselfish friendship, they say, indicates a warmth of affection that ennobles the man and warms the "cockles of the heart" of every one conversant with the circumstances.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.
I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who sell Linseed Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.
I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

SCIENTIFIC AND POPULAR MEDICAL WORKS
—ON—
MANHOOD, WOMANHOOD AND NERVOUS DISEASES,
PUBLISHED BY THE
PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE,
No. 4 Bulfinch Street, Boston,
(Opposite Revere House.)
DR. W. H. PARKER, Assistant Physician.
Medical knowledge for everybody. 250,000 copies sold in two years.
A Book for every Man.
THE SCIENCE OF LIFE, OR SELF-PRESERVATION. A Medical Treatise on the Cause and Cure of EXHAUSTED VITALITY, PREMATURE DECLINE IN MAN, NERVOUS AND PHYSICAL DEBILITY, HYPOCHONDRIA, and all other diseases arising from the ERRORS OF YOUTH, OR THE INDISCRETIONS OR EXCESSES of mature years. This is indeed a book for every man. Price only $1.60. 285 pages, bound in cloth.
A Book For Every Woman,
Entitled SEXUAL PHYSIOLOGY OF WOMAN, AND HER DISEASES; or, WOMAN TREATED OF PHYSIOLOGICALLY AND PATHOLOGICALLY, from INFANCY TO OLD AGE. With elegant ILLUSTRATIVE ENGRAVINGS. 350 pages, bound in beautiful French cloth. Price $2.00.
A Book for Everybody.
Flattered by the reception of, and great demand for, the above valuable and timely treatises, and also to meet a great need of the present age, the author has just published a new book, treating exclusively of NERVOUS AND MENTAL DISEASES. 150 pp. cloth. Price $1, or SENT FREE on receipt of $3 for the other two books, postpage paid.
These are, beyond all comparison, the most extraordinary works on Physiology ever published. There is nothing whatever that the MARRIED OR SINGLE, of EITHER SEX, can either require or wish to know, but what is fully explained, and many matters of the most important and interesting character are introduced to which no allusion even can be found in any other works in our language. All the NEW DISCOVERIES of the author, whose experience is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any man, are given in full. No person should be without these valuable books.
"VALUABLE BOOKS.—We have received the valuable medical works published by the Peabody Medical Institute. These books are of actual merit, and should find a place in every intelligent family. They are not the cheap order of abominable trash, published by irresponsible parties, and purchased to gratify coarse tastes, but are written by a responsible professional gentleman of eminence, as a source of instruction on vital matters, concerning which lamentable ignorance exists. The important subjects presented are treated with delicacy, ability and care, and, as an appendix, many useful prescriptions for prevailing complaints are added."—Cross Republican, Lancaster, N. H.
"The author of these books is one of the most learned and popular physicians of the day, and is entitled to the gratitude of our race for these invaluable productions. It seems to be his aim to induce men and women to avoid the cause of those diseases to which they are subject, and he tells them just how and when to do it."—Chronicle, Farmington, Maine, Sept. 7, 1866.
Either book sent by mail on receipt of price.
N. B. The Author of the above-named medical works is the Chief Consulting Physician of the Peabody Medical Institute, and is so constantly employed in consultation with invalids from all parts of the country, that he has no time to attend to mere business details. Therefore all letters should be addressed to the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, or to Dr. W. H. PARKER, the Medical Assistant of the Author, and his Business Agent, who, as well as the Author himself, may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill, secrecy and experience. oct261yr

IT IS A SURE AND Perfect Remedy for all diseases of the
LIVER AND SPLEEN, ENLARGEMENT OR OBSTRUCTION OF INTESTINES, URINARY, UTERINE OR ABDOMINAL ORGANS, POVERTY OR A WANT OF BLOOD, INTERMITTENT OR REMITTENT FEVERS, INFLAMMATION OF THE LIVER, DROPSY, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD, ABSCESSES, TUMORS, JAUNDICE, SCROFULA, DYSPEPSIA, AGUE AND FEVER, OR THEIR CONCOMITANTS.
DR. WELLS, having become aware of the extraordinary medicinal properties of the South American Plant, called
JURUBEBA,
Sent a special commission to that country to procure it in its native purity, and having found its wonderful curative properties to even exceed the anticipations formed by its great reputation, has concluded to offer it to the public, and is happy to state that he has perfected arrangements for a regular monthly supply of this wonderful Plant. He has spent much time experimenting and investigating as to the most efficient preparation from it, for popular use, and has for some time used in his own practice with most happy results the effectual medicine now presented to the public as
Dr. Wells' Extract of Jurubeba,
and he confidently recommends it to every family as a household remedy which should be freely taken as a BLOOD PURIFIER in all derangements of the system and to animate and fortify all weak and Lymphatic Temperaments. 4wap18

A GOOD OFFER TO THE
Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.
E. A. JOY
Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to come in and see the work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing whether a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.
MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make the above generous offer.
His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an excellent judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the Agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the Best SEWING MACHINES may always be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 9 PLEASANT ST., nearly opposite the Post Office, Portsmouth, N. The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

TUESDAY, APRIL 18, 1871.

THE Report of the select committee of the U. S. Senate, appointed to enquire into the alleged outrages in the Southern States, on the condition of affairs in North Carolina, discloses a condition of affairs in that State far exceeding in horror all the previously given newspaper reports. Of fifty-two witnesses examined, twenty-nine are republicans, twenty-one democrats belong to the Ku-Klux Klan. The evidence taken shows conclusively that in North Carolina (the only State in which the committee had investigated affairs) there exists an immense secret society, composed mainly of ex-rebel soldiers, whose object is to nullify reconstruction and the constitutional amendments by establishing a system of terrorism over the blacks and the white republicans; that men and women in vast numbers have been whipped, drowned, hung and shot, for no other offence than voting the republican ticket or teaching negro schools; and that, owing to the fact that the law-breakers have entire control of the courts, not a single instance has occurred in which any of the perpetrators have been punished.

One Bradshaw, a member of the Ku-Klux and a most unwilling witness, testified that the organization of the society in his county was due to the offenses of the negroes, and the fact that whenever they were tried and convicted they were pardoned by the Governor; but on being pressed he acknowledged that the civil law in his county could always be enforced against negroes or republicans, that no convicted person in that county ever had been pardoned by the Governor, and that the possibility that they might be pardoned was but a pretext to justify the forming of the society. Some of the witnesses endeavored to deny that the Ku-Klux is a political organization; but their own evidence proved that all its members are democrats, that all its victims are republicans, that for a man to be a Northerner is considered enough to justify the commission of violence or murder upon him, and that republicans are nearly always and democrats never convicted by the judicial tribunals (which the Ku-Klux manage in their own interest) when charged with any offence.

That stringent measures are imperatively necessary to protect the rights of loyal white and black men in the South is only made plainer by the Report; and we hope that Congress will give to the President sufficient power—and that he will exercise that power—to secure to every citizen of the Southern States, irrespective of birthplace, color or party, the same protection for life, liberty and property which is enjoyed in the North.

THE CONNECTICUT ELECTION.—In response to a telegram from General Hawley, of the Hartford Courant, Postmaster Sperry, of New Haven, replies at length upon the reported error in the Fourth ward of that city. He says as the matter stands, the error will probably be rectified and Governor Jewell will carry the honors of the election day in May, as the inauguration is usually styled. Mr. Hendrick is contesting the chair of Mr. Kellogg in the Second district, on the ground that certain votes put in the wrong box in New Haven, should have been counted in his own favor. Unfortunately, some 250 votes were put in the wrong box for this gentlemen, as will be recognized from the fact that Mr. Kellogg ran that much ahead of his ticket. All this, in the face of New Hampshire is better than a victory; it is a triumph. "Blessed and and thrice-blessed the Roman who sees Rome's proudest day."

THE New York Times, in discussing the turn of affairs at Albany and Wiman's unexpected surrender to the Democrats, says that up to Friday evening the member from Chatuaqua probably intended to come out of the struggle an honest man, but, unknowingly to himself, two men spear to have been preparing for him the path of treachery. One was his political sponsor and the other was his employer. One was Senator Fenton and the other was Jay Gould. These two were closeted together for two hours on Friday, and at the interview there is reason to believe that Winans was selected to take a bribe of Tweed, which is said to be $75,000 cash down, with an additional bribe thrown in by the Erie ring of five years' tenure of a position worth $5000 a year. The Times also demands that Senator Fenton explain his share in the alleged compact or stand convicted of an alliance clearly equivalent to political suicide.

CONGRESS.

In the House, on the 15th, Mr. Shellabarger of Ohio moved to concur in all the Senate amendments to the Ku-Klux bill, except the last two; one in relation to the oath of jurors, and the other what is known as the Sherman amendment. As to these he would move no concurrence and ask for a conference committee.

The House proceeded to vote on the amendments. The amendment extending the right of the President to suspend the writ of habeas corpus till the end of the next regular session of Congress, instead of till June 1, 1872, was rejected—86 to 93. The amendment in relation to the oath of jurors was rejected without the yeas and nays. The amendment known as "the" Sherman amendment assessing damages on localities, was rejected, 45 to 131. All the other amendments were concurred in.

Messrs. Shellabarger of Ohio, Schofield of Pennsylvania and Kerr of Indiana were appointed a committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two houses.

On the 17th, the Senate voted to adhere to its action on the Ku-Klux bill. Senators Edmunds, Sherman and Stevenson were appointed on the Committee of Conference.

FRANCE.

A Paris despatch says shells and rifle bullets fell in the Avenue Wagram, on the 13th. Tradesmen were wounded in the Avenue des Ternes. The streets leading from Porte Maillot are in ruins. Issy and Vanvres are firing small bombs which splinter into many pieces and are terribly destructive.

The communists report that Fort d'Issy repulsed successive assaults of the Versaillists on Friday and Saturday, with severe losses to the assailants, General Dombrouski attacked the government forces at Neuilly and claims that he took 400 prisoners.

A London dispatch says the insurgents were beaten near Colombes on the 15th, and retreated, losing many prisoners.

Marshal McMahon has surrounded the insurgent troops at Asnieres with a strong force from the Versailles army.

The Government at Versailles says that Paris is completely invested, and that a summons to surrender within twenty-four hours will be sent.

General Endes, commanding the southern forts, says all seems finished. The night has been terrible, and the battle incessant from six o'clock in the evening. Vanvres bore a most violent assault. The Royalists' loss is enormous. They were repulsed along the whole line. It was a complete victory for the Commune.

The semi-official journal says that one thousand soldiers were killed before Vanvres and several hundred taken prisoners at Neuilly. There was no loss among the Parisians, except Dombrouski, who is slightly wounded.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

The total log drive which is to come down the Merrimac this season is set at eight million feet.

Gen. Thom has been at Dover, preparatory to spending the Government $10,000 on the river channel.

Mr. Daniel Moulton of Hampton owns a farm that has been in his family ever since 1637. No division of the property has ever been made.

Mr. Jacob Chamberlain of Alton made 32,976 thread spools in ten hours, last week, in Twombly and Co's.

The Dover city council has voted to close up William Street, which will allow the Cocheco Print Works to be enlarged; also, to permit the company to build a track through First and Central Streets, from their freight station to the works, and to exempt from taxation for the next ten years all improvements made within three years by the Cocheco Manufacturing Company, and Messrs Sawyers' woolen manufactories.

On the 10th, in Keene, Mr. Charles K. Colony was so prostrated by the great heat that his recovery is not looked for.

On the same day, an ox owned by a Surry farmer dropped dead in the street from overworking in the sun.

Ex-Sheriff E. H. Johnson of Littleton was taken on the 11th to Haverhill jail. His offence was the embezzlement of about $2000 while acting as Sheriff. His bondsmen caused the arrest, they having been obliged to pay his deficiencies. The examination is said to have disclosed more faults than one. He is a young man and has a large family, which is left dependent on charity.

—If Brigham Young wore an additional weed on his hat every time he lost a wife or mother-in-law, it is estimated that he would have a hat twenty-seven feet high.

— Mrs. Swan of Cochran, N. Y., lighted her fire with kerosene on Monday, leaving a husband and one child.

—It is announced from London that Chang, one of the Siamese twins, was paralyzed on the right side on his return to America last August. At present he is so far recovered that he is able to move about with the assistance of a crutch. During his illness his brother suffered in no way, though naturally he was compelled to remain in bed during the period of Chang's sickness.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Oppression after eating, headache, nervous debility, are the effects of indigestion. One, or two at most of Parsons' Purgative Pills will give immediate relief.

Johnson's Anodyne Liniment may be administered to children with perfect success, in cases of croup, whooping-cough, influenza and almost any of the diseases to which they are liable. 1wap15

More than 400,000 people bear testimony to the wonderful curative effects of Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery. For palpitation or irregular action of the heart, all severe acute or lingering Coughs, and for "Liver Complaint" or "Billiousness" it is unequaled. Sold by all druggists.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

What Is It?

Many, many people suffer from they know not what. They are not sick—they are not well. There is no name for it. It is simply weakness—a breaking of the vital forces. Whatever its causes, (and they are innumerable,) its symptoms are in the main the same. Among the most prominent are extreme lassitude, loss of appetite, loss of flesh, and great mental depression. Indigestion and a stomach cough are also frequently concomitants of this distressing state of body and of mind. The common remark in relation to persons in such a condition is, that they are consumptive. Now, what these unfortunates really want is vigor, vital strength, and, as certainly as dawn succeeds darkness, they can recuperate their systems and regain perfect health by resorting to HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS. It is as clear that a life-reviving tonic is required in such cases, as that the dying flame of an empty lamp requires to be revived with a new supply of oil. Perfectly pure and innocuous, containing nothing but the most genial vegetable extracts, and combining the three grand elements of a stomachic, an alterative, and a genial invigorant, Hostetter's Bitters are suitable to all constitutions, and are as applicable to the diseases and disabilities of the feebler sex as to those of men.

NO MORE FOOL-TRAPS!

IMPROVEMENT OF MERRIMAC RIVER.

U. S. ENGINEER'S OFFICE, CITY HALL, BOSTON, MASS., April 14th, 1871.

PROPOSALS will be received at this office until the 15 h of May, 1871, for the excavation of a channel through the Upper and Lower Falls, and the removal of other obstructions in the Merrimac River, above Haverhill. The work will be commenced at the Lower Falls, where the channel commenced to be excavated last year will be completed; then a channel will be excavated through the Upper Falls, after which such other obstructions as shall be deemed by the Engineer in charge most dangerous to navigation will be removed.

The channel is to be 4 feet deep at low water, and 60 feet wide. The material to be excavated consists of large and small boulders, mixed with clay and gravel.

The proposals must state the price per cubic yard for the material excavated, to be measured in the dumping scows.

The total amount available for the contract is $25 000. J. G. FOSTER, 6tat7 Lt.-Col. Engineers.

FIRST MORTGAGE

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX.

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established character equal to any mortgage issue dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market price—thus placing them on the same basis; for temporary or permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.

These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands, without competition, all the traffic of Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota—shortening the distance from St. Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 90 miles.

The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists but they will more than double within the ensuing year.

A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company obligating the latter to invest 50 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Road in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the Bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stock, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder, at his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the interest obligation.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 9½ per cent. interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Governments pay at current prices, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.

All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. f24dWaS

PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF

HAMLET'S SOLILOQUY.

To insure or not to insure? That is the question.
Whether t'will be nobler for my family to suffer
The slings and arrows of cruel fortune
Or take a policy against those dangers,
And, by insuring, end them? To fret, to fear,
No more; and by a policy to end
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to. Yes, my application's
Devoutly to be wished; apply, insure,
And pay the premium at—there's the rub
For in that time what premiums may come
Before I shuffle off this mortal coil
Must make me pause. Who bears a purse,
And makes me rather pay the bills I have
Than fly to others I know not of.
Thus does mammon make cowards of us all.

THE Rockingham House will be reopened on the 8th of May.

THE cargo of the schooner Suliote has been sold by the underwriters to one of the owners of the vessel.

THE centennial anniversary of Rev. Hosea Ballou's birth will be observed in this city on the 30th inst. He was settled in this city from 1809 to 1815.

THE caravan which was to start for Rye a week ago to-day, in charge of "Buggins," is expected to march again at 15 minutes of 6 o'clock, this afternoon. "Come on, fellers."

PERSONAL.—George W. Young, Esq., formerly of Dover and now a member of the Virginia legislature, is in town. New Hampshire's representative men fill public positions in nearly, if not quite, every State in the Union.

THE Tallapoosa arrived at the Navy Yard on Sunday, and will remain but a day or two, the object of her visit being to transfer a certain amount of stores from the department of steam machinery at this yard to the Washington Yard.

THE Methodist Society of this city have had gratified the wish they expressed a few weeks ago, to have their pastor, Rev. C. M. Dinsmore, settled over them for another year. He has worked hard to benefit his church and people, and the compliment he received in their request for his re-appointment was deserved.

THE Providence Journal says of the Adelphians, who are to appear here next Thursday and Friday evenings:—"There is a certain ease and naturalness in the manner each performer floats into the play, that is decidedly pleasing in their comedies, while in the extravagance of the burlesque they have no superior." Reserved seats are now for Sale at Preston's.

MRS. Hanks is now canvassing this city for contributions to the fund for the establishment of an Industrial School for Colored Soldiers' Orphans in Kentucky. Mrs. Hanks comes highly recommended by the authorities of Lexington, Ky., and we doubt not that any subscriptions placed in her hands for the laudable object in view will be appropriated judiciously towards the establishment of the proposed School.

WE are informed that Mr. Elias A. Staples of Eliot, Me.,—who although a young man, has achieved quite a reputation for skill in constructing boats of superior design and excellent sailing qualities,—is engaged upon a schooner boat which it is said will "lay over" anything he has yet constructed. She is intended for the use of Rev. George H. Hepworth of New York, during his summer vacation at the Shoals, the coming season. Among the fast boats which Staples has built may be mentioned one owned by Thomas Odion, Esq., and also one recently built for Mercer Goodrich, Esq., of this city, either of which are hard to beat.

At the annual meeting of the Mercantile Library Association on Friday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:—Pres., G. C. Akerman; Vice Pres., Mercer Goodrich; Sec. & Librarian, C. A. Hazlett; Treasurer, Clarence O. Walker; Directors, F. W. Miller, D. J. Vaughan, Mercer Goodrich, Joseph Cheever, Floron Barri, Moses Yeaton, Jr.; Trustees, Wm. Tuckerman, Wm. Marvin, Jr., John H. Cheever.

T. E. O. Marvin, Esq., the President for the past two years, was re-elected; but in a few well-chosen, pertinent remarks declined the office, and Mr. C. C. Akerman was unanimously chosen. A vote of thanks was passed to Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett, Rev. James DeNormandie, Rev. Geo. W. Bicknell, Rev. A. J. Patterson, Dr. John W. Parsons, Messrs. John Albee, Geo. W. Haven, J. P. Bartlett, Albert R. Hatch, Albert Laighton, B. P. Shillaber, E. A. Tilton, John W. Stavers, and Miss Flora Fitts; to the members of the Unitarian Choir, Cushing's Orchestra and Double Quartet; to Messrs. C. A. Hazlett and F. W. Robinson, Editors of the Lyceum, and to the members of the Press for their valuable aid and services during the course of lectures and entertainments given under the auspices of the Association during the past winter.

THE N. H. Conference of the M. E. Church closed its session at Rochester on Monday, April 17. The following are a portion of the appointments made:—

Dover District.—O. H. Jasper, Presiding Elder; Dover—M. C. Brittain; Great Falls, High St.—C. U. Dunning; Rochester—D. J. Smith; Union and Milton Mills—I. J. Tebbetts; Newmarket—T. L. Flood; So. Newmarket—A. A. Cleveland; Exeter—S. E. Quimby; Greenland—T. D. Chandler; Portsmouth—C. M. Dinsmore; Hampton and Rye—S. J. Robinson; Seabrook—H. Montgomery; Salem—D. W. Downs, Pleasant St.—R. Dearborn; No. Salem—A. Folsom; Derry—N. L. Chase; Londonderry—J. A. Steele; Danville and Fremont—Joseph Hayes; Epping—A. R. Lunt; Raymond—Supplied by Josiah Higgins; Candia, Chester and Auburn—Silas Green, two to be supplied; William Hewes chaplain to seamen on the Isle of Shoals and member of Portsmouth Quarterly Conference.

Claremont District.—James Pike, Presiding Elder; Claremont—H. L. Kelsey.

Concord District.—S. D. Kellogg, Presiding Elder; Chichester—Geo. Beebe; Hooksett—Supplied by H. H. Hartwell; No. Haverhill—G. W. Ruland.

RUM'S WORK.—There was only one case before the Police Court on the 17th. Ellen (better known as "Nellie") Moulton was tried for being drunk on Short Street on Saturday night last, and was sentenced to the House of Correction for three months and to pay the cost of prosecution, $576. At the rate allowed (fifty cents a week) for her labor, in addition to the three months, she will be detained nearly three months longer. Mrs. Moulton is only 33 years of age, has been the mother of ten children, four of whom are now living, one of them a young man of promise at college in a distant city. Intemperance and kindred causes have brought her thus low.

THE Democratic tidal wave received a new impetus on Saturday evening last, by the election of an Agent and Clerk of School District No. 9 in the town of Kittery, the honors and emoluments thereof being shared between Mr. Andrew J. Stinson, as Agent (formerly government detective on the Navy Yard) and Mr. James E. Chase as Clerk. The meeting was overwhelmingly democratic, and resolved to sell their school-house—recently built, as we learn, at a cost of nearly $9000; appointed a committee to carry the resolution into effect, with instructions to report at an adjourned meeting and then adjourned without day!

ALL the overhead bridges on the Eastern R. R. are being raised as expeditiously as possible. We understand that the bridge at the Plains will be raised to morrow. This is probably being done for the Pullman Palace car train from Boston to Bangor.

FOUR persons were baptized at 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon, by Rev. S. H. Hutchinson of Kittery, at the Town Landing by the Navy Yard bridge.

AUCTION sale at the Navy Yard this day, by M. T. Betton & Co., of steam pumps, cement, blacksmiths' bellows, &c. See advt.

AN editor in Indiana stated that a rival who was coming to town to start an opposition paper, was a pretty good fellow, but "parted his hair in the middle." Every man in the place who could leave his store went to the depot to see the new comer, but instead of seeing the spruce and dandified young man they expected, they saw an elderly and rather shabby gentleman, who, as he raised his hat in honor of the crowd, they found to be as bald as a billiard ball. His hair was parted in the middle and the parting was four inches wide. The incident created such a laugh that the new publishers could not stand it, so he departed next day for "pastures new."

A Commission of Engineers has pronounced the machinery of the U. S. S. Tennessee defective.

JOB AND CARD PRINTING.—We have made great additions to our jobbing facilities—a mammoth Hand Press (the largest in Portsmouth,) new Display Type, Borders of various styles, &c.—and are prepared to execute with neatness and dispatch, all orders for FULL SHEET POSTERS, DATE SLIPS, PAMPHLETS, SERMONS, ADDRESSES, AUCTION BILLS, CONSTITUTIONS, BY LAWS, PROGRAMMES, HANDBILLS, CIRCULARS, ORDERS DANCES, BLANKS, BILL HEADS, RECEIPTS, TICKETS, BUSINESS, MARRIAGE, ADDRESS AND VISITING CARDS, LABELS, TAGS, and in fact PRINTING OF ANY DESCRIPTION, at SATISFACTORY PRICES. TRY IT!

How well we remember in days that are gone,
The feelings we felt as we saw the cork drawn—
The disgust—the recoil
From "Cod Liver Oil,"
Dealt out to poor souls in the days that are gone!
But who could complain
Of this to be ta'en?
It swallows as easy as sparkling Champagne—
Does "Marvins' Deodorized Oil."

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS,

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawsbbis

SAFE AND PROFITABLE.

THE CENTRAL RAILROAD CO. OF IOWA,

have now built and equipped, in first-class manner, about

180 MILES OF RAILROAD,

which will complete their entire line, with the exception of laying the track on twenty-five miles, which is already graded. They will thus open

The First Through Line Across the State

from north to south, and, by making a slight detour at one point, they will give

DIRECT COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ST. LOUIS AND ST. PAUL.

This line of Railroad will have very special advantages for both local and through business, besides such superior railroad connections as will secure to it a large portion of the carrying trade of the Great Northwest. The

First Mortgage

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

which are issued upon this road, are limited in amount to $16,000 per mile (while many roads issue from $20,000 to $40,000,) and are offered at 90 and accrued interest, in currency. About two millions and a half of these bonds have already been disposed of, leaving but a small balance unsold, which are being rapidly taken.

The most experienced financiers agree that First Mortgage Bonds, of a limited amount, upon finished railroad, which is well located for business, are one of the very safest forms of investment.

Parties desiring to secure a first-class security, based upon a railroad practically done, and in the hands of leading capitalists who have a large pecuniary and business interest in its success, will do well to apply at the office of the Company, or any of its advertised agents, for a pamphlet and map, showing the characteristics of the enterprise.

Holders of Government Bonds may exchange them for Central Iowas at a large present profit, beside a handsome increase of interest for a long term of years. Parties making such exchange will receive for each $1,000 Bond a $1,000 Central Iowa Bond, and the following difference in cash (less the accrued interest in currency upon the latter bond,) and in annual interest, this calculation being based upon market prices of December 27th, 1870:—

7-30 GOLD LOAN

OF THE

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun only last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 266 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 130 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 560.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend as a Profitable and perfectly Safe Investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on

23,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,000 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. TAX; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 $50 $20; Registered, $100 $500 $1,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable at TEN PER CENT. AHEAD for lands, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonds long before it is due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, accessible to the people, which is more FAVORABLE TO THE MASS.

EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

NASBY.

CONFEDRIT ✠ ROADS,
(wich is in the State uv Kentucky)
March 12, 1871.

The Corners hez ben agitatid recently at the report which hez bin spred abroad that a committee wuz agoin to visit us for the purpose ov investigatin the triflin matter uv the killing uv a few niggers and northern white men in this part uv Kentucky—the Corners courts investigashen. She hez alluz ben ez law abidin ezood be expected under the circumstances under which she hez bin placed, and hez no fears uv any fair injury, but for fear what hez bin done mite be mis understood, ef evidence shood be taken by a prejoodist committee, me and Deekin Pogram decided that I should make myself a court uv eggsaminashen, and report precisely the statue uv affaire in this partickelar. Last Toosday I summoned the leedin citizens uv the Corners afore me in the back room uv Bascom's and put em thro the most sarching eggsaminashen.

Captain Hugh McPelter wuz the first man eggsamined, I swore the witneses on a spelling-book, which we capchered from the last nigger school-house wich was burnt last year. I swore em on a spellin-book that the oath mite be more bindin. Men alluz hev a reverence for that which they can't comprehend and for that uv wich they are ignorant, and a spellin-book alluz strikes the Cross-Roader with awe. The Captain statid that no outrages hed bin committed in the Corners or visinty that he wuz aware uv. Last fall the niggers wich hed workt on his farm, Pennibacker's, Deekin Pogram's, Sutton's and Issaker Gavitt's, all summer, refoosed to continyoo work until they hed bin paid suthin. They held a meeting to consider wat they shood do, and hearin uv that meetin he did organize a party uv citizens and did disperse em for the public safety; in the dispersin, thirteen uv them wuz accidentally killed, and on their way home the party did burn five cabins which he understood wuz inhabited by niggers.

By the Commission—(which wuz me)—state how the accidental killin took place.

Answer — The boys hed with em double-barrel shot-guns, wich, by a singular coincidence, happened to be loaded with ball and buck-shot. They pinted them guns in the direckshun uv the niggers ez they wuz a runnin from the meeting house in which they were assembled, and they went off. We wuz surprised to see the thirteen a layin there shortly after the volley, with the tops of their heads blowed off.

Question by the Commission (me)—The burnin of them five cabins wuz accidental, was it?

Answer—Not so much so. It wuz did partly in a jocose sperit, and partly from a sentiment uv pity. The heads uv families which had dwelt in em hed bin killed in the affair at the meeting house, and ez there wuz nobody to take keer uv them houses but wimmin and children, it wuz considered best that they be burned; and ez the wimmin and children would have a hard time of it without houses, it wuz considered humane to put em out uv a cold unfeelin world, and they wuz akkordingly knocks on the head ez the torch wuz applied to their dwellins.

Question by the Commission—Hev yoo knowd uv any violence been offered to any other residents uv this vicinity?

Answer—None but wat wuz deemed necessary to the safety uv the kommunity. A stone mason by the name of Albrite came here from Injiany, and ez he took five Northern papers we know'd he wuz a carpet bagger which gloated over the misforchoons uv the sunny South. We warned him to leave, but he stubbornly refoosed; whereupon some uv of the boys put on masks one nite, and took him out uv his house, and hung him. He was a long time a kickin', and his struggles was so amusin that the boys felt amply repaid for the trouble they had bin to. The same nite they tested in the front uv Pollock's store, and wood have hung Pollock, had not that oneasonable man appeared at a second story window with Joe Bigler, both uv em hevin revolvers in their hands.

Deekin Pogram wuz the next examined.

Hed not been aware that there hed bin any pertikler disturbance in this visinity. It wuz trod that Isaacker Gavitt and some uv the young men hed at times, and in a jolly mood, put on masks and mounted their horses, and to protect theirselves hed taken such rifles, and shot guns and revolvers, and knives, and axes ez they hed handy, and made it lively for the niggers up toards Garrettstown, but nothing more that he knowed uv.

Question by the Commissioner—Hev you bin aware uv any manifestashen uv a desire to use any violence toards niggers or Northern men.

Answer—Bless your sole no. Last fall three niggers did attempt to vote, afore Joe Bigler got to the poll and uv course we didn't stand that it wuz an insult to southern blood wich we coodent endown. One uv them hit back, and the three wuz immejitly pounded over the head with fence stakes. I believe one uv em died on the spot; another in perhaps half an hour, and tother in the afternoon; but it wuz agreed that it wuzn't the poundin that killed em, but the inflamashen that set in afterward. Amos Dibble, a Connecticut Yankee, offered his vote at the same election, and he wez pounded with a hickory club, and he like wise died. It is possible that others would hev bin pounded simular, hed not Joe Bigler Pollock come up just at that time.

Question by the Commission—To wat do you ascribe the blame for these irregularities?

Answer—There can't be no doubt ez to where the blame ought to rest. The niggers hev got insane idea from em that they are klosen by virtoo uv the 15th amendment, notwithstanding the fact that every justis uv the peace in Kentucky has declared it unconstoshnel, and consekently void and uv no effect. They b'leeve they hev rites as citizens, and they won't be managed as they yoosed to be. They insist on bein paid for labor, which alluz irritates the Southern mind, and they insist upon continyooally insultin us by offerin their votes, which ain't to be tolerated for a minit. Ef they would quietly resume their normal posishen, and let us rool em ez we yoosed to, I ashoor yoo there wooden't be no trouble watever. Ez to the Northerners, they are really at the bottom uv the whole trouble. They come down here and buy land, and try to build factrys, and set the niggers wild by hirin uv em, and they take incendiary peroodicals, and do their level best to disorganize things generally, and we can't have no peece so long ez they are permitted to be here. In all that hez been done our people have acted in self-defence.

Issaker Gavitt was eggsammined:

Didn't know what all this fuss wuz about. Hed helped to skeer the niggers—he liked it. He wuz very fond uv dressin hisself in a mask, and loadin up his shot-gun and goin out with the boys and skeerin uv em. He shot half a dozen uv em—it wuz better sport than foxhuntin, coz niggers coodent dodge into holes and get out uv your way, and foxes could. He known uv nothing so laffable ez to see a nigger squirmin on the ground with a cherge of buck-shot into him, cepting one time when the boys tarred one uv em and set the tar on fire. Lord, how the cuss did run until the burnin tar yoosed him up! Hed he been able-bodied nigger he wood hev run further, and made more amoozement for us. Things was comin to a purty pass when a Southern gentleman coodn't amooze hisself without hevin Federal soldiers sent after him.

At this pint I closed the investigashen. It will be seen that the people uv the Corners hev conducted theirselves ez neer law-abiding citizens ez good be expected under the circumstances.—There hez been wat mite be called violence, but it will be observed that in all cases it wuz either made necessary by the ackshen uv the niggers and northerners, or wuz the bilin over uv that exuberant humor uv wich the southerners hev so great a muchness uv. But in dispite uv this fact, wich is evident and palpable, I spose these triflin irregularities will be made the protest fur sendin Federal soldiers among us! I spose there will be a company uv Federal calvary stashoned at the Corners wich will compel our citizens to keep their hands off these degarded beins, and the still worse northerners, and to treat them ez tho they wuz our ekals?

Good heaven! Are we livin in a Republic or under an old world despotism? Are we free men or are we Roosin serfs? When it comes to these things I reerly tremble for popler government.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,
NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S
COMPOUND FLUID
Extract Catawba
GRAPE PILLS.
Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.
For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseeding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and smell, do not nauseate their being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

E

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S
HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND
FLUID EXT. SARSAPARILLA
Will radically exterminate from the system Scrofula, Syphilis, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Sore Legs, Sore Mouth, Sore Head, Bronchitis, Skin Diseases, Salt Rheum, Cankers, Runnings from the Ear, White Swellings, Tumors, Cancerous Affections, Nodes, Rickets, Glandular Swellings, Night Sweats, Rash, Tetter, Humors of all kinds, Chronic Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and all diseases that have been established in the system for years.

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than other preparations of Sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of Health and Purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pains and swelling of the bones, ulceration of the throat and legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, and Beautifying the Complexion.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S
CONCENTRATED
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
THE GREAT DIURETIC,

has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of Prostate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for Broken Down and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, Excesses and Imprudences in Life, Impurities of the Blood, etc., superseeding Copaiba in affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.

LADIES.

In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Preventing and Curing Stricture of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED
ROSE WASH

cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in very species of Cutaneous Affection, such as Eruptions, Pimples, Spots, Scorbutic Dryness, Indurations of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Rash, Moth Patches, Dryness of Scalp or Skin, Frost Bites, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and leaves a healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought for and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin. H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long constituted its principal claim to unbounded patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

Full and explicit directions accompany the medicines.

Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character furnished on application, with hundreds of thousands of living witnesses and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, etc. The proprietor has never resorted to the publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

Henry T. Helmbold's Genuine Preparations.

BRIGHTON CATTLE MARKET,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING WEDNESDAY, APRIL 12.
[Reported for the Boston Journal:]

At market for the current week—Cattle 1988; Sheep and Lambs 5910; Swine 8800; number of Western Cattle 1843; Eastern Cattle 14; Northern Cattle and Working Oxen 131. Cattle left over from last week —.

Prices Beef Cattle—Extra $11 50 @ $12 00; first quality $ 0 50 @ $11 25; second quality $10 00 @ $10 25; third quality $ 8 50 @ $9 75; poorest grade of coarse Oxen, Bulls, &c., $6 00 @ $8 00 ℔ cwt, (the total weight of hides, tallow and dressed beef.)

Brighton Hides 8c ℔ lb; Country Hides 7¼ @ 8c ℔ lb.

Brighton Tallow 6@6½c per lb; Country Tallow ¼@5½c ℔ lb.

Sheep and Lamb Skins $1 75 @2 50 each; Calf Skins 16 @ 18c ℔ lb.

The trade for Beef Cattle this week has been dull and prices lower than one week ago. The supply has been larger than the demand requires and the Beef trade of Boston has been very dull for several days past. Most of the Cattle came from the West and the quality was full as good as that of last week. There were but a few Cattle from Maine this week. 12c is the highest price for any large lots and but few sold at prices as high as that.

We quote extra and select lots $4 50 @ $8; ordinary $2 @ $4 ℔ head, or from 5 @ 9c ℔ lb. Most of the Western Sheep were taken at a commission. There was a fair supply of Northern Sheep in market. The quality mostly ordinary, and prices lower than they were one week ago.

Store Pigs—Wholesale 8 @ 10c ℔ lb; retail 8¾ @ 12c ℔ lb. Fat Hogs—7¼ @ 8c ℔ lb. The supply of Store Pigs in market was light. A part of them were from Canada and sell higher than those from the West.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

NEW FAMILY SINGER SEWING MACHINE

Has proved itself the best for all classes and kinds of operators and work.

All that persons need to do to satisfy themselves of this is to enquire of those who have used them the most.

They Hem, Braid, Tuck, Quilt, Cord, Embroider, Fringes, Ruffle, Fell, Puff, Gather, Fagot, Trim, Bind.

They are light running, easy to learn and keep in order and for durability unrivalled.

They will stitch equally well the heaviest beaver or the thinnest muslin, in fact they will do every useful work that mechanical skill has yet perfected in the Sewing art.

The celebrated Machines are Sold for Cash or on the Installment principle, as best suits convenience of the purchaser, at the Regular Agency for Portsmouth, Kittery, York, Eliot, Newcastle, Rye, Hampton, North Hampton, Hampton Falls, Greenland and Seabrook.

SCIENTIFIC AND POPULAR MEDICAL WORKS
—ON—
MANHOOD, WOMANHOOD AND NERVOUS DISEASES,
PUBLISHED BY THE
PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE,
No. 4 Bulfinch Street, Boston,
(Opposite Revere House.)
DR. W. H. PARKER, Assistant Physician.

Medical knowledge for everybody. 250,000 copies sold in two years.

A Book for every Man.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE, OR SELF-PRESERVATION. A Medical Treatise on the Cause and Cure of EXHAUSTED VITALITY, PREMATURE DECLINE IN MAN, NERVOUS AND PHYSICAL DEBILITY, HYPOCHONDRIA, and all other diseases arising from the ERRORS OF YOUTH, OR THE INDISCRETIONS OR EXCESSES of mature years. This is indeed a book for every man. Price only $1.00. 285 pages, bound in cloth.

A Book For Every Woman,

Entitled SEXUAL PHYSIOLOGY OF WOMAN, AND HER DISEASES; or, WOMAN TREATED OF PHYSIOLOGICALLY AND PATHOLOGICALLY, from JEANNY OUR AGE, with elegant ILLUSTRATIVE ENGRAVINGS. 350 pages, bound in beautiful French cloth. Price $2.00.

A Book for Everybody.

Flattered by the reception of, and great demand for, the above valuable and timely treatises, and also to meet a great need of the present age, the author has just published a new book, treating exclusively of NERVOUS AND MENTAL DISEASES. 150 pp. cloth. Price $1, or SENT FREE on receipt of $3 for the other two books, postpaid.

These are, beyond all comparison, the most extraordinary works on Physiology ever published. There is nothing whatever that the MARRIED OR SINGLE, of EITHER SEX, can either require or wish to know, but what is fully explained, and many matters of the most important and interesting character are introduced to which no allusion even can be found in any other works in our language. All the NEW DISCOVERIES of the author, whose experience in such as probably never before fell to the lot of any man, are given in full. No person should be without these valuable books.

"VALUABLE BOOKS.—We have received the valuable medical works published by the Peabody Medical Institute. These books are of actual merit, and should find a place in every intelligent family. They are not the cheap order of abominable trash, published by irresponsible parties, and purchased to gratify coarse tastes, but are written by a responsible professional gentleman of eminence, as a source of information on vital matters, concerning which lamentable ignorance exists. The important subjects presented are treated with delicacy, ability and care, and, as an appendix, many useful prescriptions for prevailing complaints are added."—Cape Republican, Lancaster, N. H.

"The author of these books is one of the most learned and popular physicians of the day, and is entitled to the gratitude of our race for these invaluable productions. It seems to be his aim to induce men and women to avoid the cause of those diseases to which they are subject, and he tells them just how and when to do it."—Chronicle, Farmington, Maine, Sept. 7, 1869.

Either book sent by mail on receipt of price.

N. B. The Author of the above-named medical works is the Chief Consulting Physician of the Peabody Medical Institute, and is so constantly employed in consultation with invalids from all parts of the country, that he has no time to attend to mere business details. Therefore all letters should be addressed to the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, or to Dr. W. H. PARKER, the Medical Assistant of the Author, and his Business Agent, who, as well as the Author himself, may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill, secrecy and experience. oct26 1yr

A GOOD OFFER TO THE
Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.
E. A. JOY
Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to bring in lots of work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing whether a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.

MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make the above generous offer.

His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an excellent judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the Agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the Best SEWING MACHINES may always be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 9 PLEASANT ST., nearly opposite the Post Office, Portsmouth, N. WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19, 1871.

THE TEMPERANCE CAUSE.

The recent defeat of four Republican representatives in our city and four in Rochester, has awakened an interest in this temperance question which promises important results. That one hundred men in Dover and fifty in Rochester could be found with manliness and independence enough of character, to break from their party and cast their votes against the caucus nominees at the risk of defeating the party in the State, was a result so unexpected that the party leaders were for a time paralyzed. They have recovered somewhat from their amazement and understand now that these men with their independent ballots are men whose entreaties and advice should be heeded. Had the Aldermen of this city enforced the law of the State for a year past there would have been no distinct temperance organization in Dover or in the County, and the Legislature would have been Republican. The Aldermen of Dover are responsible for this defeat of their party in this State, and none other. Col. Daniel Hall told them in the Aldermen's room over a year ago, that the party would be defeated, not because they enforced the law, but because they refused to do so. And it has turned out just as he predicted. The votes and the influence of the 100 men in Dover who voted for Comings at the March election, was of ten times the value to the party, of all the rum vote saved for James Pike in the State. These men voted as they prayed, as Cromwell's soldiers fought as they prayed, and no party can afford to lose such men or their votes. The sneers of cheap politicians and their toadies with the puerile wit and ribald billingsgate of men occupying stations in society which should teach them better, will not deter these men from voting as their conscience may dictate.—Dover Local Record.

The editor of the Record has no sympathy with the Republican party or its principles, and may well rejoice over the defeat of Republican candidates for the legislature, knowing that their defeat rendered a Democratic triumph a possibility. The one hundred and fifty men he speaks of were doubtless actuated by the best of motives, but must feel mortified now that they realize the mischief they have unwittingly done. They had it in their power to save the State, through its legislature, to the Republican party, which has done more for the temperance cause than any other political organization ever existing in New Hampshire. They chose to war upon their fellow believers in Republican principles, and the result is that the legislature is so evenly balanced that the repeal of the prohibition law is openly agitated, is even a possibility, and the fruits of past temperance victories are endangered.

The Republican party has had as much as it could stand under in this State, being exposed to the threats and and entreaties of extremists. These extremists have frightened themselves by insisting that the people shall adopt their views. Honest temperance men have now become satisfied that these extreme views are obnoxious to nine-tenths of the voters of the State.

To hope for any legislation favorable to temperance from the Democratic party is to hope in vain. The action of these extremists in the late campaign will convince Republicans as party men that they have gone far enough under such lead. A hundred and fifty Democrats cannot be found in all New Hampshire who would bolt a nominee because he is a rum drinker or a free rum advocate. When the Democratic party as a whole takes up and champions the temperance cause, as the Republican party has done, we shall expect the heavens to fall, the sun and moon to merge in one, and copperhead editors to "tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth." Until that blissful era, it is the duty of true temperance men to throw off from their visual orbs any scales which may temporarily blind them, cease to be ungrateful to their truest friends, tried and never found wanting, and vote for the party which will best carry out their principles. The question resolves itself into one or two alternatives for such men as the Record calls manly and independent—"Will we keep what we have—or lose it, out of spite?" If their sense of duty is of the kind that will prefer no food except that which the stomach rejects, these men will be found next year striving as they did this year, to defeat the Republican party.

—The Nebraska State lunatic asylum was burned on Sunday night. Loss, two lives and $150,000.

—On the contract for one hundred concerts in America, Nilsson cleared $120,000 and Max Strakosch $20,000.

—A private letter brings news of an accident on board the United steamer Worcester, the vessel which took out the Boston supplies for the French, by which four men were scalded to death and three others badly burned.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, on the 17th, Mr. Stewart offered an amendment to the Constitution requiring every State to maintain a system of free schools. Mr. Blair objected and it was withdrawn.

Mr. Anthony was elected President pro tem.

The House adopted a resolution requesting the President to organize a commission of five army and navy officers to examine and report to Congress, on or before the 20th of December next—first, on the propriety of removing the Brooklyn navy yard and selling the land connected with the yard and the marine hospital, and the probable sum to be realized therefrom; second, on the propriety of constructing a new yard, where the same should be located and its estimated cost; third, on the propriety of building a new marine hospital in case of the removal of the one at Brooklyn, where it should be located and the estimated cost thereof.

On the 18th, Senator Fenton made a personal explanation in the Senate, branding as false the intimation that he influenced Mr. Winans, of the New York Senate, in his desertion from the Republican and enlistment in the Democratic ranks.

Twenty masked men recently entered Bellair, Lancaster county, South Carolina, and killed Isaac Cowles, a colored mechanic, and dragged Lawson H. Long, a merchant, from his house, and inflicted two hundred blows, and ordered him to leave the State within fifteen days. Cowles and Long were both prominent republicans.

—Those who believed that the solemn agreement of the republicans in the New York assembly would deter one of the signers from selling out to the democrats, are to be credited with an extraordinary degree of innocence. As soon as there was any occasion for a republican vote it was obtained, and not only one but four. Mr. Winans of Chautauqua announced his purpose to support the democrats on every vote, from the high public motive that the party was entitled to a constitutional majority. The absurdity of the reason assigned is only equalled by the audacity of the member giving it. Three other republicans had the grace to hold their tongues when they gave their affirmative votes, and six others who had signed the agreement were absent. The name of every republican in the house was appended to that agreement, and it is impossible to believe that they were placed there without authority. The four who voted with the democrats were C. H. Delano of Essex, James H. Pierce of Franklin, L. B. Prince of Queens and Orange S. Winans of Chautauqua. The last named only stated any "consideration" which induced him to vote for the bill, and it is just possible he did not tell the whole story. His three associates voted against the bill, but supported the demand for the previous question. The penalty of this defection is a public denunciation. We shall watch the caucuses and conventions in Chautauqua county next fall to ascertain the effect of such punishment on the culprit. In times past it has not been very severe.—Boston Advertiser.

Selfwilled.—There is a story of an obstinate deacon, who was always on the wrong side, and ludicrously stubborn. When the temperance reform was in full feather, and the question was discussed in the church of which he was an officer, he, as a matter of course, opposed it. He would not sign the pledge; he would not countenance its advocacy in the pulpit; he would not consent to its presentation in the Sunday School; he objected vehemently to the distribution of temperance tracts. One day, in the presence of a full house, one of the members of the church made the case of the deacon the subject of prayer. He said: "O Lord! if thy servant, our brother, continues his opposition to us, wilt thou, in thy tender mercies, remove him from the church militant below to the church triumphant above?" "I won't go!" thundered the indignant and obstinate deacon.

Doctoring for Rheumatism.—An old lady followed up an Episcopal bishop, as he travelled through his diocese, and was confirmed several times before she was detected. She wished the ordinance repeated, because she had understood it was "good for the rheumatism."

—A "man-fly" at Trieste will walk head downward on the theater ceiling no more. He fell.

—A dressmaker in Louisville has just been discovered to be very handsome and graceful, although no one ever remarked it before. It is a singular coincidence that she has just inherited a large fortune.

—A man was arrested in Buffalo last week for stealing a barrel of salt. When arraigned in the court he pleaded destitution. "You couldn't eat salt," said the judge. "Oh, yes I could, with the meat I intended to steal." This reply cost him six months. The judge had no appreciation of delicate humor.

—This chap hates to see the deaf things suffer with toothache: "Pulverized alum and common salt put on a piece of cotton and chucked into a hollow tooth will shut up its aching so quick that you will want to hug us for telling you; but you cannot unless you have a certificate of good moral character, are a married woman, and over twenty-five.

The Reason.—Some of the copperheads have had a good deal to say about the rascality of admitting the ignorant freedmen of the South to the franchise, arguing that their ignorance unfits them for using the ballot with discretion; this is probably the reason that the ex-rebels at the South show so much activity and enterprise in burning school-houses and flogging school-ma'ams — they are anxious to have the negroes educated, so that they can vote with discrimination. The people of the North do not understand Southern usages and reasoning, that is all the trouble.

Of Course.—R. T. Merrick, the Democratic candidate for Congress from the District of Columbia, is an old Chicago rebel, who had to leave that city early in the war for his ultra treasonable proclivities. He said among other things that he was in favor of drawing a line of blood between the North and the South, but he wanted to see it drawn through the streets of the north. He now fights the Ku-Klux bill. How natural!

Father Purcell of the Catholic Church of Pittsfield, Mass., on a recent Sabbath read the names of certain Democratic candidates for office from the altar, and advised the members of his congregation to give that ticket their support. The opposition of the democracy to the introduction of religion into politics and of politics into the church, is well known.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

What Is It?

Many, many people suffer from they know not what. They are not sick—they are not well. There is no name for it. It is simply weakness—a breaking of the vital forces. Whatever its causes, (and they are innumerable,) its symptoms are in the main the same. Among the most prominent are extreme lassitude, loss of appetite, loss of flesh, and great mental depression. Indigestion and a stomach cough are also frequently concomitants of this distressing state of body and of mind. The common remark in relation to persons in such a condition is, that they are consumptive. Now, what these unfortunates really want is vigor, vital strength, and, as certainly as dawn succeeds darkness, they can recuperate their systems and regain perfect health by resorting to HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS. It is as clear that a life-reviving tonic is required in such cases, as that the dying flame of an empty lamp requires to be revived with a new supply of oil. Perfectly pure and innocuous, containing nothing but the most genial vegetable extracts, and combining the three grand elements of a stomachic, an alterative, and a genial invigorant, Hostetter's Bitters are suitable to all constitutions, and are as applicable to the diseases and disabilities of the feebler sex as to those of men.

IMPROVEMENT OF MERRIMAC RIVER.

U. S. Engineer's Office, City Hall, Boston, Mass., April 14th, 1871.

PROPOSALS will be received at this office until the 15th of May, 1871, for the excavation of a channel through the Upper and Lower Falls, and the removal of other obstructions in the Merrimac River, above Haverhill. The work will be commenced at the Lower Falls, where the channel commenced, to be excavated last year will be completed; then a channel will be excavated through the Upper Falls, after which such other obstructions as may be deemed by the Engineer in charge most dangerous to navigation will be removed.

The channel is to be 4 feet deep at low water, and 60 feet wide. The material to be excavated consists of large and small boulders, mixed with clay and gravel.

The proposals must state the price per cubic yard for the material excavated, to be measured in the dumping scows.

The total amount available for the contract is $25 000.

PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF HAMLET'S SOLILOQUY.

To insure or not to insure? That is the question.
Whether t'will be nobler for my family to suffer
The stings and arrows of outrageous fortune
Or take a policy against those dangers,
And, by insuring, end them? To fret, to fear,
No more; and by a policy to end
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to. Yes, my application's
Devoutly to be wished; apply, insure,
And pay the premium: ay—there's the rub
For in that time what premiums may come
Before I shuffle off this mortal coil
Does make me pause, tightens my purse,
And makes me rather pay the bills I have,
Than fly to others I know not of.
Thus does meanness make brutes of us all.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

Real Estate, &c., at Auction.

An entertainment consisting of vocal and orchestra music is to be given at the rooms of the Young People's Christian Union this evening, commencing at 8 o'clock.

A DISPATCH was received by City Marshal Kent from Exeter, Tuesday evening, stating that Charles H. Bancroft, who robbed the Atlantic House at Rye Beach, has been sentenced to two years in State Prison.

PROF. Tourjee of Boston, the distinguished musical director, by special invitation, is expected to spend the coming Sabbath in Portsmouth, and speaks in one or more of our churches on "Music as an element of worship," and will hold a union "praise meeting" in the evening.

THE Portland Argus of March 17th says the Adelphians gave the previous evening, "one of the most happy entertainments that could be desired. * * * It is really a remarkable company—brim full of fun, wit and talent—and capable of carrying through, in a way to delight, all that they assume to. This is strong language, we know, but the company warrants it."

WE have received from a correspondent at Kittery an account of a visit to "the higher department in School Dist. No. 9, Kittery Foreside," in which he pays a high compliment to the efficiency of the teacher and the progress of the pupils in algebra, geometry, history, penmanship, &c. He also notices the presentation to Miss Shapleigh, the teacher, of a copy of Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, by a member of the first-class on behalf of the school—a very pleasant episode on an "examination day."

Judging of the efficiency of the school from our correspondent's account, we do not marvel that the Kittery democracy of Dist. No. 9 desire to get rid of it—we have already announced their resolution to sell the school-house—as it is certainly an anti-democratic institution, as is everything else which tends to enlighten and educate the people; but they are taking a much more roundabout way to get rid of the object of their detestation and terror than their "southern brethren" would do under the same circumstances—the latter would simply burn the school-house and shoot or whip (perhaps both) the teacher, and have no more fooling about it. Perhaps the Kittery copperheads will have grace enough to thank us for this suggestion.

SPRING is fairly "open," whether it closes on us again or not. A large amount of ploughing has been done in this vicinity, and early crops put in the ground; and in one garden at least, peas that were planted some weeks ago have been up for several days. The grass begins to show green through the russet jacket the fields have worn during the winter; and the season is probably full two weeks in advance of average Springs. The frost, which penetrated to an unusual depth during the cold term, did much less execution than usual in the line of "heaving" the ground and stone walls, or in making mud, in coming out; which was perhaps owing to the unusually dry state of the ground when it was frozen.

But though winter and wintry weather seem to have left us, it may not be advisable to stow away great-coats just yet, or to bring out straw hats in a great hurry; there is such a thing as East wind about here, sometimes; and when it comes, thick clothing is as much needed as in December. And snow-storms too, have occurred, even later in the season than now; but we hope to see no more of them before next December.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

The French Roman Catholics of Nashua have purchased the Episcopal church in that city.

Sandwich claims to be the banner town for maple-sugar making. The selectmen have taken an inventory of the article, and find the amount to be 16,800. As a specimen of sugar-making one farmer made 3300 pounds, another 2700; and many from 800 to 2000 pounds.

The Boston and Maine Railroad is surveying a second route from Salmon Falls through North Berwick to Wells. It is three-quarters of a mile shorter than by the way of South Berwick.

—A St. Petersburg banking-house has asked to be appointed an agent for the new loan and has subscribed for ten millions.

—Mr. Forbes undertook to deliver a temperance lecture in Cheyenne, but the people just took it as a personal insult, and shot him, right off.

Our Correspondence.

EPPING, April 18th.

Messrs. Editors:—In common with your readers, we are highly pleased in this vicinity, to read the "locals" and letters from the different towns of the county.

The town of Epping, though making but modest pretentions upon the county map, is nevertheless one of the busiest towns in this section, and has increased in wealth, enterprise and industry, probably faster in the past two or three years than any portion of the county. While the south and southeasterly portions of the town may not be called really strong, rich land, still it is tilled by a most enterprising set of farmers, who have not only enjoyed many advantages, but have grown wealthy at the same time.

There are three fine streets leading from the Corner, each claiming the most agricultural advantages. The road leading to West Epping has many good farms upon it, while the little village there is a busy one. Dow & Shepard are doing a large business there, keeping a large general assortment of goods, suited to the wants of the community. The Folsoms have grain, plaster, saw and shingle mills here, doing a good business. Stephen Holt, Esq., the leading agriculturist of this section has a large farm here, with an extensive stock of cattle of improved breeds, and offers proof that money can be made by farming.

Mr. Holt is a gentleman of fine culture and education, and although rather diffident and retiring in his manner, still his opinion is highly valued, if it can be obtained! He is one of those practical farmers, who entirely ignore politics, never intrudes his opinions, though when aroused he has proved himself to be one of the finest speekers in this section of the state. His manner, when thoroughly aroused, is said to resemble that of Judge Dudley of Raymond, a Judge who clothed strong ideas in most beautiful language.

The Prescott Road is lined by good farms and intelligent farmers, with land, which though broken, is among the best in town.

Red Oak Hill is a beautiful eminence of splendid soil. Samuel Lawrence, Esq., a wealthy citizen of 92 years, still robust and straight as an arrow, lives on the summit of this hill. Mr. Lawrence has, while upon the Jury, had such advocates as Daniel Webster, Marston, Bartlett, the Sullivans, and others of less note, conduct cases before him, all the little incidents of which Mr. Lawrence takes pleasure in relating at this late day. He is a wonderful example of what thorough honestly, pure air, and temperance in all respects, will do for mankind.

North River Road is another beautiful highway, leading from the centre of the town. Beautiful and highly cultivated fields are upon either side of the road, while the appearance of the buildings and everything else shows that an agricultural community can be a wealthy one, with good soil for a basis.

At the Corner are two country stores, doing good business. Messrs. Bunker and Pike are enterprising merchants, who by fair dealings have gained the confidence of the entire community.

With a large woolen mill in full blast, a fine apothecary shop, one of the finest grain mills in the country, two first class blacksmith shops, where work is not only skillfully but most expeditiously done, with two lumber mills moved by water, and another by steam, you may be sure the Corner is a busy place—to say nothing of the shoe factory, soon to employ 300 operatives.

A thriving farmers' club is already established here, which has excited much interest. At our last meeting Mr. Holt gave a most interesting address upon the progress of farming in Epping, and though the picture was not quite so brightly drawn as some of our farmers would have it, still none could deny the truth so skillfully portrayed. Captain John Willey also spoke most feelingly, and at times eloquently. The Captain used to fight the enemy in his younger days, but having exchanged the sword for the pruning hook, has become not only one of our most enterprising farmers, but seeks to make all better by precept and example. Upon the whole, we feel proud of our town, its people and its resources, confidently believing it will compare favorably with the sister towns of our county. EPPING.

TRY IT!

How well we remember in days that are gone,
The feelings we felt as we saw the cork drawn—
The disgust—the recoil
From "Cod Liver Oil,"
Dealt out to poor souls in the days that are gone!
But who could complain
Of this to be ta'en?
It swallows as easy as sparkling Champagne—
Does "Marvins' Deodorized Oil."

TO THE LADIES.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying out all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfabl6

ONE HALF OF HOUSE, No. 13 Washington Street. ap18tf

SAFE AND PROFITABLE.

THE CENTRAL RAILROAD CO. OF IOWA,

have now built and equipped, in first-class manner, about

180 MILES OF RAILROAD,

which will complete their entire line, with the exception of laying the track on twenty-five miles, which is already graded. They will thus open

The First Through Line Across the State

from north to south, and, by making a slight detour at one point, they will give

DIRECT COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ST. LOUIS AND ST. PAUL.

This line of Railroad will have very special advantages for both local and through business, besides such superior railroad connections as will secure to it a large portion of the carrying trade of the Great Northwest. The

First Mortgage

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

which are issued upon this road, are limited in amount to $10,000 per mile (while many roads issue from $20,000 to $40,000,) and are offered at 90 and accrued interest, in currency. About two millions and a half of these bonds have already been disposed of, leaving but a small balance unsold, which are being rapidly taken.

The most experienced financiers agree that First Mortgage Bonds, to a limited amount, upon a finished railroad, which is well located for business, are one of the very safest forms of investment.

Parties desiring to secure a first-class security, based upon a railroad practically done, and in the hands of leading capitalists who have a large pecuniary and business interest in its success, will do well to apply at the office of the Company, or any of its advertised agents, for a pamphlet and map, showing the characteristics of the enterprise.

Holders of Government Bonds may exchange them for Central Iowas at a large present profit, beside a handsome increase of interest for a long term of years. Parties making such exchange will receive for each $1,000 Bond a $1,000 Central Iowa Bond, and the following difference in cash (less the accrued interest in currency upon the latter bond,) and in annual interest, this calculation being based upon market prices of December 27th, 1870:—

			Difference in Cash.	Incr'd annual Int. Exchange. upon investment.

7-30 GOLD LOAN

OF THE

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 240 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 130 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 443 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to 550 miles. 1.00.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend as a Profitable and perfectly Safe Investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run; bear Seven and Three-Tenths per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on

23,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 560 Acres for each $1,00 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. Tax; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—The Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable at TEN PER CENT. ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, accessible to the people, which is more PROFITABLE OR SAFE.

EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

NEW PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

Harpers' Monthly for May concludes the forty-second volume. The Publishers have fulfilled the promise made by them at the commencement of this Volume—that it should surpass its predecessors. "The Monarch of Mountains" is a paper on Mont Blanc, and contains a thrilling narrative of the adventurous attempts made to accomplish the ascent of that mountain. The Fourth Paper of the "Florida Reef" series is occupied with an account of the Dry Tortugas in 1863. "The Story of Punch and Judy" is a complete version of this world-renowned puppet-drama, with illustrations by George Cruikshank. "The American Baron," with its characteristic illustrations, is still continued. "Frederick the Great" is concluded. Mr. Moncure D. Conway contributes an interesting and timely paper, entitled "Religious Relics in London." "Anteros" and "Anne Furness" are continued. The shorter stories in this number are "A Song in Gold," by W. S. Newell; "Archie Hutchington," a character-sketch, by D. R. Castleton; "Dead Headed," humorous, by Miss S. C. Woolsey; and "The Nobler Love," by Justin McCarthy. The poetry of this number consists of contributions by Elizabeth Akers Allen, Julia C. R. Dorr, and Mrs. R. H. Stoddard. The "Easy Chair" gives a suggestive essay on literature as a profession; treats of the results of the rapid communication established between America and Europe, and especially its effect upon New York as a metropolis. For sale by E. G. Adams, Foster Shores & Co., and J. H. Foster.

Scribner's Monthly begins its second volume with a number (for May) which is quite remarkable for the surpassing excellence of its engravings and the extraordinary interest of its contents. The head of Geo. MacDonald, which forms the frontispiece, serves to call renewed attention to his fascinating story of Wilfrid Cumbermede. The leading illustrated article, by Gov. Langford, gives an account of some of "The Wonders of the Yellowstone." Other illustrated articles are a curious paper on the "Aye-Aye," by Burt G. Wilder; a translation and a facsimile of the famous "Moabite Stone," recently discovered, and which dates back 900 years before Christ; and the beginning of an interesting series of biographical sketches of "Living American Artists," by D. O'C. Townley, with finely executed potraits of A. B. Durand and D. Huntington. Mrs. Oliphant, author of Miss Marjoribanks, &c., one of the finest and best of living story-writers, has written especially for Scribner's novelette of remarkable freshness and interest, which begins with this number, and has the taking title of "Norah: The story of a Wild Irish Girl." The Editorial Department is unusually full, and contains articles on "The European Change," "Compulsory Education," "The International Commission," "Commissioner Weil's Report," "A Phase of Child-Life," "The Art of Exasperation," "Sourness and Success," "The Modern Maying," "English Water-Colors," "Nilsson," "The Dramatic Season," "Darwinism," &c., &c. A clever design by Bush, "Five Minutes for Refreshments," forms the last page of a brilliant number.

Peterson's Magazine for May has an exquisite frontispiece, Claribel. Its stories are always in good taste and its fashions of the earliest and latiest styles. Chas. J. Peterson, Phila., Pa.

Report of the Outrages in Southern States, by the select committee of the Senate; received from Senator Patterson.

Arthur's Home Magazine for May has for a frontispiece "Dust in the Eye." The stories are of the usual high standard and the fashion plates and Spring styles in bonnets and dresses will interest the ladies. T. S. Arthur & Sons, Phila., Pa.

Godey's Lady's Book for May has a handsome steel plate, entitled "Rustic Gallantry." A seven-figure colored fashion-plate comes next, with the latest designs of dresses. The large extension sheet contains thirty-one engravings of dresses for ladies, bonnets, children's dresses, and many articles for the toilet. There is also a page of designs for dressing children's hair. In the Work Department the article on making children's clothing is continued. Many other instructions are given for useful work. Marion Harland's story is completed in this number. Louis A. Godey, Phila., Pa.

The American Journal of the Medical Sciences, edited by Isaac Hays, M. D. Henry C. Lea, Publisher, Phila., Pa. The Journal is published quarterly and should be in every family.

Oliver Optic's Magazine, for May, has its usual interesting table of contents. Oliver Optic's story, "Cringle and Crosstree," Elijah Kellogg's story, "The Spark of Genius," and Sophie May's story, "The Doctor's Daughter," are all continued, and are all illustrated. Then we have the second of "The Vacation in Petrolia" papers, written by a resident in the Oil Regions, and exceedingly interesting. Geo. S. Burleigh writes of "Diamond Cutting." Lee & Shepard, publishers, Boston.

—Charles Reade enjoys a peculiar distinction among authors. There is not, probably, another writer of fiction in the world, whose work would have such a popular value in this country as to induce a large publishing house to produce it in instalments three weeks after the same chapters have been published by another. We saw this done in the case of Dickens' "Edwin Drood," for which Messrs. James R. Osgood & Co., made an arrangement similar to that under which they are now publishing "A Terrible Temptation;" but, after Dickens, Charles Reade is alone equal to supplying such an inducement. It is no less creditable to the literary morality than to the enterprise of James R. Osgood & Co., that those publishers offer a standing rebuke to the prevailing American sin of piracy. By paying Mr. Reade a large sum for advance sheets of his new novel, they afford an honest remuneration to the author, and at the same time are able to present it to the American public fresh and three weeks in advance of its arrival in this country in any other form. There is no doubt that this enterprise pays; for, aside from the public appreciation of fair dealing, Mr. Reade's fiction excites so ravenous an appetite in its readers that no one who gets it fresh in Every Saturday will be content to await its slower piratical publication elsewhere. Boston Post.

Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining its patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and trustworthy practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDWARD BATES, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

Consumption,

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE.

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known, and indisputably proved means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr Schenck has in his proved medicines that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self-asserting, self-convincing.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here, then comes the enfeebling result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, regenerative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsibly, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now properly going, without its previous torpitudes. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perfume its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and rejects the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gathering it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten tissue that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck makes the personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words:

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption; confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live. A week then like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public. I began to improve, and perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them permeate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. As the matter ceased to be subsided, my cough, fever, pains and night sweats all began to lessen, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty I could restrain it from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since.

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor; "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only thirty-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

The directions for the use of these medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow those directions, and the Schenck's will do the rest, excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniment than the simple instructions that accompany them: First, create appetite. Of returning health hunger is the most welcome symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the despairing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweats abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation: while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylactic against consumption in any of its forms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

FIRST MORTGAGE

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX,

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established character equal to any mortgage issued, attested by the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market price—thus placing them in the same favorable position as our permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.

These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands, without competition, all the traffic of Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota—stretching from Cedar Rapids and Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 90 miles.

The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists that they will more than double within the ensuing year.

A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company obligating the latter to invest 40 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Road in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be adapted for stock, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder, at his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the interest on his investment.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 9½ per cent. interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Government pays at present prices, besides leaving a handsome gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.

All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Exchange. 6MWS

DOES BABY WALK IN HEAVEN TO-DAY?

BY EARL MARBLE.

A year ago the baby came,
When robins chirped their first spring lays,
Kindling anew the nuptial flame,
That guides our feet through earth's dim ways.

A year ago her baby smile
Made fairer seem e'en days of spring,
And in our happy hearts the while Caused new-born melody to ring.

A few short weeks our home she cheered
With all her winsome baby ways,
And to her we grew so endeared,
The fleet-winged weeks seemed gliding days.

But ere the robins went, that sang
First on that April morn so bright,
Our heart-strings severed with a pang,
And loosed the babe to realms of light.

Another April now has come;
But of the babe a year ago,
We only have a record dumb,
And memories that haunt us so.

Ah! were she with us this spring day,
As robins chirp their lays once more,—
The babe that then so helpless lay,—
Her feet would patter 'round the floor.

And daily now the question steals
Upon us in our lonely way,
As each bowed soul a dull pang feels,
"Does baby walk in heaven to-day?"

Instead of little tiny feet
Soft pattering around the floor,
Do angels have their noiseless beat,
And all those who have "gone before?"

Does baby walk in heaven to-day,
And do the feet grow weary e'er,
And does she have her childish play,
As though she still were with us here?

Does baby walk in heaven to-day?
Ah, yes! above the fogs of earth,
And freed from cumbering house of clay,
By this her second glorious birth.

How rapidly her feet shall climb,
The upward path of progress, aye,
Where we, when done with things of time,
Shall walk with her that glorious day.

THE ELEPHANT AND MUTINEERS.

Some time ago a very fine specimen of the Asiatic elephant was landed at Southampton. The animal was an exceedingly fine one, standing several feet in height, with large tusks, and between three and four years of age. It was shipped at Bombay, and was under the charge of a native of Sumatra, named Ramee Jhandeegar, (familiary known on board ship by the term "Ramy,") to whom the elephant was much attached, and who had brought the huge brute under perfect subjection.

During the first few days after the ship had cleared the land, everything went on well; but stormy weather coming on, a spirit of disobedience was displayed by some of the crew. The would-be mutineers assembled together, one evening, near the wheelhouse on the main-deck, close to where the elephant was chained, and held council as to their future proceedings. The keeper Ramy, lying at the side of the animal, feigned sleep, although he paid attention to what the wicked men were saying. He heard the whole details of a plot to murder the captain, and a great portion of the crew and passengers; and he ascertained that he himself was one of those who were to be massacred. The onslaught was to be made when the watch was changed that very night.

No time was to be lost in warning the captain of the danger; but it was utterly impossible for Ramy to proceed to the state-cabin without incurring the greatest possible risk, inasmuch as he would have been compelled to have passed through the midst of the mutineers; and they certainly would not have scrupled in killing at once one whom they had themselves selected as a victim. The wily keeper, however, took a wiser course; and as it turned out, a very serviceable one.

Noiselessly unfastening the chain which bound the elephant's legs, Ramy set the animal at liberty; and, springing to his feet in an instant, he bounded into the midst of the mutineers, followed by the elephant. On his giving a signal to the intelligent creature, it laid about it right and left with its trunk, and the astonished sailors were quickly thrown down on the deck, wounded, bleeding, and shouting loudly for mercy. The captain, hearing the disturbance, was soon on the spot; and having been made acquainted with the facts of the case, caused the mutineers to be placed in irons, to be brought to justice at the first port at which they might touch. The wounds caused by the animal's trunk were frightful.

This elephant gave many other proofs, on the voyage, of his intelligence and sagacity. On one occasion, during a heavy gale of wind, he saved a man from a watery grave, by seizing him by his jacket, just as he was slipping from off the bulwarks; and on another he prevented the first mate of the vessel from being severely bitten by a ferocious mastiff belonging to one of the passengers. The dog was flying at the throat of the man, when his spring was arrested by the elephant, which, taking firm hold of him with his trunk, hurled him over the side of the ship into the ocean.—Early Days.

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

All the NEW DISCOVERIES of the author, whose experience is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any man, are given in full. No person should be without these valuable books.

"VALUABLE BOOKS.—We have received the valuable medical works published by the Peabody Medical Institute. These books are of actual merit, and should find a place in every intelligent family. They are not the cheap order of abominable trash, published by irresponsible parties, and purchased to gratify coarse tastes, but are written by a responsible professional gentleman of eminence, as a source of instruction on vital matters, concerning which lamentable ignorance exists. The important subjects presented are treated with delicacy, ability and care, and, as an appendix, many useful prescriptions for prevailing complaints are added."—Coos Republican, Lancaster, N. H.

"The author of these books is one of the most learned and popular physicians of the day, and is entitled to the gratitude of our race for these invaluable productions. It seems to be his aim to induce men and women to avoid the cause of those diseases to which they are subject, and he tells them just how and when to do it."—Chronicle, Farmington, Maine, Sept. 7, 1870.

Either book sent by mail on receipt of price.

N. B. The Author of the above-named medical works is the Chief Consulting Physician of the Peabody Medical Institute, and is so constantly employed in consultation with invalids from all parts of the country, that he has no time to attend to mere business details. Therefore all letters should be addressed to the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, or to Dr. W. H. PARKER, the Medical Assistant of the Author, and his Business Agent, who as well as the Author himself, may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill, secrecy and experience. oct26lyr

A GOOD OFFER TO THE

Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.

E. A. JOY

Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to bring in pieces of work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing whether a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.

MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make the above generous offer.

His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an excellent judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the Agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the Best SEWING MACHINES are always to be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 9 PLEASANT St., nearly opposite the Post Office; Portsmouth, N. THURSDAY, APRIL 20, 1871.

COUNTING UNHATCHED DEMOCRATIC CHICKENS.

The hopeful Democracy had a consultation meeting at Concord on the 17th, which was attended by the prominent leaders of their own and the Labor Reform parties. It was to be a secret affair, and the political situation was talked over with a feeling of security which seems to have been too general. The Boston Journal's correspondent says that after the appointment of a committee to present a list of candidates for various offices, "the meeting went from labor to refreshment, and judging from the looks of some of the gentlemen (on the following day) it may reasonably be inferred that the physical wants of those in attendance were pretty strongly fortified in a direction that was not very creditable to them." This may account for the fact that a leaky Democrat has been found, whose tongue was so loose that the proceedings of the meeting slipped out and are made public.

It seems that Harry Bingham was the chief spokesman of the evening. He was of the opinion that the vacancy in the 10th Senatorial district, caused by the death of S. P. Thrasher, could be filled by "any eligible person in that district;" his views were that the legislature could choose a man who had not received a single vote for Senator.

The fact is that there are but two eligible persons in that district, as will be seen by reference to Article XXXIV of the State Constitution, which reads as follows:—

And in case there shall not appear to be a Senator elected by a majority of votes for any district, the deficiency shall be supplied in the following manner; viz., the members of the house of representatives, and such senators as shall be declared elected, shall take the names of the two persons having the highest number of votes in the District, and out of them elect, by joint ballot, the senator wanted for such district; and in this manner all such vacancies shall be filled up in every district of the state; and in like manner all vacancies in the senate, arising by death, removal out of the state, or otherwise, shall be supplied, as soon as may be after such vacancies happen.

The established precedents show that former legislatures have found "eligible" candidates to fill senatorial vacancies only among "the two persons having the highest number of votes."

In 1828, Gen. James Poole, of Hanover, was elected Senator in District No. 11, beating Hon. James Minot, of Bristol, the Democratic candidate, who served the year before. Gen. Poole took his seat in June and served through that session. A short time after the close of the session he died of apoplexy (18th of July). At the November session following, the Legislature appointed a committee to report the names of the two constitutional candidates from whom the vacancy must be filled. They reported the names of Hon. James Minot, who ran closely up to General Poole at the March election, and Judge Samuel Burns of Rumney, who received one vote in March, and that the only scattering vote in the district. The Legislature went into convention and elected James Minot, he receiving 121 votes, and Samuel Burns 47.

At the March election in 1830, Mr. John Chadwick, of Middleton, was elected Senator from District No. 5, beating his competitor, David Barker, Jr., the candidate of the federalists. On the 1st of May following, Mr. Chadwick was appointed Sheriff of Strafford County, and accepted the place, thus creating a vacancy in the District. When the Legislature met in convention to fill the vacancy, it was found that the two highest candidates were David Barker, Jr., and Henry B. Rust, who had received 57 votes in March. The Legislature elected Rust to fill the vacancy, he receiving 139 votes to Barker 93.

In 1838, Samuel B. Dyer, of Loudon, was elected Senator in District No. 4. On the 12th of June following, a letter of resignation was received from him, written in Ohio, to which State he had removed, either before or after his election. It was found that the two constitutional candidates from whom the Legislature must elect were Thomas D. Merrill of Epsom, who ran against Dyer, and Amos Cogswell, of Canterbury, who received 11 votes at the March election. The Legislature elected Amos Cogswell, in convention, he receiving 137 votes to Thomas D. Merrill 114, and took his seat.

In 1869, Prof. Sanborn, Democrat, was chosen Senator in District No. 11, and being ineligible, the next highest candidates, Alfred A. Cox, regular Republican candidate, and Cyrus Taylor, also a Republican, were balloted for. Taylor was elected by a vote of 188 to 44.

It may be of interest to some to state that Mr. Bingham is also of the opinion that it is not necessary for the Senate to organize before it meets the House in convention, to fill Senatorial vacancies. He advocates the choice of a Senator in the 1st district at the opening of the session, and hopes Mr. Marcy will be chosen. Then he fears after all that no Democrat may be an "eligible person" for Senator in the 10th District, and wants the vacancy to remain unfilled until near the close of the session, hoping thereby that the copperhead schemes may be crowded through both House.

But here again the Constitution interferes. We quote from Article LXVI:—

The order of elections shall be as follows:—

The vacancies in the Senate, if any, shall be first filled up. The Governor shall then be elected, provided there shall be no choice of him by the people, and afterwards the two houses shall proceed to fill up the vacancy, if any, in the Council.

The Democracy are great "sticklers" for "Constitutional rights," unless the Constitution interferes with their wishes—and we think will have their full measure of them at the coming session. They have shown their animus and propose a sweeping removal of Republican officials throughout the State; a reorganization of the Judiciary; amendments to the city charters of Portsmouth and Manchester; reconstruction of the Senatorial districts, and numerous other absurd schemes.

Their followers must take the will for the deed, however. They clearly intend to violate the Constitution, if they can. And here again the Constitution affords a means of defence against its violation. Should the Democratic managers succeed in their schemes, elect Mr. Marcy and prevent a choice in the 10th district, the Senate would consist of eleven members, six Democrats and five Republicans. By reference to the Constitution again, we find in Article XXXVII:—

"And not less than seven members of the Senate shall make a quorum for doing business."

To block their "little game," the five Republican Senators may withdraw, and there will be no quorum for the copperheads to pass a single one of their pet measures. There is no Winans among the Republican members of the State Senate!

The "triumphant" (?) Democracy are therefore harmless. If they have a majority in the House and on joint ballot, they cannot elect a Governor until the vacancies in both districts are filled! If they fill the vacancy in the 10th district, they must choose from two "eligible persons," Albina Hall of Croydon, the regular Republican candidate, and Alvah Smith of Lempster, a thorough going Republican, who received four votes for Senator. This would give the Republicans six members of the Senate—just half.

A majority of the members of the House, however, are Republicans, and we expect the election of Mr. Martin, the Republican candidate for Senator in this district, and Mr. Hall in the 10th. This would give us two majority in the Senate—and this will be the case if the Republican members elect of the legislature who are now alive, are in their seats from the commencement to the closing of the coming session of the legislature, and resist all attempts at bribery from the desperate copperhead leaders. Our latest advices give a Republican majority of three to seven in the House.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, April 18, after some debate the conference report on the Ku-Klux bill was adopted—32 to 16—and the report on the deficiency bill was rejected—26 to 26—and a new committee ordered.

The House refused leave to Mr. Butler to make a personal explanation.

Mr. Bell's resolution on the subject of taxation was debated during the morning hour. The Speaker appointed the special committees on outrages in the southern States and on the Mississippi levees.

BOSTON is exercised in its mind over the fact that when cattle are so long dead that the stench makes sick the butchers dressing the animals, the meat is sold in their markets, or taken to the sausage-makers. A butcher has just died from blood-poisoning, contracted while dressing an ox, part of whose flesh was taken to market. Sausages will not be a favorite dish in Boston for some time, probably.

THE United States frigate Tennessee went out of commision at Brooklyn at noon April 18, and all the seamen remaining on board were transferred to the receiving-ship Vermont. Over a hundred of the crew have deserted since the vessel's arrival, twenty sometimes leaving in a single squad.

FRANCE.

It is said that when Bismarck proposed armed intervention in the Paris troubles, Thiers threatened the instant dissolution of the government in case of any such action on his part.

Dombrouski's wound was a very dangerous one. Blanqui has been arrested near Toulouse and will be taken to Versailles.

The Prussians have ceased sending in provisions by the St. Denis gate, in pursuance of their agreement to assist the government to starve out the insurgents.

The commune is reported to have in its hands 38,000,000 francs cash, which have been paid by the Bank of France for unsold bonds of the city of Paris.

The communal elections were a perfect farce, less than one-tenth of the voters going to the polls. The plundering of churches is still kept up. Cluseret's reports say that everything is going on finely and their success is all that could be desired. The commune has again turned its attention to commercial questions and the payment of debts.

The iron-clad railway battery has been captured from the insurgents at Alscourbes.

The insurgents are using American shrapnel guns against the Versaillists, and they are terribly effective.

FIRES.—A kerosene oil train on the Erie Railway was burned on Monday; also a railway station at Ridgewood on the same road; a forest in New Jersey on Saturday, causing a loss of $200,000; several stores in Sodus, N. Y., on Monday night; also, a ladies seminary in North Granville, loss $25,000; Pier 44, North River, N. Y., loss $40,000; and a hotel in Galesburg, Illinois. The latter set fire to an adjoining block of stores, causing a loss of $100,000 and probably of two lives.

SEVEN men, four whites and three blacks, were recently discovered on the shore of Deep Creek, Eastern Virginia, drowned. All were tied together, and each had his hands tied behind his back.

MARINE CHRONICLE.

PORT OF PORTSMOUTH.

Sld April 19th, Sch Patriot, White, from Newcastle for Grand Banks.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

What Is It?

Many, many people suffer from they know not what. They are not sick—they are not well. There is no name for it. It is simply weakness—a breaking of the vital forces. Whatever its causes, (and they are innumerable,) its symptoms are in the main the same. Among the most prominent are extreme lassitude, loss of appetite, loss of flesh, and great mental depression. Indigestion and a stomach cough are also frequently concomitants of this distressing state of body and of mind. The common remark in relation to persons in such a condition is, that they are consumptive. Now, what these unfortunates really want is vigor, vital strength, and, as certainly as dawn succeeds darkness, they can recuperate their systems and regain perfect health by resorting to HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS. It is as clear that a life-reviving tonic is required in such cases, as that the dying flame of an empty lamp requires to be revived with a new supply of oil. Perfectly pure and innocuous, containing nothing but the most genial vegetable extracts, and combining the three grand elements of a stomachic, an alterative, and a genial invigorant, Hostetter's Bitters are suitable to all constitutions, and are as applicable to the diseases and disabilities of the feeble sex as to those of men.

FIRST MORTGAGE

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX,

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established value equal to any mortgage issue dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market price—thus placing them on the same basis for temporary or permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.

These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands, without competition, all the traffic of Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota—shortening the distance from St. Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 90 miles.

The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists that they will more than double within the ensuing year.

A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company obligating the latter to invest 50 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Road in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the Bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stock, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder, at his option, a share in the excess of earnings over the interest obligation.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 5½ per cent. interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Governments pay at present price, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for reversement.

All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. f24dWaS

IMPROVEMENT OF MERRIMAC RIVER.

U. S. ENGINEER'S OFFICE, CITY HALL, BOSTON, MASS., April 14th, 1871.

PROPOSALS will be received at this office until the 15th of May, 1871, for the excavation of a channel through the Upper and Lower Falls, and the removal of other obstructions in the Merrimac River, above Haverhill. The work will be commenced at the Lower Falls, where the channel commenced to be excavated last year will be completed; then a channel will be excavated through the Upper Falls, after which such other obstructions as shall be deemed by the Engineer in charge more dangerous to navigation will be removed.

The channel is to be 4 feet deep at low water, and 60 feet wide. The material to be excavated consists of large and small boulders, mixed with clay and gravel.

The proposals must state the price per cubic yard for the material excavated, to be measured in the dumping scows.

The total amount available for the contract is $25,000. J. G. FOSTER,

PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF

HAMLET'S SOLILOQUY.

To insure or not to insure? That is the question. Whether 'twill be nobler for my family to suffer The stings and arrows of outrageous fortune Or take a policy against those dangers, And, by insuring, end them? To fret, to fear, No more; and by a policy to end The heartache and the thousand natural shocks That this is heir to. 'Tis a consummation, my application's Devoutly to be wished; apply, insure, And pay the premium: ay—there's the rub For in that time what premiums may come Before I shuffle off this mortal coil Does make me pause, tightens my purse, And makes me rather pay the bills I have Than fly to others I know not of. Thus does meanness make brutes of us all.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

Notice—Clarinda Brown.
Notice—S. S. Frye.
Wanted—A Boy or Young Man.

SCHOONER Cicero, which has been undergoing repairs at this port, has reloaded her cargo and sailed for New York on Wednesday.

PAYMASTERS Williams and Guild, now on duty at this Naval Station, have been advanced ten numbers each, for distinguished conduct in battle.

STEAMER Enterprise has arrived at Fort Constitution with stone for the new Whales' Back Lighthouse. She is bringing the stone from Biddeford, Me., by contract.

PROF. Tourjee will lecture in the North Church next Sunday forenoon, at the Methodist in the afternoon, and will conduct a Praise Meeting at the North Church in the evening.

THE number of births in this city for the year ending March 31st, were 145; number of deaths, 119—Nine over 80 years, twenty-two between 50 and 80 years, 11 between 30 and 50 years.

SCHOONER Sea Pigeon, from Robinson, N. S., got on the rocks at Seavey's Island Point, at the Narrows, while beating down the river on Wednesday. The U. S. S. Speedwell went down at 11 o'clock last night to endeavor to tow her off.

NEW SCHOONER.—A small but beautiful fishing schooner was launched at Newcastle, April 19. She is owned by Capt. Moses R. Curtis, and will be employed in the off-shore fishery under command of Capt. David Amazeen. She was built by Ralph Davidson, Esq.

THE Dover City Councillors are in luck; a friend informs us that each member has received a free pass over the Boston & Maine Railroad. We hope these same passes will not act as a mist, to obscure the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad question, should it come before the Dover Councils.

THE Attention of the Trade is directed to the advertisement of Messrs. Cutter, Hyde & Co., one of the leading Fancy Goods Houses of Boston. They have a full supply of the latest novelties in Toys and Fancy Goods of every description. Buyers will do well to call on them before puchasing elsewhere.

IT is somewhat singular that our "inefficient" police should have caught the rogue Bancroft, who had slipped thro' the fingers of the detectives of several large cities and town in different parts of the country, when he was wanted to answer to serious charges. One of our officers arrested him in Kittery for a robbery committed at Rye Beach, thus bringing to a sudden close a career of crime which had baffled the experts for months. Still the City Fathers seem to think it wise and "economical" to deny payment of the usual witness fees to the officers when called to testify in court.

Two new fishing schooners, the Mary Doane, Capt. Phillips, and the Gov. Goodwin, Capt. Moore, were dispatched on their first trip to the Banks, on the 18th, by Messrs. Harding & Doane. The Gov. Goodwin was built at Kennebunk-port, of white oak, and is accounted by nautical men to be one of the finest craft for fishing purposes that ever sailed from Portsmouth. The Mary Doane was built here, and is also a very superior vessel. The schooners will touch, one at Boston and the other at Hull, for supplies, and then proceed direct to the Banks. We wish success to the new vessels and their enterprising owners.

The local fishery is moderately successful so far this Spring, a large amount of fish being landed at Harding & Doane's wharf from the boats and small craft.

THE Kennebec Journal says of the Adelphians, who appeal at the Temple this evening:—"Previous to their first appearance here, people were some what suspicious that they might belong to the class of roving thespians, with not enough of character to locate, but were seeking from town to town a sort of transient notoriety; but our citizens were disabused of that idea. They found the company composed of ladies and gentlemen of talent and versatility, and the plays which they put upon the stage were sterling comedies and burlesques bristling with real fun, and not full of low vulgarism and incipient attempts at wit. And so the lovers of the drama here are greatly pleased that Augusta has been put down as one of the places to be visited occasionally by this excellent company." Reserved seats for sale at Preston's.

A MYSTERY EXPLAINED.—Our citizens had their admiration and curiosity excited, on the afternoon of Tuesday, April 19, by the appearance on our streets of a gorgeous chariot drawn by four fiery steeds, which after proudly circling about a little and taking on board a distinguished array of Portsmouth talent and manly beauty, drove furiously away towards the southwest. To allay the eager enquiry of the multitude as to the moving of the pageant, we will explain that Mr. G. Harrison Jenness, (who has achieved great local fame at Rye as the chairman of the Lyceum Committee in that town the past season, and as the author of the "Report of the Superintending School Committee," though he is better known to the classic world as "Buggins,") had invited a number of gentlemen from this city to assist in various capacities at the last entertainment in the Rye Lyceum Course, and this chariot was the vehicle he had furnished to cart them down, himself officiating as pilot.

Rarely has any one work of man's hands been honored with such a constellation of intellect, &c., as was in that chariot,—they being particularly strong in the and-so-forth. First (and biggest) came Buggins, whose fame is world-wide; then came the speaker of the evening, Mr. John F. Leverton; then the vocal quartette, Messrs. Butler, Newell, Goodall and E. P. Davis; Messrs. Cushing, Gilbert and Tilton, who were to please the good folks of Rye with sweet sounds from the violin and piano; and the press-gang, four in number, named — but we need not name them, for are they not already known to all the world?

Great men, when relieved from the restraints of every-day life, are apt to "go it pretty strong;" but the grave and dignified deportment of the four newspaper men proved sufficient on this occasion, to restrain the hilarity of the rest of the company within bounds, although the choruses, "Eu-pi-dee-i-dee-i-dah" and "We won't go home till morning," were alternated with "We won't go home till morning" and "Eu-pi-dee-i-dee-i-dah," until the party got into Rye, when Buggins suggested that any more singing might have an injurious effect on the number of the audience, and the vocalists stopped.

Arrived at the Christian Church, where the Lyceum has been held, it was discovered that the quartette had forgotten to make a selection of pieces to sing! so lamps were procured, and the party organized a torch-light procession over to another place to give them a chance to rehearse—the modest likening of themselves to the "wise virgins," by the lamp-bearers, being received with scoffing by the rest of the company. During the vocalists' rehearsal, some of their audience hissed vigorously at the end of each piece; and when reproved by the gentlemen of the press for their indecorous conduct, they excused themselves by saying that their object was to get the quartette used to it before they appeared on the Lyceum stage, so that they wouldn't mind it so much then.

All things being ready, the party retraced their steps to the Church, where seats had been reserved for them, and the exercises of the evening commenced. They consisted of the reading of varied selections by Mr. Leverton, vocal music by the quartette, instrumental music by Mr. Tilton on the melodeon and Messrs. Cushing and Gilbert on the violin, and a chorus in which the audience joined,—"Home, sweet home." The building was packed, but the large crowd maintained perfect attention, stillness and decorum throughout the entire exercises; few audiences of similar size could be gathered in Portsmouth, but what might learn a lesson in good manners from this audience at Rye. Before the closing chorus was sung, a vote of thanks was passed by the Lyceum committee to the Church authorities for the gratuitous use of the building, and to the gentlemen from Portsmouth for their services.

The chariot was brought up, and with three cheers for "Buggins" the party started homeward, about 10 o'clock. They managed to find choruses enough (with some repetition) to last all the way up to Haymarket Square, where they disembarked and then, on the suggestion of one of their number, proceeded to the residence of a well-known boot manufacturer and melodiously informed that gentleman that they were "Home again, from a foreign shore;" after which the serenaders departed for their homes.

How the Rye people enjoyed their evening's entertainment cannot be told; they seemed to, very much. But it is certain that each one of the Portsmouth delegation had a genuine good time, and can look back to an evening spent in jollity, without a single drawback to mar the pleasure of the occasion.

Go to the Temple, this evening.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawb6t6

SAFE AND PROFITABLE.
THE CENTRAL RAILROAD CO.
OF IOWA,
have now built and equipped, in first-class manner, about
180 MILES OF RAILROAD,
which will complete their entire line, with the exception of laying the track on twenty-five miles, which is already graded. They will thus open
The First Through Line Across the State
from north to south, and, by making a slight detour at one point, they will give
DIRECT COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ST. LOUIS AND ST. PAUL.
This line of Railroad will have very special advantages for both local and through business, besides such superior railroad connections as will secure to it a large portion of the carrying trade of the Great Northwest. The
First Mortgage
7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,
which are issued upon this road, are limited in amount to $16,000 per mile (while many roads issue from $30,000 to $40,000,) and are offered at 90 and accrued interest, in currency. About two millions and a half of these bonds have already been disposed of, leaving but a small balance unsold, which are being rapidly taken.
The most experienced financiers agree that First Mortgage Bonds, to a limited amount, upon a finished railroad, which is well located for business, are one of the very safest forms of investment.
Parties desiring to secure a first-class security, based upon a railroad practically done, and in the hands of leading capitalists who have a large pecuniary and business interest in its success, will do well to apply at the office of the Company, or any of its advertised agents, for a pamphlet and map, showing the characteristics of the enterprise.
Holders of Government Bonds may exchange them for Central Iowas at a large present profit, beside a handsome increase of interest for a long term of years. Parties making such exchange will receive for each $1,000 Bond a $1,000 Central Iowa Bond, and the following difference in cash (less the accrued interest in currency upon the latter bond,) and in annual interest, this calculation being based upon market prices of December 27th, 1870:—

7-30 GOLD LOAN
OF THE
NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.
RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.
The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, since July last, is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 266 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 150 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 560.
A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend as a Profitable and perfectly Safe Investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on
23,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,000 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. Tax; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 and $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.
LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable at TEN PER CENT. ADVANCE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.
SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, accessible to the people, which is more PROFITABLE OR SAFE.
EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.
OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

Morning Chronicle.

A NEW SOURCE OF MANURE.—Four years ago I had a wall laid along the border of my garden. I had the trench for the foundation dug very deep, well down in the hard-pan, and had the hard-pan thrown into a pile separate from the loam. The loam was used in the compost heap, and the hard-pan—a half-sandy, half-gravelly mass, with just enough of coase soil in it to be seen—was left to be used to fill up some path.

In the course of the summer. I noticed a plant growing on it with sufprising vigor, which, on examination, proved to be the common mustard, but with leaves nearly as broad and large as a cabbage—a size I never have seen surpassed in the richest soil. Beside it, and also on the hard-pan, was growing a plant of Apple of Peru, with a vigor that belonged to the richest soil. The following spring I spread the lot on the flower garden, and had a wonderful growth of flowers as the result.

A year later, one of my neighbors in another part of the town dug a ditch that drained his land through mine, to the depth of over six feet cutting for about the last three feet in depth, of apparently nearly pure gravel, a little mixed with sand. The next summer, while passing that way, I stepped aside to examine the ditch, when, to my surprise, I found growing on the heap of hard-pan, hog-weed that was nearly as high as my head. The only inference I can draw from these facts is, that under some circumstances hard-pan is an excellent manure.

In each of these instances the surface soil was a strong loam that had been under good cultivation for many years. May it not be that some of the salts of the manure applied during this period passed through the loam to the hard-pan below, and there remained, held as in a bowl? Lime it is stated, has this tendency; making it necessary to plough deeper each year to bring it to the surface. By whatever theory they may be explained, the facts seem to prove that in this broad country of ours there must be a multitude of acres underlain by vast areas of fertilizing material. Should further experiments demonstrate this to be a fact, it must prove of immense practical value to our tilled acres, of which the best fed have a habit of calling for a little more. Exchange.

WHITE WEED.—The white daisy or white weed has become one of the greatest pests in our mowing lands, maturing as it does early in the season, before many of the more valuable grasses are fit to cut;it propagates itself rapidly by its abundant seeds, and in many localities crowds out and destroys the others. The remedy against this weed is to mow early. When the daisy is in blossom, the clovers are in their best condition, and although the grasses may not have attained their full size, the crop cut will not be materially less than it would be if the grass were permitted to become more matured. When the white weed is in full blossom, but before the seeds are formed it is of some value as feed, and the red top, June grass and clovers are at that time about as far advanced. Cutting early not only subdues the daisy, but gives time for a good second crop, which will be nearly as valuable as the first, and free from the white weed.

A fallow is often recommended for the destruction of the daisy; as it is well known the plant does not thrive well in it and a renewal of the sward with liberal sowing of June clover goes far to subdue it.

We are of the opinion that a fallow, followed by a season of clover, then another of orchard grass and clover, will, if cut in season, exterminate the pest. As before remarked, care must be taken to harvest the crops before the daisy has dropped its seeds; if this is looked to there will be little further trouble with it.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

TOO LONG BY HALF.—A gentleman writes us of a "long" acquaintance,one, at least, who enjoys a "high" reputation, for he stands over seven feet high in his stockings; and though a talented member of the bar, is a good-natured modest citizen. Some years ago, when the Tremont Theatre was the theatre of the city, he saw fit to witness the performance from a prominent seat in the pit. When the curtain rose and the actors advanced to their positions, a cry of "down in front!" became general throughout the audience.

Their attention was directed toward the tall B——, who, feeling himself the object of remark, thought he was required to settle a little. Looking as if he would like to settle through the floor, he proceeded to raise himself to a standing position, in such a manner, however, as to convey an impression that there was no end to him. At last he did get straightened out to his full length, then, slowly glancing around at the astonished audience, he very deliberately remarked:—

"Gentlemen, jo satisfy you that I was sitting down, I will now stand up."

A burst of laughter and applause succeeded; audience and actors became convulsed; the curtain descended rapidly; the manager, with beaming face, came forward, and amidst the wildest applause conducted the gentleman to a private box.

—The Detroit papers have discovered a new method of driving away the organ-grinders. Every day or two they have a small paragraph like this: "Organ-grinders in Memphis make about ten dollars a day."

OLIVE LOGAN declares that she will "remove the mystery that surrounds the girls;" whereupon the Louisville Courier says: "the rest of you may shut your eyes, but hanged if we will."

SLANDERING THE DEAD.—A man was killed up in Forest Co., Pa., last week, by jabbing himself in the eye with an umbrella! He was intoxicated, and had a queer idea that his umbrella was a telescope; so, while he was endeavoring to examine the solar system through it, he fell over and the umbrella killed him. There is only one physician in Forest county and his learning is not extensive. When the coroner held the inquest the doctor said that 'the ferruginious termination of the umbrella was projected by the dexter hand of the corpse into the optic nerve in the cavity of the colebellum, whence glancing traversely to the epiglottis, it pierced the pericardium and caused a cataplasm of the larynx; and this producing asphyxya as a natural result, clotted blood poured into the tympanum,the left lobe of the brain became irritated and suppurated in particles, and a suppression of the vital force ensued!"

When the jury heard this they boiled with indignation, and the foreman said that, if it was true, it was one of the greatest outrages ever perpetrated against a citizen of a free country. He said no man had a right to kill an umbrella with one of those things on it, especially diseased. The relatives of the deceased have sued the doctor for they say that they know that the man never had a single one of these things with hard names anywhere in among his internal economy, and they want the report contradicted, because people will think them hereditary and will refuse to marry into the family.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy or more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

GRAPE PILLS.
Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.
For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not necessitate their being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, and Excesses and Imprudences in Life, Impurities of the Blood, etc., superseding Copaiba in affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.
LADIES.
In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is unequaled for prompt remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives for enfebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU CURES DISEASES ARISING FROM IMPRUDENCES, HABITS OF DISSIPATION, &c., in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Preventing and Curing Strictures of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of disease, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED
ROSE WASH
cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It speedily eradicates Pimples, Spots, Scorbutic Dryness, Induration of the Cutaneous Membrane, Redness, Roughness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Rash, Moth Patches, Dryness of Scalp or Skin, Dry Piles, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; renders the skin free as a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin, H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unbounded patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

AT THE BOX-OFFICE.

[From the Boston Advertiser.]

She lived up town,—a brown-stone case
Enclosed my jewel bright and fair;
And when I visited the place,
I ne'er could do a thing but stare
And let her talk;—I could not speak
The slightest bit of news upon;
And thus stood matters one March week,
When MaggieMitchell play. d Fanchon.

She raved of Maggie at great length,
Declared that she must go one night,—
So suddenly I mustered strength
This radiant being to invite.
And she accepted—whereupon
I very nearly yelled, "Hurrah!"
I don't know what I might have done,
But just then entered her mamma.

We stood within the corridor;
I had just stepped inside the rail
To get my tickets, when I saw
The state of matters and turned pale.
I'd dressed entirely new throughout
Upon this jaunt with her to come;
I'd brought this heavenly creature out,
Leaving my pocket-book at home.

I stood there, vexed and mortified;
'Twas cruel, as it was absurd;—
Then did a little gloved hand glide
Straight into mine, without a word,
Leaving a dainty portemonnaie
Of gold and pearl most quaintly made,
From which, scarce knowing what to say,
I for the evening's tickets paid.

When I sat down along with her.—
"Now don't look annoyed," said she,
"Of course, mistakes sometimes occur
And people lose their property."
Confused I answered, "I agree,
But must feel vexed about it, though,— What's yours does not belong to me;"
Said she, "Why shouldn't it be so?"

She spoke unthinkingly, then blushed,
"Oh, do you mean it?" straight I cried;
My will delight she would have hushed,
A feeble "No" in vain she tried,
But I'd not hear it, so at last—
"Yes, just to keep you still," said she,
"There, there, don't hold my hand so fast,
The usher will be sure to see."

Oh, Maggie Mitchell, I must say
You never played as you played then,
And she remarked the other day,
That we must see Fanchon again.
So, when you come, we shall be there;
And you should hear her now aver,
That I, to make our matters square,
Must, on the next time, pay for her.

DO TURKEYS PAY?—Turkeys do not pay the careless farmer, who has no place for them to lay or hatch, and no roost for them. The eggs get chilled, the nests are broken up by vermin, or, if the eggs hatch, the young ones are exposed to the long cold storms, and most of them die. Fall comes, and the flock is barely doubled. This does not pay. But a good stock and careful handling pays about as well as anything on the farm. We give the balance sheet of a Connecticut farmer, to show how the thing may be done.

He had 8 turkeys, from which he raised 101 birds. He sold 98 of them, weighing dressed, 1,426 lbs., at the close of the year, for 27 cents a pound, making $385, and the remaining three he valued at $9, making the gross proceeds of the flock, $394. He fed to them 110 bushels of corn, worth $165, and the dressing cost $10, making $175. This gives $219 profit, if we reckon the feathers and manure as an offset to the attendance. This is a handsome item in the operations of the year.

It does not take a great deal of labor to raise a flock, but a little timely attention must be bestowed every day during the spring, which is the critical time with them. After the chicks are two months old, they require less care than any other kind of poultry. The nests should be sheltered, and for this an old barrel, covered with brush, is better than a more expensive and tidy covering. If you can make them think that they are stealing their nests, it is all the better. By a little timely attention they can be made to lay and rear their broods near the house. The eggs should be brought into the house, to guard them from frost, and turned half way over every day, until the hen is ready for them.

Make a pen of boards about a foot high, in some sheltered sunny spot, for the young brood, and keep them there until they can fly over. Feed chopped eggs, liver, or some fresh animal food, with the scalded hominy. Have a roost of poles in some sheltered spot, and as soon as they incline to forsake the shelter of the mother, train them to mount the poles. They will soon come home as regularly as the chickens to their roost, and much labor will be saved in looking after them. Turkeys, like other farm crops, are profitable according to the attention bestowed upon them.—Am. Agriculturalist.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.
I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.
I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

SCIENTIFIC AND POPULAR MEDICAL WORKS
—ON—
MANHOOD, WOMANHOOD AND NERVOUS DISEASES,
PUBLISHED BY THE
PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE,
No. 4 Bulfinch Street, Boston,
(Opposite Revere House.)
DR. W. H. PARKER, Assistant Physician.
Medical knowledge for everybody. 250,000 copies sold in two years.
A Book for every Man.
THE SCIENCE OF LIFE, OR SELF-PRESERVATION. A Medical Treatise on the Cause and Cure of EXHAUSTED VITALITY, PREMATURE DECLINE IN MAN, NERVOUS AND PHYSICAL DEBILITY, HYPOCHONDRIA, and all other diseases arising from the ERRORS OF YOUTH, OR THE INDISCRETIONS OR EXCESSES of mature years. This is indeed a book for every man. Price only $1.00. 285 pages, bound in cloth.
A Book For Every Woman,
Entitled SEXUAL PHYSIOLOGY OF WOMAN, AND HER DISEASES; or, WOMAN TREATED OF PHYSIOLOGICALLY AND PATHOLOGICALLY, from PEABODY'S OLD LAND with elegant ILLUSTRATIVE ENGRAVINGS. 350 pages, bound in beautiful French cloth. Price $2.00.
A Book for Everybody.
Flattered by the reception of, and great demand for, the above valuable and timely treatises, and also to meet a great need of the present age, the author has just published a new book, treating exclusively of NERVOUS AND MENTAL DISEASES. 190 pp. cloth. Price $1, or SENT FREE on receipt of $3 for the other two books, postpage paid.
These are, beyond all comparison, the most extraordinary works on Physiology ever published. There is nothing whatever that the MARRIED OR SINGLE, of EITHER SEX, can either require or wish to know, but what is fully explained, and many matters of the most important and interesting character are introduced to which no allusion can can be found in any other works in our language. All the NEW DISCOVERIES of the author, whose experience is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any man, are given in full. No person should be without these valuable books.
"VALUABLE BOOKS.—We have received the valuable medical works published by the Peabody Medical Institute. These books are of actual merit, and should find a place in every intelligent family. They are not the cheap order of abominable trash, published by irresponsible parties, and purchased to gratify coarse tastes, but are written by a responsible professional gentleman of eminence, as a source of instruction on vital matters, concerning which lamentable ignorance exists. The important subjects presented are treated with delicacy, ability and care, and, as an appendix, many useful prescriptions for prevailing complaints are added."—Cape Republican, Lancaster, N. H.
"The author of these books is one of the most learned and popular physicians of the day, and is entitled to the gratitude of our race for these invaluable productions. We commend to his aim to induce men and women to avoid the cause of those diseases to which they are subject, and he tells them just how and when to do it."—Chronicle, Farmington, Maine, Sept. 7, 1865.
Either book sent by mail on receipt of price.
N. B. The Author of the above-named medical works is the Chief Consulting Physician of the Peabody Medical Institute, and is so constantly employed in consultation with invalids from all parts of the country, that he has no time to attend to mere business details. Therefore all letters should be addressed to the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, or to Dr. W. H. PARKER, the Medical Assistant of the Author, and his Business Agent, who, as well as the Author himself, may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill, secrecy and experience. oct281yr

JURUBEBA. WHAT IS IT?
IT IS A SURE AND Perfect Remedy for all diseases of the
LIVER AND SPLEEN, ENLARGEMENT OR OBSTRUCTION OF INTESTINES, URINARY, UTERINE OR ABDOMINAL ORGANS, POVERTY OR A WANT OF BLOOD, INTERMITTENT OR REMITTENT FEVERS, INFLAMMATION OF THE LIVER, DROPSY, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD, ABSCESSES, TUMORS, JAUNDICE, SCROFULA, DYSPEPSIA, AGUE AND FEVER, OR THEIR CONCOMITANTS.
DR. WELLS, having become aware of the extraordinary medicinal properties of the South American Plant, called
JURUBEBA,
Sent a special commission to that country to procure it in its native purity, and having found its wonderful curative properties to even exceed the anticipations formed by its great reputation, has concluded to offer it to the public, and is happy to state that he has perfected arrangements for a regular monthly supply of this wonderful Plant. He has spent much time experimenting and investigating as to the most efficient preparation from it, for popular use, and has for some time tried in his own practice with most happy results the effectual medicine now presented to the public as
Dr. Wells' Extract of Jurubeba,
and he confidently recommends it to every family as a household remedy which should be freely taken as a BLOOD PURIFIER in all derangements of the system and to animate and fortify all weak and Lymphatic Temperaments. 4wap18

A GOOD OFFER TO THE
Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.
E. A. JOY
Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to bring in lots of work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing whether a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.
MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make the above generous offer.
His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an excellent judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the Agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the Best SEWING MACHINE may always be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 9 PLEASANT ST., nearly opposite the Post Office, Portsmouth, N. H. Twelve Different Kinds to Select From. mh7

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

FRIDAY, APRIL 21, 1871.

CONGRESS.

Both Houses passed the deficiency bill as reported by the conference committees, on the 19th.

The House rejected the report of the conference committee on the Ku-Klux bill—106 to 74.

On the 20th, the report of the second conference committee on the Ku-Klux bill was agreed to—93 to 74.

FRANCE.

The insurgents met with a severe defeat on the 18th. The Asnieres road was barricaded completely. They were unaware that the Versailles troops had armed Gennevilliers with a redoubt, and placed heavy naval guns in position. The Colombes redoubt at Gennevilliers is 300 yards from Asnieres. Suddenly a tremendous fire opened on the front and right flanks from Colombus and Gennevilliers, and the nationals gave way and fled to the trenches. At the same moment two attacking columns took the insurgents in front and flank, and the mitrailleuse guarding the barricade kept up a heavy cross-fire. In less than an hour the whole of the insurgents were driven across the Seine. Dombrouski demanded reenforcements and the insurgents renewed the attack, but were repulsed with great loss. An eye witness says that Dombrouski personally led a desperate assault. By four o'clock all was over at Neuilly. The insurgents were forced to retreat into Porte Maillot. Many were drowned.

ANOTHER EXCELLENT PRECEDENT. In 1831, a Senatorial vacancy occurred by the resignation of Levi Woodbury in District No. 1, who had been Secretary of the Navy. The District at the March election gave Woodbury, Democrat, 1156; Langley Boardman, Republican, 984; Jeremiah Mason, also Republican, 2, and John P. Decatur, Democrat, 1. The constitutional candidates were Boardman and Mason, and a Democratic legislature elected Boardman by 139 votes to 43 for Mason.

PERSONAL.—Mr. James W. Champney, of Boston,—the promising young artist, who won such high honors in the schools of Paris and Antwerp, and whose success since he opened his studio in Boston last season has rendered his signature, "Champ," a stamp of value on every picture that bears it,—left the "Hub" on Wednesday for Europe, projecting a pedestrian tour thro' Westphalia for studies. His many friends will wish him a pleasant voyage, and all friends of improvement in American art are interested in his ample success.

—Quite a sensation was created a week or two ago, in the usually quiet town of Jefferson, Me., by the arrival of Mr. David Lane, formerly of Jefferson, who enlisted in one of the Maine regiments in 1862. He served until 1864, and was then reported killed in the battle of Chapin's Farm, but it appears from his account that he was taken prisoner, and has since been living in North Carolina. Supposing him dead, his wife applied for a pension, which was granted, and in the fall of 1870 she was married to one John Cuningham, with whom she is now living. Mr. Lane arrived home about March 30, and appears in good health.

A Chicago gentleman has an autograph album, concerning which he writes to one of the city papers:—

"Horace Greeley, when solicited for an autograph, wrote two on a single page. Whether he wrote one to explain the other, or wrote both to show that he could make the same looking thing twice, he never has explained to me; but it was upon this page that Mr. Harte pounced with the humor for which he so gifted and facetiously wrote his name: and there, between the two decorative signatures of Horace Greeley stands the snuggy written name of Bret Harte, like a trim little bird seated in a hedge."

—They are practising rhetoric out West. A Chicago paper, noticing a "back down" on the part of one of its contemporaries upon some local issue, gets at the point in this way: "It was a reduction, at a single step, from the portentous dignity of a seeming pestilence to the simple nastiness of a confessed nuisance."

A fire at South Boston, Friday morning, originating in Whittier's kindling wood factory, spread to adjoining wharves and burned about $75,000 worth of lumber. Rain commenced falling rapidly towards morning, and prevented a more serious conflagration.

THE Germantown (Penn.) Chronicle comes to us enlarged and greatly improved. It is a lively exchange—spicy and sensibly edited.

THE British Quarterly Review for January has an able and valuable article on "The American Press," in which (while the enterprise displayed in American journalism and the vast power wielded by "the papers" are acknowledged,) certain failings are handled without gloves. We extract the following:—

Another great sin of American journalism is its intolerable personality, violence, and exaggeration. This was the disgrace of our own English press at no distant period. Cobbett was a great sinner in this respect. He had much to do with raising the intellectual, and lowering the moral reputation of the modern newspaper. The wide diffusion of enlightened views on politics and religion is attested, however, in a remarkable manner among ourselves, by the moderation of tone which we now see in journals which, about twenty years ago, were remarkable for their scurrility and violence.

It is no longer a recommendation to an English newspaper to be known as an assailant of the Royal Family, the aristocracy, the bench of bishops, or parsons. Several publications that, a few years since, professed atheism and secularism, have become extinct, and the quondam organs of Chartism and fierce democracy have been obliged to become respectable.

But many of the American newspapers are much worse than the English were a quarter of a century ago. With us, faction has become less mischievous and shameless; unfounded accusations less common and less malignant; invectives more measured and decorous; not merely because the evil passions which required to be fed with the abuse of individuals have calmed down, but because the British press is now guided by the principle of attacking public opinion, not private characters, measures, not men; and its quarrels are usually governed by the laws of honor and chivalry, which proscribe all base advantages.

But an American newspaper cannot assail another newspaper without mentioning the editor's name, and calling him coward or rascal. If you cannot answer your opponent's objections, you caricature his appearance, or dress, or diet, or accent, as Bennett is in the habit of treating Greeley; and if you are foiled by his wit, you recover your advantage by stabbing his character. No allusion becomes too indecorous for your taste; no sarcasm too bitter for your savage spite; and no character pure enough to be sacred from your charges and insinuations. The American editor pursues his antagonist as if he were a criminal.

The majority of the papers seem to subsist on the great staple of falsehood and personality, and enjoy all the advantages which spring from an utter contempt for the restraints of decency and candor; and we are strongly of opinion that this work of cruel intimidation is pursued with unrelenting eagerness, not from the influence of angry passions or furious prejudices, but in the cold-blooded calculation of the profits which idle curiosity or the vulgar appetite for slander may enable its authors to derive from it.

This extreme violence is part of the loose political morality so common there. Americans seem to be taught almost from infancy to hate one-half of the nation, and so contract all the virulence and passion of party before they have come to the age of reason; but before their newspapers can be said to enter upon the course of real usefulness which is open to them, they must have come to believe that political differences may exist without their opponents being either rogues or fools. Jefferson said in his day that the scurrility of the press drove away the best men from public life, and would certainly have driven away Washington had he lived to suffer from its growing excesses.

SENATOR Morton, in one of the recent Ku-Klux debates in Congress, reminded those democrats who denounce the bill to protect life and liberty in the Southern States as unconstitutional, "that every measure taken during the rebellion to preserve the integrity of the Union had been pronounced unconstitutional by the Democratic party. Every measure enacted since the war to protect the rights of the citizens and to secure the principles for which the war had been fought was also pronounced unconstitutional by the Democrats and their representatives in Congress. Hence he was not alarmed at the cry that the bill was unconstitutional. He did not believe it, neither had he any doubt of the ample power of Congress to pass this."

THE New York Evening Post asks these plain questions:—

"What is the use of the Democratic politicians thinking of the next Presidential election? Do they imagine that the American people will put into power a party which has been an unmitigated nuisance, a breeder of disorder, a corrupter of public virtue, the debaucher of politics, the friend of every wrong and oppression, the fomenter of violence and rebellion, for more than a dozen years."

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.—John Morrison, an old whaler, is selecting men for Captain Hall's arctic expedition, which leaves New York about May 15. Captain S. O. Burdington of Groton, Conn., will have command of the tug-boat Polaris, fitting for sea at the Washington navy yard for the expedition.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

A daughter of Mr. M. M. Williams of Cornish was fatally scalded a few days since by pulling on herself a boiler of hot water.

There are over 8,000,000 feet of logs to come down the Merrimack River this spring.

It is thought that the normal school building at Plymouth will have to be enlarged to meet the already increasing patronage.

The snow is now two feet on the summit of Mt. Washington and lies undisturbed by the wind.

In consequence of a reprimand, an inmate of the State prison, named Stuart, committed a murderous assault on William F. Flanders, an overseer, on the 18th. He struck Flanders with a part of a bedstead a fearful blow back of the left ear, felling him to the floor and terribly crushing and bruising him. His injuries have not yet proved fatal.

NEW PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The Galaxy for May has what purports to be a portrait of Donn Piatt, who with this number assumes charge of the Galaxy "Club Room." The new department begins in a promising way. Mr. McCarthy's, Mr. De Forest's and Mrs. Edward's stories each advance by three chapters. A. H. Guernsey contributes the first of two articles on the campaigns of Robert E. Lee. The seven days on the Peninsula, Northern Virginia and Maryland, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, are the campaigns here briefly summed up. The poetry of the number is by Bayard Taylor, Anna C. Brackett and Henry Abbey.

THE Golden Age says Parker Pillsbury has an "ancient seat."

BUSINESS NOTICES.

Oppression after eating, headache, nervous debility, are the effects of indigestion. One, or two at most of Parsons' Purgative Pills will give immediate relief.

Johnson's Anodyne Liniment may be administered to children with perfect success, in cases of croup, whooping-cough, influenza and almost any of the diseases to which they are liable. 1wap15

More than 400,000 people bear testimony to the wonderful curative effects of Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery. For palpitation or irregular action of the heart, all severe acute or lingering Coughs, and for "Liver Complaint" or "Billiousness" it is unequaled. Sold by all druggists.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

What Is It?

Many, many people suffer from they know not what. They are not sick—they are not well. There is no name for it. It is simply weakness—a breaking of the vital forces. Whatever its causes, (and they are innumerable,) its symptoms are in the main the same. Among the most prominent are extreme lassitude, loss of appetite, loss of flesh, and great mental depression. Indigestion and a stomach cough are also frequently concomitants of this distressing state of body and of mind. The common remark in relation to persons in such a condition is, that they are consumptive. Now, what these unfortunates really want is vigor, vital strength, and, as certainly as dawn succeeds darkness, they can recuperate their systems and regain perfect health by resorting to HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS. It is as clear that a life-reviving tonic is required in such cases, as that the dying flame of an empty lamp requires to be revived with a new supply of oil. Perfectly pure and innocuous, containing nothing but the most genial vegetable extracts, and combining the three grand elements of a stomachic, an alterative, and a genial invigorant, Hostetter's Bitters are suitable to all constitutions, and are as applicable to the diseases and disabilities of the feebler sex as to those of men.

IMPROVEMENT OF MERRIMAC RIVER.

U. S. ENGINEER'S OFFICE, CITY HALL, BOSTON, MASS., April 14th, 1871.

PROPOSALS will be received at this office until the 13th of May, 1871, for the excavation of a channel through the Upper and Lower Falls, and the removal of other obstructions in the Merrimac River, above Haverhill. The work will be commenced at the Lower Falls, where the channel commenced to be excavated last year will be completed; then a channel will be excavated through the Upper Falls, after which such other obstructions as shall be deemed by the Engineer in charge most dangerous to navigation will be removed.

The channel is to be 4 feet deep at low water, and 60 feet wide. The material to be excavated consists of large and small boulders, mixed with clay and gravel.

The proposals must state the price per cubic yard for the material excavated, to be measured in the dumping scows.

The total amount available for the contract is $25,000. J. G. FOSTER,

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK,

SOLD BY JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

This Ink is perfectly distinct on first writing; it will not gum up the pen, or rust it, but enamels it with a thin bronze coating which cleans and preserves it; it will not grow thick or mould in the bottle; it dries quickly and will not smut off, but will give a clear impression in a copy-press for three months after writing. Freezing does not injure it and chemicals do not entirely erase it.

"No. Five's boys" are to have a new company badge, of German silver, to be manufactured by a Boston firm, of which Engineer Francis W. Ham is Agent.

SCHOONER Sea Pigeon, which got on the rocks at the Narrows while proceeding to sea on Wednesday, was towed off the same night by U. S. S. Speedwell. The schooner was slightly hogged, and was brought up to the harbor.

THE New York Herald says Jean Ingelow has sent to Capt. John G. Moses, of this city, an elegantly bound copy of her illustrated poems with an autographic inscription—in acknowledgment of the courtesy extended her in naming the ship of which Capt. Moses is principal owner after the talented poetess. Messrs. Roberts & Brothers of Boston, her American publishers, have also presented the vessel with a pennant bearing Miss Ingelow's coat of arms and a photograph of the poetess, with an appropriate extract from one of her poems, in fac simile of her chirography, which will adorn the ship's cabin.

HALL'S Comedy and Burlesque Company at the Temple, Thursday evening, presented "Meg's Diversion" and the burlesque of "Lurline" for the entertainment of their audience—which was not so large as the performance merited, or as it probably would have been with better weather. The Company have been highly commended by the press of other cities, and fully deserve the praise they have received. Meg's Diversion was splendidly acted, and greatly diverted the audience; and the burlesque, with its ridiculous "situations" and atrocious puns, was equally good in its way, and induced laughter enough to cure a large amount of dyspepsia.

This (Friday) evening they give the comedy of "Kind to a fault," with the burlesque of "Aladdin;" and we advise all who enjoy good acting and a hearty laugh to pay them a visit at the Temple.

IT is stated by those who have taken the trouble to post themselves in regard to the matter, that the average amount of breakage of kerosene lamp chimneys is one a week for every lamp in use. This estimate includes, of course, all kinds of chimneys, the good as well as the bad. There is a kind of chimney called by dealers the "Boston chimney," that is a finished article and will outlast a dozen of the common ragged-edged kind that must be bought by the dozen, in order to insure a light for an evening. When kerosene lamps were first introduced, the glass chimneys used thereon were of a much better quality than now, and it was a rare thing for one of them to break, save by a fall or an accident of some kind. Apropos to this, we learn of a lady in this city who has the same lamp and chimney which she bought when kerosene oil first made its appearance in the market, and it is in as good order as on the day it was purchased, although it has been in constant use during that long period. That's what we call a good chimney, whether it is called "Boston" or "Portsmouth."

EASTERN RAILROAD.—The work of lowering the grade in Salem Tunnel is nearly completed. The tunnel is lighted by gas, while the work is being done. The overhead bridges between Salem and Portsmouth have nearly all been raised. Six splendid Pullman Palace cars have been ordered for the Boston and Bangor lines, two of which will arrive the last of this month. The extension of the double track between Beverly and Wenham is fast tending towards completion. The track at three points, at Beverly, Wenham Station and one section midway between these points, is already laid, and a few weeks will complete this work, and hereafter all delays in waiting for trains at Wenham will be avoided. The sleepers and rails are distributed for the remainder of the double track, which is being built by the Company, under the direction of its own men. This track should be extended during the Fall to Ipswich. The surface of the line between Wenham and Ipswich prevents but few obstacles to a speedy completion of the additional track, which at no distant day, we trust we shall see extended to Portsmouth. In the meantime will Superintendent Prescott accommodate and oblige the people of Portsmouth and vicinity by putting on an afternoon train (to leave here at 3.30 or thereabouts) and connect with the train leaving Newburyport for Boston at 4.05? We ask it in behalf of our citizens, who earnestly desire it.

—In regard to the House, the claim most adverse to the Republicans, as published by the Democratic papers, for which names and politics were given, was that 330 members of the House were elected, and that 168 were Democratic and Labor Reform, and 162 Republican. This was a printed report in which the initials d., r. or l. r. were attached to names. It was at once shown that four of the men marked "d" would vote with the Republicans, at least in organizing the House, for they were Republicans, and had no opposition to the party, however they might feel regarding certain candidates. Transposing these four to the Republican roll, we have 166 to 164 for the Democracy. This was the claim of Republican papers, a week after election.

But it is not our claim to-day. We can do better, unless a Winans has been found in our ranks, who, for money and railroad berths, sells his principles to Democracy. It has been ascertained that only 329 men have any pretence to a seat in the House, one Democrat having been reported and counted who was not elected. This leaves the House 166 Republicans to 163 opposition. Still more favorable to us is the fact that several Democratic members have been declared elected who have no claim to a seat, even primarily, and if the town clerks make a return of their legal election, they lay themselves liable to the penalty of imprisonment from six months to five years.

Each one of these reduces the Democratic vote and increases our majority in consequence. If fair play only is practiced, if no false returns are made, if no Tammany funds are expended in the State, we shall have six majority in the organization of the House, which will be enough for all practical purposes. We know the Democracy are at work; we know the opposition can have funds from Tammany, not lavished on New York members; we know that the Democracy will give the Labor Reformers all the "milk in the cocoanut," for one year, hoping to reap the harvest of United States Senator and all they want next year.—Manchester Mirror.

REFERRING to the atrocious and cold-blooded murder of Mr. John Q. Dickinson by the Ku Klux, while passing from his office to his home in Marrianna, Jackson county, Fla., on Monday evening, 3d inst., the Tallahassee Sentinel says:—

Captain Dickinson was about thirty-five years of age, a graduate of Dartmouth College, and has just been admitted to the bar; and with his known talents, his friends, with reason, looked forward to a brilliant career for him, if he were permitted to live. His assassination, however, was not unexpected to him nor his friends. He was the last remaining white Republican in that county and the opposition were extremely desirous to get rid of him. His conduct all the time was guarded and prudent and he was noted for gentlemanly deportment.

He had from time to time, owing to his being an earnest Republican and a leader of the party in Jackson County, been threatened with death, but having right and freedom as his motto, bid defiance to his enemies and died at his post. He was a good citizen and officer, and all that could be said against him by his bitterest political enemies, was that he was a Republican. Thus one by one are Republican stricken down by the assassin's bullet.

Mr. Dickinson's remains have been taken to his former home, Becson, Vt., for interment.

SOME of the Democratic papers characterize the Boston Journal's report of their Concord consultation meeting as a "sell," and the "Lyre," as usual, hastens to add to its already overgrown stock of misrepresentations. The sentiments credited to Harry Bingham at the Concord gathering are the same that he expressed in this city a few days since.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawf6t6

SAFE AND PROFITABLE.

THE CENTRAL RAILROAD CO.

OF IOWA,

have now built and equipped, in first-class manner, about

180 MILES OF RAILROAD,

which will complete their entire line, with the exception of laying the track on twenty-five miles, which is already graded. They will thus open

The First Through Line Across the State

from north to south, and, by making a slight detour at one point, they will give

DIRECT COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ST. LOUIS AND ST. PAUL.

This line of Railroad will have very special advantages for both local and through business, besides such superior railroad connections as will secure to it a large portion of the carrying trade of the Great Northwest. The

First Mortgage

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

which are issued upon this road, are limited in amount to $16,000 per mile (while many roads issue from $20,000 to $40,000,) and are offered at 90 and accrued interest, in currency. About two millions and a half of these bonds have already been disposed of, leaving but a small balance unsold, which are being rapidly taken.

The most experienced financiers agree that First Mortgage Bonds, to a limited amount, upon finished railroad, which is well located for business, are one of the very safest forms of investment.

Parties desiring to secure a first-class security, based upon a railroad practically done, and in the hands of leading capitalists who have a large pecuniary and business interest in its success, will do well to apply at the office of the Company, or any of its advertised agents, for a pamphlet and map, showing the characteristics of the enterprise.

Holders of Government Bonds may exchange them for Central Iowas at a large present profit, beside a handsome increase of interest for a long term of years. Parties making such exchange will receive for each $1,000 Bond a $1,000 Central Iowa Bond, and the following difference in cash (less the accrued interest in currency upon the latter bond,) and in annual interest, this calculation being based upon market prices of December 27th, 1870:—

7-30 GOLD LOAN

—OF THE—

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 240 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 130 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 560.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend, as a Profitable and perfectly Safe investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on 23,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 3,000 Acres for every $1,000 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. Tax; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable at TEN PER CENT. ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, accessible to the people, which is more PROFITABLE OR SAFE.

EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

THE STRASBOURG CLOCK.—This curious piece of mechanism is very clearly described in the following extract from Mr. Curtis Guild's volume of travel entitled "Over the Ocean:"

The great astronomical clock here is a curious and wonderful piece of mechanism. Fancy a structure twenty-five or thirty feet in height, and twelve or fifteen broad at the base, having on either side two others nearly of equal height, one being the masonic flight of winding stairs, surmounted by five small emblematical Corinthian pillars, and the other a Gothic pillar, its panellings enriched with figures.

Placed directly in front of the base of the clock is a celestial globe, which by means of the clock-work, shows the precession of the equinoxes, solar and lunar equations for calculating geocentric ascension and declination of the sun and moon at true times and places. Then in the base itself is an orrery after the Copernician system, by which the mean tropical revolution of each of the planets, visible to the naked eye, is shown. Then comes an ecclesiastical calendar, a sort of perpetual almanac, indicating holy, feast and fast days; above, and about ten feet from the floor, and just beneath the clock-dial, is an opening with a platform in front, upon which come forth figures representing each day of the week, as Apollo on Tuesday, Diana on Monday, &c. Thus a figure in a chariot representing the day, appeared at the entrance in the morning, it had reached the centre in full view by noon, and drove gradually out of sight at the close of day. On either side of the clock-dial sat two Cupids, the size of a three year-old child, one holding a bell and hammer, with which it strikes the hours and quarters, and the other an hour-glass, which it reverses each hour. Above is another dial, with the signs of the zodiac; above that a figure of the moon, showing its different phases, also put in motion by the clock-work; and still above this, two sets of automaton figures, which appear only at twelve o'clock, at which time there is always a crowd gathered to witness their performances.

We viewed this wonderful piece of mechanism for an hour and witnessed the following movements: At quarter past eleven the Cupid near the dial struck one; then from one of the upper compartments ran forth the figure of a little child with a wand, and as he passed he struck one on a bell, and ran away (Childhood, the first quarter). Round whirl the wheels of time, and the second quarter chimes; but this time it is Youth that passes, and taps the bell with his shepard's staff twined with flowers. Again, we reach the third quarter, and Manhood strides forth, the mailed warrior, and smites the sonorous bell, ere he leaves the scene, three sounding blows with his trenchant weapon—third quarter. Once more, the hands tremble on the point at noon; the fourth quarter is here, and Old Age, a feeble, bent figure, hobbles out, pauses wearily at the bell, raises a crutch, taps four strokes, and totters away out of sight—"last scene of all," when, as a finale, the skeleton of Death, before whom all the four have passed, slowly raises his baton, which the spectator now discovers to be a human bone, and solemnly strikes the hour of twelve upon the bell. While he is engaged in this act, a set of figures above him, representing the twelve apostles, pass in procession before the Savior, who blesses each as they pause before him in turn, and chanticleer, the size of life, perched upon the pinnacle of one of the side structures, lifts up his voice in three rousing crows, with out-stretched neck and flapping wings, while the Cupid on one side of the dial reverses the hour-glass for the sand to flow back, and the other also strikes the hour with his bell and hammer.

Consumption.

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE.

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure. These men and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would now have rallied.

Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr. Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever a healthy constitution, family and friends are by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its high prophecy requires no argument. It is self asserting, self-convincing.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two agents, with which the disease, if not fatal, already is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption are due to dyspepsia and the consequently disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbific secretion of the liver, the latter then comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It stands from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Digestation is now progressing, without its previous torture. Dyspepsia becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be a hard. There is no more flatulence, no excoriation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the question is legal tender ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to complete and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings it prepares them for expectoration, and in a few short time the malady is entirely exhausted, the rotten tissue that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained health, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

To demonstrate the cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, I will say that Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was so well and so much worth.

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption: confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then like a drowning man I catched at every straw I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they effected a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pains and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since."

"I was a living skeleton after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was from one hundred to one-hundred, my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., will continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the peculiar condition of a child. Follow these directions, and kind Nature will do the rest, accepting that it comes across the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the ample instructions that accompany them; First, create appetite. Of returning health hunger is the most welcome symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the desparing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweats subside. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation. As the Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylactic against consumption in any of its forms. Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

COMPOUND FLUID

Extract Catawba

GRAPE PILLS.

Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not necessitate their being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, and Excesses and Imprudences in Life, Impurities of the Blood, etc., superseding Copaiba in Affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.

LADIES.

In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU

in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstruction, Freeing and Cleansing Strictures of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED

ROSE WASH

cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It speedily eradicates Pimples, Spots, Redness, Roughness, Indurations of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Rash, Moth, Patches, Pimples, Scurf or Scaly Eruptions, Frost Bites, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for the foregoing effects of the skin, H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unboubted superiority, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant form those properties of enfeebling Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

Full and explicit directions accompany the medicines.

Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character furnished on application, with hundreds of thousands of living witnesses and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, etc. The proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

WOOING.

A little bird once met another bird,
And whistled to her, "Will you be my mate?"
With flattering wings she twittered, "How Oh, what a silly pate!" [absurd!

And off unto a distant tree she flew,
To find concealment in its friendly cover;
And passed the hours in slying peeping through
At her rejected lover.

The jilted bird, with drooping heart and wing,
Poured forth his grief all day in plaintive songs;
Telling in sadness to the ear of spring,
The story of his wrongs.

But little thought he, while each nook and dell,
With the wild music of his plaint was thrilling,
That scornful breast with sighs began to swell—
Half pitying and half willing.

Next month I walked the same sequestered way,
When close together on a twig I spied them;
And in a nest half hid with leaves there lay
Four little birds beside them.

Coy maid, this moral in your ear I drop,—
When lovers' hopes within their hearts you
Fly out of sight and hearing; do not stop [prison,
To look behind and listen!

IMPROVEMENT OF MERRIMAC RIVER,

U. S. ENGINEER'S OFFICE, CITY HALL, BOSTON, MASS., April 14th, 1871.

PROPOSALS will be received at this office until the 15th of May, 1871, for the excavation of a channel through the Upper and Lower Falls, and the removal of other obstructions in the Merrimac River, above Haverhill. The work will be commenced at the Lower Falls, where the channel commenced to be excavated last year will be completed; then a channel will be excavated through the Upper Falls, after which such other obstructions as shall be deemed by the Engineer in charge most dangerous to navigation will be removed.

The channel is to be 4 feet deep at low water, and 60 feet wide. The material to be excavated consists of large and small boulders, mixed with clay and gravel.

The proposals must state the price per cubic yard for the material excavated, to be measured in the dumping scows.

The total amount available for the contract is $25,000. J. G. FOSTER,

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?

—IF SO, USE THE—

AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on, Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

A Book For Every Woman,

Entitled SEXUAL PHYSIOLOGY OF WOMAN, AND HER DISEASES; or, WOMAN TREATED OF PHYSIOLOGICALLY AND PATHOLOGICALLY, from INFANCY TO OLD AGE. With elegant ILLUSTRATIVE ENGRAVINGS. 350 pages, bound in beautiful French cloth. Price $2.00.

A Book for Everybody.

Flattered by the reception of, and great demand for, the above valuable and timely treatises, and also to meet a great need of the present age, the author has just published a new book, treating exclusively of NERVOUS AND MENTAL DISEASES. 150 pp. cloth. Price $1, or SENT FREE on receipt of $3 for the other two books, postpage paid.

These are, beyond all comparison, the most extraordinary works on Physiology ever published There is nothing written on that the MARRIED OR SINGLE, of EITHER SEX, can either require or wish to know, but what is fully explained, and many matters of the most important and interesting character are introduced to which no allusion even can be found in any other works in our language. All the NEW DISCOVERIES of the author, whose experience is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any man, are given in full. No person should be without these valuable books.

"VALUABLE BOOKS.—We have received the valuable medical works published by the Peabody Medical Institute. These books are of actual merit, and should find a place in every intelligent family. They are not the cheap order of abominable trash, published by irresponsible parties, and purchased to gratify coarse tastes, but are written by a responsible professional gentleman of eminence, as a source of in-truction on vital matters, concerning which lamentable ignorance exists. The important subjects presented are treated with delicacy, ability and care, and, as an appendix, many useful prescriptions for prevailing complaints are added."—Coos Republican, Lancaster, N. H.

"The author of these books is one of the most learned and popular physicians of the day, and is entitled to the gratitude of our race for these invaluable productions. It seems to be his aim to induce men and women to avoid the causes of those diseases to which they are subject, and he tells them just how and when to do it."—Chronicle, Farmington, Maine, Sept. 7, 1869.

Either book sent by mail on receipt of price.

N. B. The Author of the above-named medical works is the Chief Consulting Physician of the Peabody Medical Institute, and is so constantly employed in consultation with invalids from all parts of the country, that he has no time to attend to mere business details. Therefore all letters should be addressed to the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, or to Dr. W. H. PARKER, the Medical Assistant of the Author, and his Business Agent, who, as well as the Author himself, may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill, secrecy and experience. oct281yr

JURUBEBA. WHAT IS IT?

IT IS A SURE AND Perfect Remedy for all diseases of the

LIVER AND SPLEEN, ENLARGEMENT OR OBSTRUCTION OF INTESTINES, URINARY, UTERINE OR ABDOMINAL ORGANS, POVERTY OR A WANT OF BLOOD, INTERMITTENT OR REMITTENT FEVERS, INFLAMMATION OF THE LIVER, DROPSY, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD, ABSCESSES, TUMORS, JAUNDICE, SCROFULA, DYSPEPSIA, AGUE AND FEVER, OR THEIR CONCOMITANTS.

DR. WELLS, having become aware of the extraordinary medicinal properties of the South American Plant, called

JURUBEBA,

Sent a special commission to that country to procure it in its native purity, and having found its wonderful curative properties to even exceed the anticipations formed by its great reputation, has concluded to offer it to the public, and is happy to state that he has perfected arrangements for a regular monthly supply of this wonderful Plant. He has spent much time experimenting and investigating as to the most efficient preparation from it, for popular use, and has for some time used it in his practice with most happy results the effectual medicine now presented to the public as

Dr. Wells' Extract of Jurubeba,

and he confidently recommends it to every family as a household remedy which should be freely taken as a BLOOD PURIFIER in all derangements of the system and to animate and fortify all weak and Lymphatic Temperaments. 4wap18

A GOOD OFFER TO THE

Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.

B. A. JOY

Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to bring in lots of work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing whether a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.

MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make the above generous offer.

His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an excellent judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the Agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the Best SEWING MACHINES may always be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 9 PLEASANT ST., nearly opposite the Post Office, Portsmouth, N. H. Twelve Different Kinds to Select From. mh7

OLIVER DITSON & CO., Boston.
C. H. DITSON & CO., New York

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

SATURDAY, APRIL 22, 1871.

MORE TIDAL WAVE.—The new territory of the District of Columbia held its first election on the 20th. General N. P. Chipman, Republican, is elected delegate to Congress by 4087 majority and the territorial legislature is Republican, the House of Delegates standing 15 Republicans, 7 Democrat.

GEN. Butler succeeded in having the rules of the House suspended previous to the final adjournment of Congress, by a vote of 118 to 23. He then made an extended reply to Senator Davis of Kentucky. He said that the attack made on him was uncalled for. He entered the Senate chamber to consult Senator Sawyer, sat down near him and began conversation. To use his own words, Senator Davis soon after "arose and began remarks, in form of a speech, concerning the outrages and murders in Kentucky. Not deeming it courteous to converse in his immediate vicinity, to the interruption of a gentleman speaking, I broke off my conversation, turned around, and having nothing better to do listened patiently for the river to run by. I had no intention or thought of disturbing the placid flow of the muddy stream, and waited almost listlessly until it came to an end. Mr. Davis, surprised at the unusual courtesy of having one attentive listener, seemed to suppose so extraordinary a fact must have in it something sinister and of evil design. Whereupon he suddenly turned toward me and made, in a passionate manner, some very unparliamentary and offensive utterances. Unwilling by a sign or movement to appear to suppose the words personally applicable, I sat perfectly quiet, keeping my countenance as immovable as if I were sitting for a photograph. Nothing else appeared proper to be done, in a place where I could neither reply to what was said nor leave my position without misconstruction of the motive.

Being a place where, by courtesy, I had a right to be, but where I could not reply to an indecent personal assault upon me, made as if in debate, and to which I could make neither answer nor defence, and assuming Mr. Davis' own description of the occurrence to be true, I submit to the candid judgment of the House, of all just men, the question who in this affair, upon the Senator's own showing, played the part of a courteous gentleman and who the role of a 'blackguard.'"

Gen. Butler overhauled Davis' after-speech, and proved many of the latter's statements to be false, but said it might be traceable to the loss of memory of an old man. He closed by a scorching reference to Mr. Farnsworth of Illinois, who replied in the same vein. Beck of Kentucky joined in and all was confusion, until the hour of adjournment put an end to the hubbub.

From the Portsmouth Journal.

DOVER, N. H., April 17, 1874.

To the Editor of the Portsmouth Journal:

Dear Sir:—A friend has shown me a paragraph in your paper to the effect that sundry democratic papers say, that when I appeared at the polls at Dover, at the recent elections, I publicly protested against and denounced the nomination of one of the republican candidates and voted against it. Without further reference to the paragraph, I have simply to say, the charge is not true, and that my faith in republican principles has remained and is unchanged. I presume you will be willing to give the truth the same publicity you have given the falsehood.

Very respectfully,
SAM'L M. WHEELER.

IN South Carolina, "one hundred men who fought under Lee" announce in a public way that they intend to set aside the government of that State; and, if the National Government shall interfere, they will "destroy our commerce, finances, and trade,"—the old rebel joke; but it had better not be carried too far. It was tried once under far more favorable auspices, but did not work well even then.

THE French Fair at Boston, in aid of the sufferers by the recent war, closes to-day. Great numbers of people have visited the Boston Theatre, where the Fair is held, during its continuance, and the net receipts will be very large. This day and evening will finish it, and the numerous raffles, &c., will probably draw the largest crowds yet attending. See adv't.

THE President has signed the Ku-Klux bill.

A letter from Manchester, directed as follows, recently arrived at its destination.

Careful Postman will you try
And take this letter down to Rye?
Rye, New Hampshire, not New York,
For it's going to Bob Locke.
Take it quickly, now do hasten,
It's Bob the blacksmith, not the mason.

S. J. COURT, Exeter.—Divorces have been decreed to Mary E. Keene from Woodbury M. Keene, Nancy R. Head from Addison Head, David Lamprey from Elizabeth Lamprey.

On Friday the case J. L. Boothly & Co. vs. Sidney G. Plaisted, was tried. Piffs. are merchants in New York, and sold to the deft. certain liquors which were delivered in New York. Deft. contends that sale was made in Portsmouth and contrary to law. Verdict for the pliff., $371. Exceptions are reserved. Frink and Butler for pliff.; Hatch and Page for deft.

George W. Torry & Co. vs. S. G. Plaisted, action to recover for certain liquors sold by the pliffs., who are merchants in Boston. Defence,—that liquors were sold in violation of the laws of Massachusetts. Pliff. contended that a part were, when sold, in the original packages in which they were imported, and legally sold. Given to the jury. William H. Hackett for pliff.; Hatch and Page for deft.

The Jury were discharged on Friday afternoon, and the Court adjourned to Monday, when new jurors are ordered to come in.

Charles M. Lamprey of Hampton was admitted to practice as an Attorney at Law.

NEW PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The Technologist for April. Published at 176 Broadway, New York by the Industrial Publication Co. at $1.50 per annum. Engineers, Manufacturers and Builders should subscribe for it.

The Phrenological Journal for May contains an array of twenty or more articles, and its ever valuable Miscellany; Suggestions to Public Speakers; Dead or Alive—which? Woman vs. Woman's Rights; The Feet—their Dress and Care; In the Mammoth Cave without a Guide; Charles Sumner; The Utah Gentiles; Why we need Women as Physicians; Defective Educational Methods; A Free Pulpit—a need of the Times—are among the contributions. $3 a year. S. R. Wells, 389 Broadway, New York.

Peter's Musical Monthly for May contains sixteen pieces, either of which is worth the price of the number. Published by J. L. Peters, 594 Broadway, New York.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

Mrs. Lorenzo Ames and Mrs Moses C. Lyford have been elected members of the school committee of Canterbury.

The annual exhibition of the Reform School pupils took place on the 19th. Exercises in spelling, geography, reading, declamation, dialogues and singing took place. Six pupils were discharged for good conduct. Messrs. Olliver Wyatt, Daniel Clark, Horton D. Walker, Rev. A. C. Hardy, Col. D. M. Clough, Joseph Kidder, Dr. J. P. Cancroft, Col. Peter Sanborn and others spoke.

Mary Brockway, recently celebrated her 104th birthday in East Washington, by splitting and carrying into the house half a cord of wood.

On the 10th inst., John F. Smith of Keene was found dead in a hole into which he had fallen in a fit.

Col. Robert Patterson, formerly of Londonderry, has been elected to the Canadian Parliament from the Toronto or York District.

THE firm of James R. Osgood & Co. have completed an arrangement which has been for some time in contemplation, for the prosecution of a Subscription Book trade, as a new department in their business of Publishing and Bookselling. They will begin the canvass throughout the United States and British Provinces with two valuable and Popular Works, namely: Parton's Life and Times of Benjamin Franklin, and Carleton's New Way Round The World. Address H. A. Brown & Co., Managers, 144 Tremont Street, Boston.

The authors of the new Democratic address must be extremely disinterested and affectionate persons, as they call "for a disregard of prior partisan affiliations and a union of all lovers of their whole country to restore to the people the blessings of an honest, economic, peaceful and equal rule." This address, if distributed liberally among the southern Ku-Klux, might be productive of a world of good.

PRESIDENT Grant has issued a proclamation convening the U. S. Senate in extra session on the 10th of May—probably to consider the report of the High Commissioners.

THE prohibitionists recommend that the Temperance party make independent nominations in this State hereafter. Second the motion.

☞ THE NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE for this week, is now ready for delivery, at the Chronicle Office. Each number contains all the reading matter of the week's Dailies. Price $2 a year; single copies 5 cents,—in wrappers for mailing, if desired. Six copies for $10 per year, to Clubs—per mail or city carrier.

RELIGIOUS.—Rev. Geo. W. Bicknell will deliver a memorial discourse at the Universalist Church to-morrow on the birth of Rev. Hosea Ballou. Right Rev. Bishop Niles of this diocese will administer the rite of confirmation at St. John's Church.

....BOARD OF ALDERMEN.—On Thursday evening the request of Elisha Tripp for leave to put gratings in the sidewalk on Penhallow Street was granted, under supervision of Street Commissioner.

Committee on City Lands and Buildings reported it would cost $600 to finish off a tenement in basement of Court House. Voted, to fix up a tenement and charge rent equal to 10 per cent. of the interest.

Report of Joint Committee to petition the Legislature in regard to the Portsmouth & Dover R. R. (a full report of which was given last week,) was accepted.

PAYMASTER Bogart, U. S. N., charged with embezzlement, has vamosed.

JOB AND CARD PRINTING.—We have made great additions to our jobbing facilities—a mammoth Hand Press (the largest in Portsmouth,) new Display Type, Borders of various styles, &c. —and are prepared to execute with neatness and dispatch, all orders for FULL SHEET POSTERS, DATE SLIPS, PAMPHLETS, SERMONS, ADDRESSES, AUCTION BILLS, CONSTITUTIONS, LAWS, PROGRAMMES, HANDBILLS, CIRCULARS, ORDERS DANCES, BLANKS, BILL HEADS, RECEIPTS, TICKETS, BUSINESS, MARRIAGE, ADDRESS AND VISITING CARDS, LABELS, TAGS, and in fact PRINTING OF ANY DESCRIPTION, at SATISFACTORY PRICES. Orders received by express, or at the CHRONICLE OFFICE will be promptly filled.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

☞ If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watering or weak, feel dull and stupid or debilitated, pain or pressure in the head, take cold easily, you may rest assured that you have the Catarrh. Thousands annually without manifesting half the above symptoms, terminate in Consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive or less understood by physicians. R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., is the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy—a perfect specific for Catarrh, "Cold in the head," Catarrhal Headache, which he sends to any address, postpaid, for sixty cents, or four packages for $2. Sold by most druggists everywhere.

"Horse-Men," and others who pretend to know, say that the following directions had better be observed in using Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders: Give a horse a tablespoonful every night for a week; the same every other night for 4 or 6 nights; the same for a milch cow and twice as much for an ox. The addition of a little fine salt will be an advantage.

We have heard recently of several severe cases of spinal disease cured by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment; one case of a man forty-five years ago, who had not done a day's work for four years. The back should first be washed, then rubbed with a coarse towel. Apply the Liniment cold and rub in well with the hand. ap22

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Try It.

It is amusing that the feeble should totter, with uncertain steps, over the face of the earth, in danger every day of falling victims to the morbid influences by which we are all surrounded, when a tested and proven vegetable tonic, capable of endowing them with the vigor they need, is procurable in every city, town and settlement. It might reasonably be thought that after the twelve years' experience which the world has had of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS, all would know that its effect is to prevent disease.

At certain seasons the atmosphere is surcharged with the seeds of intermittents, remittents, rheumatism, pulmonary disorders, bilious complaints and the like. Persons whose nervous systems are relaxed are the first to succumb to these distempers. Brace up the physical energies then with this potential vegetable tonic. It is the most powerful recuperant which the botanic kingdom has ever yielded to patient research and experiment. Try it. The blindest discipline of the old medical dogmas will at least admit that a tonic and alterative, compounded of approved herbs, roots and barks can do no harm, while the testimony of thousands invites a trial of its virtues.

Vigor is the thing most needed in these cases as well as in dyspepsia and nervous affections, and HOSTETTER'S BITTERS is the safest, surest and most wholesome strengthening preparation that human skill has yet concocted.

Hundreds of physicians have abandoned all the official recipes and prescribed this harmless tonic as a preventive and cure for all cases of chills and fever.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

Room Papers, &c.—Foster Shores & Co.
Dry Goods—Geo. B. French.
For Sale—4 Billiard Tables.

S. R. Thompson of this city has secured letters patent for a machine to make pottery ware.

About 200 coasting vessels sailed on Friday from the lower harbor, where they rendezvoused the previous day.

At Nos. 15 and 27 Market Street, Mr. Geo. B. French proposes to do a rousing trade in Dry Goods, if selling a large and varied stock at low prices, and informing the public of what is going on, will manage it. His advertisement may be found in another column; and speaks for itself.

We hope all of our citizens who can do so, will avail themselves of the opportunity afforded them to hear Prof. Tourjee to-morrow — at the North Church in the forenoon and the Methodist in the afternoon—subject, "Music as an element of worship." A praise meeting will be held at the North Church in the evening.

The work of discharging the coal from the schooner Suliote, at present resting her weary bones on the rocks off Grogan's Point, is now going on whenever the tide permits. Another schooner lies alongside the wreck, receiving the cargo, which must be washed pretty clean by this time, as the tide ebbs and flows in the Suliote.

We take pleasure in recording the continued and constantly increasing success in business of one of the enterprising men of the city—Mr. John S. Treat, whose orders for fine stone and marble work are not received from local patrons only, but from parties many miles away in this State, in Maine and in Massachusetts. A partial list of the principal works lately sent out from his establishment, or now being completed, will show that the taste and mechanical skill employed there are appreciated in no small degree.

Within a few days he has put up in the South Cemetery two monuments; a handsome one of the best Biddeford granite to the late Dr. Laighton, and a splendid family monument of white marble for Mr. John T. French.

At the Marble Works, corner of Vaughan and Deer Streets, is now being wrought a very heavy sarcophagus of white marble, for the late John C. Philbrick of Rye, formerly of the Faragut and Atlantic Houses; and a neat monument in marble, for the late Jonathan T. Moulton of Hampton, is finished and ready to put up. Here can also be seen more than two hundred headstones and tablets, of all sizes, in every kind and color of Italian and American marble—snow white, gray, dove colored, mottled, &c., ready for the selection of purchasers. Every piece of work is finely finished, and many of the monuments and smaller tablets are really handsome specimens of sculpture. We noticed a child's monument, surmounted by a small lamb, that is perfect in position and workmanship; and two others ornamented with sleeping infants very handsomely executed. A bouquet of flowers, wreaths, and a "cross and crown" (similar to one on the monument recently erected for Hon. Frank Jones,) also attracted our attention by the beavty of their workmanship.

At the Granite Yard on Green Street we saw a very heavy and highly finished curb and posts, for a burial lot in Amesbury, Mass., all ready for delivery; and a massive and costly monument in course of construction for Mr. George S. Yeaton of Exeter. Mr. Yeaton himself furnished the model for this monument, and it will certainly be unique, and we should judge very handsome, too, when finished and set up. The base is 4 feet square at the top, and 2 feet deep; then comes the plinth, 3 feet 6 inches square, and the subplinth, 3 feet square, with a row of hemispheres standing out all around it; then a panelled die; and a nearly egg-shaped ornament, 3 feet long by 1 foot 6 inches in diameter, surmounting the whole. The weight of the finished monument will be about seven tons.

In addition to the work already mentioned, Mr. Treat has considerable of the finer stone work to do for the builders in this vicinity; his force of workmen numbers eighteen of the best mechanics in their line that can be procurred; and a visit to his two establishments will convince any one in want of either Marble or Granite that they can be suited with any kind of either material, quite as handsomely wrought and at as reasonable prices as similar work can be procurred for in either Concord or Boston. There is no need for any one to leave our city for fine stone work.

A delegation from this city went to Manchester, Friday evening, to endeavor to have the State Fair held here.

Associate Justice Bufford of the Police Court held a session Thursday afternoon. Two cases were tried, the offence charged being keeping open saloons after 11 o'clock, P. M. Both parties were convicted, and fined $10 and costs each.

The Contract for building the First Universalist Church (Geo. M. Harding of Portland, Architect,) at Kittery, has been awarded to Wm. W. Locke, Esq., of that town, and is to be completed by the first of July next. The building is to be in the Gothic style of Architecture, 53 by 35 feet on the ground. The builder, Mr. Locke, is known as one of the best mechanics in his line of business in this vicinity, which gives promise of a good specimen of workmanship in the new Church. The Universalist Society at Kittery has prospered greatly during the short time since it was organized, (Rev. Geo. W. Bicknell of this city having officiated as pastor,) and the prompt measures taken to secure a commodious place of worship shows that the members are thoroughly in earnest, which explains the prosperity of the church as a body..

We heartily endorse the commendations of the Hall Comedy and Burlesque Company by the press wherever they have performed. Mr. and Mrs. Hall are a lively couple, Mr. Whiffen is a fine character actor and all seem peculiarly adapted to the parts they assume. Each member of the Company is an actor or actress of rare merit, and the plays are put on the stage in the best manner possible. The Company as a whole is the very best that has appeared here for years. In their acting, there is no straining for effect, no lung-splitting, ear-startling sounds calculated to cause timid persons to spring from their seats with an undefined sense of coming danger, no ranting and raving to make people think the performers have mistaken their vocation.

The ladies and gentlemen (we mean ladies and gentlemen) of this company act naturally, and therein lies their great success. Their performances are calculated to bring out the best class of amusement goers. The Manager and Business Agent, Mr. Charles A. Wing, is so well known that his assurances that the Company is first-class, should be sufficient authority for the Press in other cities to endorse any Company he travels with. We are pleased to hear that the party will return ere long, after "laying off" a week to rehearse new comedies and burlesques. Manager Wing promises a longer stay next time, at which the public will rejoice.

It is altogether out of taste and a breach of courtesy to make direct or indirect allusions in a public performance to citizens. A few may like the notoriety, but the many condemn it. "Show people" should remember the Golden Rule and not "compliment" any person or persons by doubtful allusions that may be deemed insulting and abusive. We fail to see the necessity or excuse for personalities, which come with poor grace especially, from those who advertise a performance, and invite the public to purchase tickets and attend. The victim, who may be present, is startled by being presented with a handle to his name, and has no means of defence, while he is compelled to listen to such attempts at ridicule and becomes the butt of a pun which may not be relished even by the best of men.

We are impelled to write thus for the reason that a member of a troupe recently performing here, was entreated by some ill-mannered individual to mingle in his "Nursery Rhymes" a sort of nick-name, invented in spleen and tending to ridicule a certain deserving gentleman, who is a quiet citizen, minds his own business, and whose only crime is that he has been a candidate for office. Not knowing who the person was or the circumstances of the case, and not having the least intention of hurting any one's feelings, the request was complied with—much to the regret of all present who have self respect enough to respect the rights of others' feelings.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfeb16

SAFE AND PROFITABLE.

THE CENTRAL RAILROAD CO.

OF IOWA,

have now built and equipped, in first-class manner, about

180 MILES OF RAILROAD,

which will complete their entire line, with the exception of laying the track on twenty-five miles, which is already graded. They will thus open

The First Through Line Across the State

from north to south, and, by making a slight detour at one point, they will give

DIRECT COMMUNICATION BETWEEN ST. LOUIS AND ST. PAUL.

This line of Railroad will have very special advantages for both local and through business, besides such superior railroad connections as will secure to it a large portion of the carrying trade of the Great Northwest. The

First Mortgage

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

which are issued upon this road, are limited in amount to $16,000 per mile (while many roads issue from $20,000 to $40,000,) and are offered at 90 and accrued interest, in currency. About two millions and a half of these bonds have already been disposed of, leaving but a small balance unsold, which are being rapidly taken.

The most experienced financiers agree that First Mortgage Bonds, to a limited amount, upon a finished railroad, which is well located for business, are one of the very safest forms of investment.

Parties desiring to secure a first-class security, based upon a railroad practically done, and in the hands of leading capitalists who have a large pecuniary and business interest in its success, will do well to apply at the office of the Company, or any of its advertised agents, for a pamphlet and map, showing the characteristics of the enterprise.

Holders of Government Bonds may exchange them for Central Iowas at a large present profit, beside a handsome increase of interest for a long term of years. Parties making such exchange will receive for each $1,000 Bond a $1,000 Central Iowa Bond, and the following difference in cash (less the accrued interest in currency upon the latter bond,) and in annual interest, this calculation being based upon market prices of December 27th, 1870:—

7-30 GOLD LOAN

—OF THE—

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 1246 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 139 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including the purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to less 560.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitingly recommend as a profitable and perfectly Safe Investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the Entire Road and its Equipments and also as fast as the Road is completed, on

23,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,00 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. Tax; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable at TEN PER CENT. ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, accessible to the people, which is more PROFITABLE OR SAFE.

EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

TOO MUCH IN LOVE.

"And he's really coming back, Leonard? How strange it will be to see him again. And very rich, you say?"

The speaker was a still lovely woman of some thirty-nine or forty years, with the soft, fair skin, abundant hair, and smooth brow that had been hers when she gave her hand to Leonard Tremaine nineteen years before.

"He is, Custance. Does my wife regret her choice and all the self-denial it has entailed on her?" he asked, with a tinge of sadness in his tone.

"No, no; a thousand times no, dear Leonard. I have been happy—oh! so happy in my quiet home with you and our darling, only it brings back the memory of the past, and our promise, Leonard."

"Why not, my love? Do you not believe in Cuthbert Pendennis? Do you doubt that our child will be safe, with him?"

"I should have been safe, but not happy, Leonard. May it not be so with our Adeline."

The husband pressed his wife fondly to him. It was soothing to the modest clergyman, with his five hundred a year and "no expectations," that he should be preferred to the wealthy possessor of as many thousands, for at that figure the income of the long absent Mr. Pendennis was rated by his friends.

"It was perhaps a rash promise, Custance, but it was given in the fullness and the happy sympathy of my heart when I won my sweet bride from my generous rival and was ready to do aught but yield her up as a consolation for his misery."

"And I did not hear of it till our darling was born," she said, half-reproachfully. "And oh, Leonard, she is such a bright, joyous creature, to be sentenced to an unloving marriage with a man old enough to be her father. Besides, I do believe Horace Dasant is seriously in love with her, and he would be such a charming match for her; so young, and handsome and well born. She cannot help liking him, Leonard."

"My daughter is too high-principled and too generous to fail in redeeming her father's promise," said Mr. Tremaine, firmly. "I told Cuthbert Pendennis that if it pleased Heaven to bless me with a daughter, and if he wished to console himself for his rejection by her mother, and deemed her capable of such compensation, she should be his. It may well be that when the time arrives he would have no desire for such a change in his habits and mode of life, or that Adeline may fail to attract and win him, as you did dearest. Lovely as she is, our girl does not resemble you; and if his old predilections remain, she will not satisfy his tastes. Do not disturb yourself, Custance, till we see how the event turns out; only remember if it is claimed, my engagement must be fulfilled. As to Horace Dasant, his father would despise a bride who could not bring his son dower enough to clear the estate from its encumbrances — and certainly Lina would not have as many hundreds as he would require thousands—so dismiss such fancies from your mind, my love. I hope Adeline—"

But his "hopes" were unspoken; for at that moment a bright girl, the very embodiment of Gipsy archness, Saxon fairness, youth and happiness, stepped lightly into the French windows of the little drawing room, throwing her hat and its pale blue trimmings on the floor, in a manner most sadly inconsistent with the modest allowance of a country clergyman's daughter.

"What does my papa hope his wilful daughter will or will not do?" she asked crouching down on an ottoman at his feet. "What sins of omission or commission am I to be warned against committing?"

"I hope my child will not let her fancy run away with her?" he said, gravely; "and that whenever she desires to leave her parents' home, she will be guided in her choice by those who have watched over her from her infancy."

Adeline gazed wonderingly up at her father with a questioning anxiety as he began, then her gay heart vanquished all latent uneasiness as to his meaning, and she burst into a fit of silvery laughter, that was infectious in its mirth.

"Papa! my own dear, grave prophetic papa!" she exclaimed at last, smoothing the reproof he was trying to frame with kisses. "Have you got an unusual number of banns to put up next Sunday that your dear head is bent on such frivolous subjects, instead of the saintly old divinity and logic books that I am sure are written by people all brains and no hearts."

"Silly child! Can you never be serious?" said her mother reprovingly.

"Et tu madre mia!" returned the incorrigible damsel. "That is really too bad! Two to one. I declare I must fetch Horace to help me, or I shall be fairly overmatched. But oh, mamma, do look! What a lovely pair of ponies! and who can they belong to? I do not believe any one in the country has got such a fairy-like turnout. Why, it is turning in at our gate?"

And the girl sprang up to her feet, too engrossed with the uncommon beauty of a pair of half-bred, cream-colored ponies in the lightest and prettiest of phaetons, and driven by a slender, dark-colored young man, certainly not of English birth, to remember that her hand still held the blue ribbons of her hat, and that her hair had escaped from its coils, and was straying in graceful folds down her shoulders.

The parents exchanged looks of embarrassment. A hot flush deepened in Mrs. Tremaine's cheeks, and her husband glanced uneasily from his wife to the equipage.

In another moment the door opened, and without the intervention of a servant, or any announcement of his advent, a man of tall commanding presence, and well cut, though somewhat too decided features, with a bronzed complexion, walked into the room.

"Forgive my unceremonious intrusion," he said, as the elder inmates of the room came half doubtfully towards him; "but I wanted to see whether we were as much altered as the lapse of years might warrant. Tremaine, should you have known me, or you, Custance?"

He pronounced the last word in a low, hesitating tone, as if he scarcely knew by what application to address the matron he had left as a bride elect.

"Pendennis, welcome—a thousand times welcome! Yes, I should have recognized you; and, on my honor, I do believe are less changed than I am, in spite of the broiling sun of India," said Mr. Tremaine. "Is it not so, Custance?"

"I am very—very glad to see you again," was the reply of the lady.

"And this is your daughter, Tremaine," resumed Mr. Pendennis clearing his throat. "At least time has done its work here. Do you know," he added, "I expected to find Miss Tremaine a great deal more womanly and matured. We are so accustomed to see even young girls in India with the manner and appearance of prononce women that it is quite startling to see anything so fresh and so youthful after fifteen."

"Please do not begin your acquaintance with a quarrel, Mr. Pendennis," said Adeline, shaking her pretty head reprovingly. "It is very insulting to depreciate the dignity of my deportment so cruelly; and, besides, how do you know I am more than fifteen?"

"How do I know?" he said with a sign. "It is scarcely likely I can forget." Then, turning from the girl to her parents, he said: "I ought scarcely to have taken you by surprise in this cavalier fashion; but I was so impatient to find myself once more in a real English home, and I rather wanted you to be unprepared for my coming."

His eyes turned slightly towards Adeline as he spoke; but the next moment he had accepted a seat, and by degrees the conversation became more general.

"You will stay with us, of course, Pendennis? Your room shall be ready in half an hour—eh, Custance? and the carriage ——"

"Can go to the inn," interrupted the gentleman. "By the way, there are riding horses there also. If your daughter rides, Tremaine, one of them is a perfectly broken lady's horse, and will be at her command."

"What a fairy godfather has dropped from the clouds, mamma!" exclaimed Adeline, when her father and his friend left the room, to carry out their arrangements. "I do believe he must have been in love with you, mamma, or he would not be so thoughtful and kind."

"Nonsense, Adeline; he is younger than your papa, and they were very intimate before he went abroad; so, of course he is very pleased to see us again."

"Well, he does look younger than papa," said the girl, thoughtfully. "There seems more life and fire in his face, and —"

"He has not had so many anxieties, Lina. Remember, your papa has had a very limited income, and a saucy girl like you to plague him. Mr. Pendennis is rich, and has no one to care about, except himself."

"How sad! He must be very lonely and desolate. You had better make him stay with us a long time, mamma," said Lina meditatively.

"Perhaps he would prefer a home of his own, Lina. He will probably marry."

"Marry! Oh, mamma, what an idea! He is too old to think of such a thing!"

"Nonsense, Adeline! It is only your foolish childishness that makes you think so. He is scarcely in the prime of life, and with a fortune that would command any girl he liked to ask."

"He said I was childish," said the girl; petulantly. "But, mamma, you surely do not think a woman ought to marry a man because he is rich."

"I did not do so, certainly, Lina; but wealth brings great attractions; and I do not suppose Mr. Pendennis would be refused by any one he liked to ask."

"And he would never know whether they liked him," observed the girl. "No, I could not endure that, mamma."

"Your antecedents are not very clear, Lina. Do you mean you should not like to be married for your fortune? For if so you are perfectly safe. I am afraid yours will be a very slender dowry, if you have any at all, my love."

And having thus, as she conceived, performed her duty as a wife and mother in a truly admirable manner, Mrs. Tremaine left the room.

Concluded in our next.

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S
COMPOUND FLUID
Extract Catawba
GRAPE PILLS.
Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.
For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and color, do not necessitate their being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

E

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S
HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND
FLUID EXT. SARSAPARILLA
Will radically exterminate from the system Scrofula, Syphilis, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Sore Legs, Sore Mouth, Sore Head, Bronchitis, Skin Diseases, Salt Rheum, Cankers, Runnings from the Ear, White Swellings, Tumors, Cancerous Affections, Nodes, Rickets, Glandular Swellings, Night Sweats, Rash, Tetter, Humors of all Kinds, Chronic Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and all diseases that have been established in the system for years.

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than other preparations of Sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of Health and Purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pains and swelling of the bones, ulceration of the throat and legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, and Beautifying the Complexion.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S
CONCENTRATED
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
THE GREAT DIURETIC,
has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of Prostate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for Enfeebled and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, and Excesses and Imprudences in Life, Impurities of the Blood, and superseding Copaiba in Affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.

LADIES.

In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives, for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU CURES DISEASES ARISING FROM IMPRUDENCES, HABITS OF DISSIPATION, &c., in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Relaxing and Strengthening the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED
ROSE WASH
cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It speedily eradicates Pimples, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Tetter, Inflammations of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Rash, Moth Patches, Tetter, Ring Worm, Scald Head, Sore Nipples, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and imparts a continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin, H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unbounded patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

Full and explicit directions accompany the medicines.

Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character furnished on application, with hundreds of thousands of living witnesses and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, etc. The proprietor has never resorted to the publication of the testimonials, he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

TOO MUCH IN LOVE.

Cuthbert Pendennis found himself alone in the pretty, spare room of the Rectory, and for a moment forgot that he was not once again the young and ardent man who had, nearly twenty years before, loved and wooed Custance Penfold. Leonard Tremaine and he had been both smitten by her beauty and gentleness; they had agreed that their sympathy in this love should not break their friendship. Only when he left the presence of his beloved, a rejected, heart-broken man, he had vowed not to marry unless it was the daughter of her whom he deemed the very pearl of her sex.

Now he had returned to redeem this pledge. He once again saw his early love. Did he feel a pang of jealous envy as he looked on the wife of his friend? Must it be confessed? He felt instinctively that Custance had chosen aright for his happiness, as well as her own, and that the winning, helpless gentleness of the girl had developed into the soft apathy of the woman, and that his own vigorous energy and quick perceptions would have been balked and deadened by the utter want of congeniality between their natures. But a deep sigh escaped him when he thought of the bright, eager Adeline.

"If I were but younger—if I could go back?" he sighed. "But to purchase such a bright jewel—is it not a sin, and a cruel sin?"

And Cuthbert Pendennis was long ere he slept that night.

* * * * * * *

"It is too bad, Adeline. Ever since that detestable nabob came, you have been engaged to him, and I have scarcely been able to get a word with you. Are you so easily induced to forget old days, and old friends—old lovers?"

"Hush—hush, Horace; you must not speak to me," was the girl's trembling reply; "you know it is wrong—useless."

"I know nothing of the sort, Lina; I only know that I always considered you quite belonged to me, ever since we were children, and till this old fellow came you never avoided me, or made excuses for refusing everything I asked. Now you neither walk with me, nor sing with me, and when we are thrown together you seem as if you could rather talk to any one than me. If I had not by accident, or rather by persistent watching, managed to join you in this dear summer house, I should never have had all this caprice, Adeline. But now I am determined to know the truth."

Cuthbert Pendennis had been an involuntary eavesdropper to this little scene, and he listened breathlessly for Adeline's next reply.

"Horace, there is very little to tell, but you ought to guess without giving me the pain of speaking it. We have been boy and girl hitherto and been indulged in the liberty, which childish friendship warranted. Now, it is different. Neither mamma nor Sir Ralph Dasant would be pleased if we were to do just as—as if ——"

"As if we were something more than friends, Adeline. Are we not so? You know—you must know—how dearly I love you, Lina. I always called you my little wife, when I was a boy, but it was not in jest. I meant it then, and I mean it now, Lina, shall it not be so? Will you not consent?"

"No; I cannot, Horace. Please do not ask it. Your father would never consent to your marrying a girl without fortune; and you would be miserable if you could not spend all you wanted."

"Who told you this, Lina?"

"Mamma did. She said it would be necessary for you, to make you happy, and to help you to live as you ought to do. And I have nothing. So you must never think of me, except as a dear old friend, Horace."

"Oh, yes, I understand. You are too wise, or, your mother teaches you to be so, for such a thing as marrying for love, when you can get hold of a wealthy nabob. But I could never have believed you would sell yourself for gold, Lina—I am glad to be undeceived ere it is too late."

The girl appeared to sit silent and motionless, for the deeply interested listener could not catch the slightest sound.

"Is this your final determination? Adeline, will you not bid me hope, and act on that hope? One word and I am answered."

"Horace, dear Horace, forgive me, but I cannot."

"Forgive you! Never!" thundered the young man sternly, and the next moment he rushed angrily from the spot.

"Sell myself for gold! Oh, no, no, no! Heaven knows I will not! Never, never!" Adeline murmured, as if the words were floating in her brain. "But I could not say so—I could not tell him or anyone!"

And then Cuthbert heard a truly feminine burst of sobbing, such as only the young can indulge in its luxurious abandonment to grief.

"Adeline!"

She started around at the voice, and a scarlet flame rushed over her whole face as she saw the speaker standing

A GOOD OFFER TO THE Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.

E. A. JOY

Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to Call in Day of work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing whether a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.

MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make them more generous offer.

His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an excellent judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the Agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the Best SEWING MACHINES may always be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 2 CHESTNUT ST., nearly opposite the Post Office, Portsmouth, N. H. Twelve Different Kinds to Select from. mh7

NEW FAMILY SINGER SEWING MACHINE

Has proved itself the best for all classes and kinds of operators and work.

All that persons need to do to satisfy themselves of this is to enquire of those who have used them the most.

They Hem, Braid, Tuck, Quilt, Cord, Embroider, Fringes, Ruffle, Fell, Puff, Gather, Fagot, Trim, Bind.

They are light running, easy to learn and keep in order and for durability unrivalled.

They will stitch equally well from the heaviest beaver or the thinnest muslin, in fact they will do every useful work that mechanical skill has yet perfected for the Sewing sex.

These celebrated Machines are Sold for Cash or on the instalment principle, as best suits convenience of the purchaser, at the Regular Agency for Portsmouth, Kittery, York, Eliot, Newcastle, Rye, Hampton, North Hampton, Hampton Falls, Greenland and Seabrook.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, even surface, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS,
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfobtf

JURUBEBA. WHAT IS IT?
IT IS A SURE AND Perfect Remedy for all diseases of the
LIVER AND SPLEEN, ENLARGEMENT OR OBSTRUCTION OF INTESTINES, URINARY, UTERINE OR ABDOMINAL ORGANS, POVERTY OR A WANT OF BLOOD, INTERMITTENT OR REMITTENT FEVERS, INFLAMMATION OF THE LIVER, DROPSY, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD, ABSCESSES, TUMORS, JAUNDICE, SCROFULA, DYSPEPSIA, AGUE AND FEVER, OR THEIR CONCOMITANTS.
DR. WELLS, having become aware of the extraordinary medicinal properties of the South American Plant, called
JURUBEBA,
Sent a special commission to that country to procure it in its native purity, and having found its wonderful curative properties to even exceed the anticipations formed by its great reputation, has concluded to offer it to the public, and is happy to state that he has perfected arrangements for a regular monthly supply of this wonderful Plant. He has spent much time experimenting and investigating as to the most efficient preparation from it, for popular use, and has for some time used in his own practice with most happy results the effectual medicine now presented to the public as
Dr. Wells' Extract of Jurubeba,
and he confidently recommends it to every family as a household remedy which should be freely taken as a BLOOD PURIFIER in all derangements of the system and to animate and fortify all weak and Lymphatic Temperaments. 4wap18

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

MONDAY, APRIL 24, 1871.

POLITICAL.—A Washington special says the Democrats of the District of Columbia are very much cowed by the awful whipping they received at the polls. A great many Conservative white voters for the first time voted the Republican ticket. As a rule, the men of progress joined hands with the colored voters to elect Chipman, and the old secesh element had only the Irish to depend upon and some of the Irish voters left their old party associates. Everybody admits that the result will strengthen the administration.

The Texas Legislature has not yet made provision for the election of Congressmen, but it is thought the election will take place next November. The Republicans are organizing all over the State, and feel confident that they have a large majority.

THE CONNECTICUT ELECTION.—The canvassers who met on the 21st to canvass officially the returns of the vote for governor and other State officers will report the following figures to the legislature: James E. English, 47,492; Marshall Jewell, 47,450; scattering, 17, which would give English a majority of 25. There was a manifest error in giving English 2 too many in Somers, which if the legislature corrects, will reduce his total to 47,490. There are disagreeing returns from Cheshire, where a full investigation will no doubt add 23 to Jewell's vote, making his total 47,473, which with 17 scattering would make 47,490, the same as English. Of the scattering, three and possibly six votes will be counted by the legislature for English. There is a statement, however, from the New Haven moderator, of a probable mistake in the fourth ward count, giving 100 too many for English, and from Enfield of 24 too many for English. These statements will go to the legislature, and if the mistake is shown there as claimed, Jewell will be declared governor by about 90 majority. Morris Tyler, republican, is elected lieutenant-governor by 192 majority, and David P. Nichols, republican, treasurer, by 256 majority. Owing to informality in the returns and incorrectly-spelled ballots, the canvassers cannot declare that any one has a majority for secretary of state or comptroller. The legislature will elect Hiram Appleton secretary of state and James W. Manning comptroller, both republicans. The votes manifestly intended for them would give Appleman 161 majority and Manning 250.

WINANS, the piece of property recently purchased by Tammany to secure a majority in the New York Assembly, is out in a card, in which he says that "he has saved the State thousands of dollars by preventing an extra session of the Legislature, that he is still a Republican and has the proud satisfaction of knowing that he has done the State great service, rendered an act of justice to the Democratic party and satisfied his own conscience!" He probably mistakes his pocket for a conscience.

THE FUTURE NAVY. — Secretary Robeson sent a communication to the U. S. Senate just before its adjournment stating that the only proposals to him, from any organized or reliable source, to establish iron ship-building yards and docks and to encourage expenditures in the navy, are those of the International Steamship Company, which he transmits with strong indorsements. The Secretary says that he will hereafter endeavor to suggest some system, to be perfected under deliberation, for the establishment of lines of ocean steamers, adapted as may be for commerce in the time of peace and for naval militia in the time of war.

WHAT THEY THINK OF HIM AT HOME.—A package was received at the express office this morning, which came from Dunkirk, and bore the following inscription:—

O. S. WINANS, Member from the Second District, Chautauqua Co., Assembly Chamber, Albany, N.Y.

O. S. Winans:—We send you a copy of the Bible and a strong rope. Ask your friends (if you have any) to assist you. Should you return to Western New York, we will try and have you viewed from the standpoint you deserve.

REPUBLICANS of Western New York. —Albany Evening Journal.

THE lower branch of the Louisville city council has voted conditionally to subscribe $375,000 toward the Louisville and Nashville extension south.

—M. Treilhard, the French minister, has entirely recovered from his recent illness.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

A pulp and slave manufactory has been erected at Keene's Mills. The town has voted to exempt the machinery from taxation for nine years, provided there is $5000 worth of machinery in operation.

On the 17th, in Lebanon, a French lad of eighteen years, named Joseph Laprance, was crushed by the falling of a pile of lumber in the yard of Sturtevant's factory. Both legs were broken, his head cut and such internal injuries received that he died on the 20th.

NEW PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The May number of the Nursery is as hand, filled with the usual variety of pretty stories and verses for the children. Nearly every page has a picture suited to every variety of childish taste. J. L. Shorey, the publisher, at 36 Bromfield Street, Boston, should have the name of every parent on his books.

The Monthly Novelette for May, with sea stories, love stories, hunting adventures, humorous tales and one great story, a guerrilla encounter of the late war, written by "M. Quad," of the Detroit press, Michigan, the same gentleman whose express trip on a locomotive last winter caused a sensation. The publication is cheap at 20 cents per number, or $2 per year. Thomes & Talbot,, 63 Congress Street, Boston, publishers. For sale at the periodical depots.

The Galaxy has just completed the fifth year of its existence, and, from the start, has been constantly gaining in popularity. Its publishers now claim to have made a net gain in circulation of ten thousand copies in the past four months. Few people have any idea of the amount of labor, capital, and time required to establish a first-class magazine; but if successful, in the end the reward seems to be ample.

The Radical for May has an attractive list of articles. The first thing the reader will be likely to turn to is the contribution of hitherto unpublished letters from Theodore Parker by T. W. Higginson. C. C. Shackford supplies a translation of Goethe's conversations with Chancellor von Muller. "Annie Beckett," is concluded. Published at 25 Broomfield St., Boston.

Manufacturers & Builder for May, Western & Co., 37 Park Row New York.

CLOSE SAILING OVER A LONG TRACK. Two British ships, the Edith Warren, Capt. Clark, and the Genesk, Capt. Mallard, both sailed from Calcutta, Jan. 9, and both arrived at New York, Wednesday forenoon: the American ship Lincoln, Capt. Watts, which sailed from the same port, Jan. 3, also arrived at New York, Wednesday. The Edith Warren, though under the British flag, was built in East Boston and is owned by Messrs. Warren & Co.

TIPPOO Saib, the huge elephant belonging to Van Amburgh & Co.'s menagerie, has died of disease of the heart. He was about sixty years old, and was imported to this country from Asia about thirty years ago. He measured about ten feet in height and weighed about ten thousand pounds. His value was estimated at fifteen thousand dollars.

A number of French women, who have been working in the mines for the last eighteen years in men's clothing, have been arrested in a saloon in San Francisco, their sex being discovered for the first time.

A young lady in Brookfield, Conn., who was recovering from the measles, was so severely frightened by a thunder-storm that she died before the storm was over.

WILLIAM D. Bogart, who has disappeared, and is charged with embezzlement of Government funds, was a Paymaster's clerk—not a Paymaster.

WE don't believe it, but this is what a Honolulu paper says:—

Ua noho nei ke kanhooklolo kiure o Honolulu nei, a o ka lakou bana, aole no i pau i ka oea ia moi i ka wa a makou i kakau ai i keia.

—A chaplain of a State prison, an enthusiastic devotee of the temperance reform, had the idea that most of the convicts were incarcerated because of the use of whiskey. In his rounds he met a sturdy man of many stripes, and put the usual question to him: "Had whiskey anything to do with bringing you here?" "Everything, sir," exclaimed the man. The chaplain was encouraged, and eagerly inquired how it was. "Well, I'll tell you how it was; the judge was drunk, and lawyers were all drunk, and so they fetched me in guilty."

—William W. Ward, the chancellor of Memphis, Tenn., formerly a prominent rebel raider under Morgan, a violent advocate for State sovereignty and of the divine right to hold "niggers," died recently in that city.

THE unprofitableness of judicial practice (outside of New York) is seen in the case of the late Chief Justice Taney of the Supreme Court of the U. S., who left a lucrative practice, and after thirty years service on the bench died, leaving his family in a condition of almost actual dependence. The Bar of the Supreme Court have taken measures to raise a fund for their benefit.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On Friday, March 31st, John Page, Esq., of Kingston, was on the road with a load of logs and riding on the drafts. Near home the team went fast and as he jumped off, his clothes caught by a chain so that he did not clear the wheel. His side was crushed and his head much injured. He died the next day. His age was 69. He was a native of the town, formerly a leading business man and of much influence. Besides being Justice of the Peace, he was one of the Selectmen in 1843, '54 and '56, County Commissioner in 1847 and '48, and delegate to the constitutional convention of 1850.

JOB AND CARD PRINTING.—We have made great additions to our jobbing facilities—a mammoth Hand Press (the largest in Portsmouth,) new Display Type, Borders of various sizes, &c.—and are prepared to execute with neatness and dispatch, all orders for FULL SHEET POSTERS, DATE SLIPS, BILL HEADS, CIRCULARS, ADDRESSES, AUCTION BILLS, CONSTITUTIONS, BY LAWS, PROGRAMMES, HANDBILLS, CIRCULARS, ORDERS DANCES, BLANKS, BILL HEADS, RECEIPTS, TICKETS, BUSINESS, MARRIAGE, ADDRESS AND VISITING CARDS, LABELS, TAGS, and in fact PRINTING OF ANY DESCRIPTION, at SATISFACTORY PRICES. Orders received by mail, express, or at the CHRONICLE OFFICE will be promptly filled.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

"Horse-Men," and others who pretend to know, say that the following directions had better be observed in using Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders; Give a horse a tablespoonful every night for a week; the same every other night for 4 or 6 nights; the same for a mich cow and twice as much for an ox. The addition of a little fine salt will be an advantage.

We have heard recently of several severe cases of spinal disease cured by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment; one case of a man forty-five years ago, who had not done a day's work for four years. The back should first be washed, then rubbed with a coarse towel. Apply the Liniment cold and rub in well with the hand. ap22

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Try It.

It is amusing that the feeble should totter, with uncertain steps, over the face of the earth, in danger every day of falling victims to the morbid influences by which we are all surrounded, when a tested and proven vegetable tonic, capable of endowing them with the vigor they need, is procurable in every city, town and settlement. It might reasonably be thought that after the twelve years' experience which the world has had of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS, all would know that its effect is to prevent disease.

At certain seasons the atmosphere is surcharged with the seeds of intermittents, remittents, rheumatism, pulmonary disorders, bilious complaints and the like. Persons whose nervous systems are relaxed are the first to succumb to these distempers. Brace up the physical energies then with this potential vegetable tonic. It is the most powerful recuperant which the botanic kingdom has ever yielded to patient research and experiment. Try it. The blindest discipline of the old medical dogmas will at least admit that a tonic and alterative, compounded of approved herbs, roots and barks can do no harm, while the testimony of thousands invites a trial of its virtues.

Vigor is the thing most needed in these cases as well as in dyspepsia and nervous affections, and HOSTETTER'S BITTERS is the safest, surest and most wholesome strengthening preparation that human skill has yet concocted.

Hundreds of physicians have abandoned all the officinal receipts and prescribed this harmless tonic as a preventive and cure for all cases of chills and fever.

WOODRUFF'S VIOLENE INK,

SOLD BY JOSEPH H. FOSTER.

This Ink is perfectly distinct on first writing; it will not gum up the pen, or rust it, but enamels it with a thin bronze coating which cleans and preserves it; it will not grow thick or mould in the bottle; it dries quickly and will not smut off, but will give a clear impression in a copy-press for three months after writing. Freezing does not injure it and chemicals do not entirely erase it.

A PRECIOUS PUP.—S. Follen Lothrop, formerly of this city, recently purchased at auction in Boston, a white Italian pup, six months old and weighing only four ounces, for $250.

SCHOONER Northern Light, Leland, from Philadelphia for Portsmouth, with coal, which put into New Bedford in distress, about three weeks ago, having been dismasted off Cape Ann, has had masts put in, is taking in her cargo previously discharged, and will proceed to her destination this week.

JOHN Cassidy, who hails from Boston, took an overcoat from the buggy of Nathaniel P. Marston of Greenland, on Daniel Street, Saturday afternoon, and fled through Penhallow Street, pursued by Marston. John dropped the coat, continued his flight and soon after was in the hands of the City Marshal.

PISCATAQUA Lodge No. 6, I. O. of O. F., had made arrangements to have a lecture by Bro. A. J. Patterson on the 26th of April, the 52nd anniversary of Odd Fellowship in this country; but the lecture has been postponed until the 24th of May, the 27th anniversary of Piscataqua Lodge, — we regret to add, on account of the illness of Mr. Patterson. His complaint is an affection of the throat, but we are pleased to announce that he is recovering.

WE witnessed a phenomenon last Saturday on Market Square—nothing less than one of the vehicles used by our forefathers in place of railroads—a velocipede. A well-known (and skillful) machinist of this city was mounted thereon, pursuing the even tenor of his way regardless of the looks of curiosity and wonder with which he was greeted; and the last we saw of him he was driving the relic of days gone by down Congress Street, his legs working like the piston rods of a double-barrelled oscillating engine.

THE STATE FAIR.—At the meeting of the State Agricultural Society, at Manchester, on the 21st, propositions in writing were read from citizens of Portsmouth, Concord, Dover and Great Falls, all offering to furnish grounds, track, buildings, police and music free for the same, and Concord, in addition, hay and straw.

Mr. Clough of Canterbury urged that the State Fair should be held at Concord this year. Messrs. C. H. Hayes, J. D. Butler, E. D. Coffin and F. W. Miller thought it belonged by right to Portsmouth, as it has never been held in Rockingham County, although one of the best farming sections of the State, and possessing more fine horses and fine blood stock than any other.

Manchester people would like the Fair again, but having it last year do not ask it. The Fair has been held in Concord, Laconia, Dover and Nashua, but never in this county, although Portsmouth annually carries off a large portion of the stock premiums. Mr. Clough thought it should be held in the county that had offered the best terms.

Mr. Butler replied that he had no idea the location was to be sold at auction, and in behalf of the delegation from this city would guarantee that Portsmouth would offer more than any other place in the State, if that was to be the necessary desideratum. The meeting appointed the following committee to locate the Fair:—Messrs. Natt Head of Suncook, W. F. Daniell of Franklin, Aaron Young of Portsmouth, G. W. Riddle of Manchester and S. S. Chick of Somersworth.

The Board expect to hold the Fair, September 26, 27, 28 and 29. The premium list will be little, if any, changed from last year.

THE New York Circus is coming.

NEW BOOKS.—Hurd & Houghton have published, among their issues, "Three Successful Girls" and "From Fourteen To Fourscore," written by Julia Crouch and Mrs. S. W. Jewett, respectively. Messrs. Lee & Shepard find quite a demand for both works, which may be ordered of any bookseller in this city.

PERSONAL.—We are glad to welcome home Chief Engineer D. B. Macomb, whom the sensationists of Washington and New York had intimated was at the bottom of the deep, blue sea, on the supposition that the U. S. Steamer Tennessee had gone down. Long may such reports go by contraries, like unto Rory O'Moore's dreams and the Lyre prophet's predictions.

PARKER, of the Ladd Street Eating Rooms, is constantly making alterations and improvements in his accommodations, to keep up with the increasing patronage bestowed upon him by the public. He now proposes to partition the Ladies' Room (up stairs) off into blind stalls, after the pattern of modern eating saloons in Boston and elsewhere; also to enlarge his premises in the rear. He has lately added to his kitchen furnishings a huge refrigerator, which will enable him to keep on hand a large stock of edibles of all kinds. Parker's saloon supplies a want which was long felt, and the good cooking and perfect cleanliness of the establishment are duly appreciated by the hungry public.

HON. Samuel Plumer Dow of Epping died suddenly on Saturday. He was in attendance at the S. J. Court, at Exeter, the day previous. Mr. Dow was a prominent Republican and has been a State Senator and Councillor.

Consumption,
ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE,
By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.
Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends, are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which had they calmly adopted
Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,
and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.
Dr Schenck has in his own person shown that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.
In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by honest and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as their use is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self assuring, self-convincing.
The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach, and respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here, then comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of
CONSUMPTION.
The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they
"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."
The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,
A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.
The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing, without its previous torpitude. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.
Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten throne that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was
GIVEN UP AS LOST.
To depart of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words:
"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption: confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week. I lost like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. As soon as I could hold food, I began to rally, fever, pains and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since."
"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."
Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He is now in Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday, from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.
The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions, and kind Nature will do the rest, excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the ample instructions that accompany them: First, create appetite. Of returning health hunger is the most unfailing symptom. When it comes, take it will come, let the despairing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweats abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.
Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation: while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylactic against consumption in any of its forms.
Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

7-30 GOLD LOAN
OF THE
NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.
RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.
The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 206 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 130 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 560.
A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend as a Profitable and perfectly Safe Investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths' per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on
23,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,00 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. Tax; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.
LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable at TEN PER CENT. ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.
SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, accessible to the people, which is more PROFITABLE OR SAFE.
PRICE NINETY AND ACCRUED U. S. 5-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realising a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.
OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. Liberal CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, &c., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,
ON A COMPLETED ROAD,
FREE OF U. S. TAX,
At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.
Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.
The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established character equal to any mortgage issue dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market price—thus placing them on the same basis; for temporary or permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.
These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands, without competition, all the traffic of Northern Iowa, and South ern Minnesota—shortening the distance from St. Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 50 miles.
The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists that they will more than double within the ensuing year.
A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company obligating the latter to invest 50 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Road in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.
The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stock, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder, at his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the interest obligation.
An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 9½ per cent. interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Government pay at present price, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.
All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. f24dWeS near her, with eager, questioning looks.

"Adeline, can you forgive an unwilling listener in the little scene which has so agitated you? I can hardly regret my involuntary imprisonment, since it has given me courage to say what I came here on purpose to speak—courage to ask you to be my wife—the wife of a man more than double your age, but who will strive to lavish upon you every compensation in his power for such a sacrifice. Adeline, I am rich—far more wealthy than even your parents suppose, and if you will give me your little hand, both you and they shall share in every luxury and indulgence that money can give. Even before your birth your father and I framed such a wish. Will you carry it out?"

A strange shiver ran through her frame, but there was almost a fierceness in her tone as she replied.

"No, no—never! I will not sell myself for gold, as he said! You cannot purchase me, Mr. Pendennis!"

"You are too young to appreciate the advantages of wealth," he said, gravely. "I am sure you could be happy, Adeline. Everything that you could desire or dream would be at your command. You would reign as a fairy queen, and indulge every taste—every caprice. And as you have rejected your younger lover, and are sensibly certain it would be rash imprudence to marry him, I do think you should pause ere you reject my offer."

"No, no!" she reiterated, "I will not be bought! It is unkind—unmanly to press me so cruelly, Mr. Pendennis! As a gentleman, I ask you to leave me!"

"No, not yet, Adeline," he said. "I have, at any rate, proved that you are disinterested and true, and that is some consolation for the pangs you have innocently inflicted. As it is, my foolish dream is over. I would have done my best—I would have tried to guard you from sorrow—to anticipate every wish, watch over every passing caprice; but you are right to rebuke my presumption in thinking I could recompense such a gift as your love. But I will atone, Adeline. Listen to me, calmly if you can. The wealth is now valueless to me, shall be instrumental still to your happiness. The fortune of my adopted child shall not be unworthy of Sir Ralph Dasant's daughter-in-law; and at least, you shall be happy."

"No, I cannot—I will not!" again ejaculated poor Adeline, gaspingly. "Mr. Pendennis, it is impossible! It would be of no use, for—for I can never take it, or—or do what you say!"

"I do not understand you," said Cuthbert, gravely. "Am I in error in believing that the obstacle to your accepting Mr. Dasant was the want of fortune on both sides?"

The girl's head was averted, and she did not speak; but her fingers trembled so violently that she drew them from her companion's observation.

"If you hesitate on my account, Lina, it is needless. I shall never marry—never want a hundredth part of what I possess; and you will give me some balm to my wounds by allowing me to give, during my life, what must certainly be yours at my death."

She turned her glowing face to his now, and her bright eyes blazed through her tears as she spoke her gratitude—perhaps something more.

"You are good and noble, but it must not be! It would only make me miserable, for I cannot marry Horace Dasant. He is an old playfellow—a brother to me—but I cannot love him."

"Adeline, why can you not love him? Is there any one else you do—you could love?"

But the only reply was an increased trembling of the slight frame, and Cuthbert Pendennis could not but feel a glimmering and delightful insight into the truth.

"Adeline, do not trifle with me, for I cannot bear it. I may be mad, vain, presumptuous; but I must try my fate once again. Can you—is it possible you could love me?"

"Yes, I do," was whispered, or rather breathed, on the air, and never was music so sweet in Cuthbert's ears as that slight sound.

He was generous enough to ask no more, but permitted the girl to weep out her agitated revolution of feelings on his shoulder.

"And, pray, why did my darling so determinedly and formally reject my first humble offer?" he asked, archly, when the first tumult of emotion was over.

"Because—because I did not know that you loved me. I thought it was because you had promised papa; and besides, I fancied you would believe I had only accepted you for—"

"For money, you would say, my pet. Well, I certainly might have doubted the possibility of my own happiness, though I could not have suspected the purity and rectitude of my little jewel. Still, it was very fortunate that I was so inquisitive, Lina—at the risk of seeming an impertinent old fellow—or I might have forfeited what will compensate for dreary years of waiting and loneliness. Ah, my darling, I will indeed make you happy!"

* * * * * * *

"So that the young creature has really sold herself—literally sold herself for the old Indian's bags of rupees!" said Sir Ralph Dasant, bitterly, when the engagement was made public.

"My dear Sir Ralph," replied the informant, the spinster lady of the chief Manor House in the neighborhood, "allow me to correct such an error. Adelaide Tremaine could have had the wealth without the husband, but luckily, she was 'too much in love' to accept one apart from the other, and run the risk of bartering a title for her gold."

LUCILLE'S MISTAKE.

The visit over, bidding her adieu,
I took my hat, and, bowing low, withdrew,
Then starting homeward, soon I missed my cane,
Retraced my steps and rang the bell again.
I heard a rush—the door flew open wide—
And with a bound Lucille was at my side,
Around my neck her lovely arms she threw,
Kissed me, ye Gods, she kissed me through and through Stock still I stood, not daring to return, [through.
The glowing kisses that my lips did burn;
I tried to speak and gasped, "I clean forgot—
I left my cane." She started as if shot,
And cried, with sobs she vainly tried to smother,
"Oh dear! Oh dear; I thought 'twas Dan my brother,
What shall I do?" she asked me o'er and o'er.
I lacked the courage to say "Do it more!"
So looking sheepish, seized upon my stick,
And forthwith homeward trotted double-quick.
When on my couch in vain I courted sleep,
I tossed and pondered, "What wealth of love
That girl possesses, other girls above!
And if a brother she should hold so dear,
What must a husband to her heart appear!"
The idea grew; and—well, to end the tale,
I sought her often, and to such avail,
That ere a twelvemonth its full course had run,
I woo'd, I won her—and we twain were one;
And once I told her "that my love began,
That night she kissed me in mistake for Dan."
"For Dan?" said she; "why, bless your stupid head, Poor brother Dan was safe and snug in bed."
"You didn't know it?" "Why, of course I did,"
And in my breast her blushing face she hid.
Through all these years I did not once regret,
My having fallen in the trap she set.
Happy am I and happy, too, I've made her,
Although at times I laughingly upbraid her;
And then she says, "The moral, dear, of this is,
That girls don't often make mistakes—in kisses!"

BASE BALL.—As the fraternity are quite anxious to become posted in reference to the principal points of the amended rules for them for 1871, we give the substance as follows:

"1. The ball now weighs from five to five and a quarter ounces. It measures nine and a quarter inches in circumference, and weight of rubber used in its composition is just one ounce. 2. The pitcher is now obliged to deliver the balls to the bat, 'high' or 'low,' as the striker calls for it. If he asks for a low ball then the ball must be pitched to him between knee and waist, or balls will be called. If he asks for a high ball they must be sent in between waist and shoulder or the penalty will be inflicted. 3. In case the striker calls for a low ball, and fails to hit at the first low ball, for instance, pitched to him, then 'strikes' must be called on him. But a 'strike' cannot be called on the first ball pitched.

4. If a pitcher throws a ball to the bat, either in the ordinary way or by an underhand throw, as so many do, then the umpire must call balls on him for 'foully delivered balls,' and after a sufficient number of balls have been called to give three runs, the game becomes forfeited by the party whose pitcher thus throws the ball. This does not apply to ordinary baulks, however, but only to unfair delivery.

5. If the fence back of the catcher be nearer to home base than ninety feet, every passed ball touching that fence gives the base runner a base.

6. Any pitched ball touching the Umpire becomes a dead ball, and no man can be put out on such a ball, nor can a base be run on it.

7. A player running from home to first base is now allowed to over-run his base, provided that he does not attempt to run to second, but returns to the base directly.

8. The first game of a series having been played, the return game must be played within sixty days of the date of the first game, or the game will be forfeited by the club failing to play the challenging club. The same, too, in the case of a third game.

9. Any member of the club who has been expelled from his club for "dishonorable conduct"—the rule does not define the term—is prohibited from taking part in a match game during the season of his expulsion.

10. With professional clubs the best three in five constitutes a regular series of games of a match. In the Amateur Association the old rule of best two out of three still prevails.

11. A ball being knocked out of the hand of a fielder while touching a base-runner, does not prevent the latter from being decided out.

In the Amateur Association no club can play a man in their nine who has been or is to be compensated for his services, either by "money, place or emolument."

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS, For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs, No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON, After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY: Has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND FLUID Extract Catawba GRAPE PILLS.

Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give no griping pains, but are mildness itself, and are nauseous nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not necessitate their being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

E

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND FLUID EXT. SARSAPARILLA

SPARROWS.

BY MRS. A. D. T. WHITNEY.

Little birds sit on the telegraph wires,
And chitter and flitter, and fold their wings;
Maybe they think that for them and their sires,
Stretched always on purpose these wonderful strings,
And perhaps the Thought that the world inspires,
Did plan for the birds among other things.

Little birds sit on the slender lines,
And the news of the world runs under their feet,—
How value rises and how declines;
How kings with their armies in battle meet;
And all the while, 'mid the soundless signs,
They chirp their small gossipings foolish-sweet.

Little things light on the lines of our lives,
Hopes and joys and acts of to-day;
And we think that for these the Lord contrives,
Nor catch what the hidden lightnings say,
But from end to end his meaning arrives,
And his word runs underneath all the way.

Is life only wires and lightning then,
Apart from that which about it clings?
Are the works and the hopes and the prayers of men,
Only sparrows that light on God's telegraph strings,
Holding a moment and gone again?
Nay; he planned for the birds with the larger things.

TEACHING COWS LATIN.—I once taught my cows Latin. I don't mean that I taught them to read it, for it is very difficult to teach a cow to read Latin or any of the dead languages—a cow cares more for her cud than she does for all the classics put together. But if you begin early you can teach a cow, or a calf (if you can teach a calf anything, which I doubt,) Latin as well as English. There were ten cows, which I had to escort to and from pasture night and morning. To these cows I gave the names of the Roman numerals, beginning Unus and Duo, and going up to Decem. Decem was, of course the biggest cow of the party, or at least she was the ruler of the others and had the place of honor in the stable and everywhere else.

I admire cows, and especially the exactness with which they define their social position. In this case, Decem could lick Novem, and Novem could lick Octo, and so on down to Unus, who couldn't lick anybody except her calf. I suppose I ought to have called the weakest cow Una, instead of Unus, considering her sex; but I didn't care much to teach the cows the declension of adjectives, in which I was not very well up myself; and besides, it would be of little use to a cow. People who devote themselves too severely to the study of the classics are apt to become dried up; and you should never do anything to dry up a cow.

Well, these ten cows knew their names after a while, at least they appeared to, and would take their places as I called them. At least, if Octo attempted to get before Novem in going through the bars (I have heard people speak of a 'pair of bars' when there were six or eight of them,) or into the stable, the matter of precedence was so settled there was no dispute about it afterward. Novem either put her horns into Octo's ribs, and Octo shambled to one side, or else the two locked horns and tried the game of push and gore, until one gave up. Nothing is stricter than the etiquette of a party of cows.

There is nothing in royal courts equal to it; rank is exactly settled, and the same individuals always have the precedence. You know that at Windsor castle, if the royal three-ply silver stick should happen to get in front of the most royal double and-twisted golden rod, when the court is going into dinner, something so dreadful would happen that we don't dare to think of it. It is certain that the soup would get cold while the golden rod was pitching the silver stick out of the castle window into the moat, and perhaps the island of Great Britain itself would split in two. But the people are very careful that it never shall happen, so we shall probably never know what the effect would be.

Among cows, as I say, the question is settled in short order, and in a different manner from what it sometimes is in other society. It is said that in other society there is sometimes a great scramble for the place, for the leadership as it is called, and that woman, and men too, fight for what is called position; and in order to be the first they will injure their neighbors by telling stories about them and by backbiting, which is the meanest kind of biting there is, not excepting the bite of fleas. But in cow society there is nothing of this detraction in order to secure the first place at the crib, or the further stall in the stable. If the question arises, the cows turn in, horns and all, and settle it with one square fight; that ends it.

—The strongest propensity in woman's nature, says a careful student of the sex, is to want to know what is going on, and the next strongest is to boss the job.

—A few iron nails placed in a vase with flowers will keep the water sweet and the flowers fresh. This arises from the sulphur eliminated from the plants combined with the iron.

A GOOD OFFER TO THE Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.
E. A. JOY

Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to bring in lots of work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing whether a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.

MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make the above generous offer.

His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an excellent judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the Agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the best SEWING MACHINES may always be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 9 PLEASANT ST., nearly opposite the Post Office, Portsmouth, N. H. Twelve Different Kinds to Select from. mh7

7,916 more than the Wheeler & Wilson S. M. Co.

We publish the above figures to show the uninitiated and those who contemplate purchasing, what machine is the public favorite.

The above list includes all of what are commonly called the first class machines, but the

NEW FAMILY SINGER SEWING MACHINE

Has proved itself the best for all classes and kinds of operators and work.

All that persons need to do to satisfy themselves of this is to enquire of those who have used them the most.

They Hem, Braid, Tuck, Quill, Cord, Embroider, Fringes, Ruffle, Fell, Puff, Gather, Fagot, Trim, Bind.

They are light running, easy to learn and keep in order and are durability itself.

They will stitch equally well the heaviest beaver or the thinnest muslin, in fact they will do every useful work that mechanical skill has yet perfected in the Sewing art.

These celebrated Machines are Sold for Cash or on the Installment principle, as best suits convenience of the purchaser, at the Regular Agency for Portsmouth, Kittery, York, Eliot, Newcastle, Rye, Hampton, North Hampton, Hampton Falls, Greenland and Seabrook.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.

It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.

I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.

I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfeb16

JURUBEBA. WHAT IS IT?
IT IS A SURE AND Perfect Remedy for all diseases of the
LIVER AND SPLEEN, ENLARGEMENT OR OBSTRUCTION OF INTESTINES, URINARY, UTERINE OR ABDOMINAL ORGANS, POVERTY OR A WANT OF BLOOD, INTERMITTENT OR REMITTENT FEVERS, INFLAMMATION OF THE LIVER, DROPSY, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD, ABSCESSES, TUMORS, JAUNDICE, SCROFULA, DYSPEPSIA, AGUE AND FEVER, OR THEIR CONCOMITANTS.
DR. WELLS, having become aware of the extraordinary medicinal properties of the South American Plant, called
JURUBEBA,
Sent a special commission to that country to procure it in its native purity, and having found its wonderful curative properties to even exceed the anticipations formed by its great reputation, has concluded to offer it to the public, and is happy to state that he has perfected arrangements for a regular monthly supply of this wonderful Plant. He has spent much time experimenting and investigating as to the most efficient preparation from it, for popular use, and he for some time used in his own practice with most happy results the effectual medicine now presented to the public as
Dr. Wells' Extract of Jurubeba,
and he confidently recommends it to every family as a household remedy which should be freely taken as a BLOOD PURIFIER in all derangements of the system and to animate and fortify all weak and Lymphatic Temperaments. 4wap18

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

At the commencement of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania, March 15, Miss Emma Farrar of Rindge received the degree of M. D. Miss Frances E. White, of Franklin, is a student in the same college.

It is now reported on good authority that Franklin Rand, who was supposed to have fallen into the Squamscott river at Newmarket Junction on the 11th and been drowned, has been seen, alive and hearty, working on a farm in the country.

On the 18th, in Jefferson, Mr. Asa Pratt, employed in the mill of Mr. Sylvester Holmes, had his left arm sawn off on a bolting saw.

NEW PUBLICATIONS RECEIVED.

The Lady's Friend, for May, has a steel plate of the pride and glory of California — the matchless Yosemite Valley—with its wonderful towering walls of rock, its waterfalls, and clear streams winding through. The colored fashion-plate has portraits of distinguished personages — the former Prince Imperial of France, the Princess Alexandra, the Ex-Empress Eugenie, the Princess Louise—attired in the latest style. "The Fishermen," is a fine wood-cut. "My Method" is a strikingly original story. "One Woman's Experience," is continued, and a "A Summer Campaign" is a lively and amusing sketch. $2 50 a year (which also includes a large steel engraving.) Deacon & Peterson, Philadelphia.

Wood's Household Magazine, May number, we hardly recognized; it has donned new spring clothes. Its contents are unexceptionable, and among its list of contributors are some of the most noted writers of the day. The Magazine is furnished for the small sum of $1. Specimen copy free. Address S. S. Wood & Co., Newburgh, N. Y.

Good Health completed its second year with the May number. It is the only popular medical magazine in the world, based on science. Valuable improvements are promised in the new volume. It should be in every family. Published by Alexander Moore, 11 Bromfield St., Boston.

The Nursery is full of pretty pictures, as usual, with just such reading as its little readers want. It is the magazine for the little folks, and has no equal.

S. J. Court, Exeter, April 24th.—In case Torrey vs. Plaisted, tried on Friday, the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff, in the sum of $175.75.

The following jurors from Portsmouth were in attendance; Wm. R. Martin, Joseph K. Dupray, Timothy J. Trafton and Benj. F. Canney, from Ward 1.

Michael Dolan and wife vs. Simeon D. York was tried. This is an action for assault and battery, alleged to have been made by the defendant, a physician of Windham, on Mrs. Dolan in October last, for which the plaintiffs claim $500 for injuries sustained by the wife in a quarrel concerning some apples on a place which the testator of a will of which the Dr. was Executor has leased to the Dolans. The Dr. denies the assault. Bartlett for plff; Marston for deft.

What Winan's Constituents think of Him.—The republicans of Jamestown, New York, have unanimously adopted resolutions branding Winans as a traitor to the party, repudiating him as their representative, demanding his resignation and requesting him never to return to his assembly district, but to take up his residence in the "Bloody Sixth" ward of New York among his congenial associates.

Connecticut.—The canvassers have given a certificate of election to Congressman Kellogg, Republican, of the second district, over Kendrick's protest. The pluralities of the several candidates for Congress are as follows: First district, Strong 265; second district, Kellogg 49; third district, Starkweather 1507; fourth district, Barnum 1184.

An Indiana schoolmaster lifted a boy by the ear. That reminded the boy of something he had in his pocket. It was a knife, which, being of no use in his pocket, he struck into the schoolmaster's left side. The schoolmaster's heart was so much affected by this cutting reminder that he at once gave ear to that boy, and has never lifted any little boys since.

At the public mortaurie of Paris, about one in every three hundred persons supposed to be dead actually comes to life.

The lectures of Prof. Tourjee, Sunday, on "Music as an element of worship," were interesting and valuable. The Professor, whose reputation as a musical conductor gives great weight to his opinions in such matters, strongly opposes the florid interludes which many church organists delight to interpolate between the vesres of hymns; he advocates no interludes at all, and the abolition of the "out voluntary" on the organ. He also favors congregational singing, though he would not do away with choirs, or even quartets; but the quartet he would have only as a part of a larger choir, to render such words of the masters of musical composition as the larger body could not perform,—and the choir in turn should be but to lead the congregation, and not to do all the singing for them. The introduction of secular music, with no devotional sentiment in it, into divine worship, the Professor classed with the high-rig-a-gig style of organ playing, and strongly reprobated it. He considers such music as being good enough in its place, but that its place is not in church service. He does not by any means believe that only dirges and gloomy pieces should be sung, however, but that such music as is devotional should be selected, instead of such as merely serves to show off the singing or scare the congregation. And he warmly urges that music should have a far more prominent place in divine worship than it now has, as was the case in the early days of the christian church.

The Praise Meeting at the North Church, in the evening, gathered an immense congregation. An orchestra, stationed near the preacher's desk, took part, and the great throng were requested to all join in the singing. At first the chorus was rather faint, considering the number of vocalists, but as their timidity wore off the volume of sound increased, until at last a good idea could be formed of the grand effect of what very few of the hundreds present had ever heard before—real "Congregational Singing."

Before closing the exercises of the evening, the following preamble and resolutions were offered by Rev. C. M. Dinsmore, (who was largely instrumental in securing the services of Prof. Tourjee,) and unanimously adopted:—

Whereas, Prof. Tourjee's valuable services rendered in our behalf are entirely gratuitous, therefore

Resolved, That our most sincere thanks be given to Prof. Tourjee for his very interesting and excellent lecture on "music as an element of worship" delivered in our hearing to-day.

Resolved, That the Praise Meeting enjoyed this evening has afforded us a delightful religious exercise and been greatly promotive of the interest in Christ's cause in our midst.

Resolved, That we appreciate the kindness of our musicians in extemporizing at so short notice a very creditable orchestra.

Resolved, That we will encourage congregational singing in our churches, and in so doing let "all the people praise the Lord."

During the past winter, several men representing themselves as having been sent out as agents for one J. S. Newcomb of Auburn, N. Y., for a new patent sickle bar for mowers, made their appearance in neighboring towns. They exhibited models, which promised to be a decided improvement on the old style of bars, being made so that the sections, when broken, or dull, could be very easily slipped out, singly or all at once, and others inserted in their places. The men left documents perporting to cover certain territory, signed by J. S. Newcomb, with each town agent, and made many promises of sending sample bars, and how, when, and where they should be sent.

The agents were induced to sign a note of $200 in a book, as security to said Newcomb, and at the end of one year the profits of the sale of the bars were to be divided between the parties. A short time since, another man presented for payment to Nathan Brown, of North Hampton,—who accepted the agency of that town—the note of security which he had signed and which had been cut from the aforesaid. After a few minutes' conversation, the man left quite suddenly with a good sized flea in each ear, and the promise of a posterior application.

Farmers and others should be cautious in trusting these travelling swindlers, for this case is but a repetition of the swindling pitchfork transactions of a few years since, wherein some neighboring towns were defrauded by the rascals. All persons are cautioned against negotiating for the note, signed by said Brown, for the above sum, it having been fraudulently obtained.

President Grant, on his way to St. Louis, had a grand reception at Indianapolis, on the 22d, being the guest of Senator Morton.

FRANCE.

A Versailles dispatch of the 23d says Dombrowski led the night attack on the barricade at the quay of Asnieres, which was carried. He then attacked the second barricade, but was repulsed with great slaughter by the heavy fire of 12 pounders and mitrailleuses. His forces were also driven from the first barricade.

It is reported that the Versaillists are in possession of Charenton and Nogent.

Nearly 800 people are out of work in Paris through the suppression of newspapers.

Hon. Samuel P. Dow of Epping denies the report that he is dead. Glad to hear it.

Wash the Trees.—It is a good time to scrape and wash the trees—washing alone will do if scraping was done last autumn, as it should have been. There is nothing like whale-oil soap and water for this purpose, in the proportion of a pound of soap to a bucket of water, say four gallons. This well applied with a stiff broom or brush will dislodge all the vermin concealed in the bark, crevices, &c., but it will have no effect upon the curculio however strong it may be. We have found it to be death to every other insect, and has an invigorating effect upon the tree itself. —Germantown Telegraph.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

"Horse-Meo," and others who pretend to know, say that the following directions had better be observed in using Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders; Give a horse a tablespoonful every night for a week; the same every other night for 4 or 6 nights; the same for a milch cow and twice as much for an ox. The addition of a little fine salt will be an advantage.

☞ If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watering or weak, feel dull and stupid or debilitated, pain or pressure in the head, take cold easily, you may rest assured that you have the Catarrh. Thousands annually without manifesting half the above symptoms, terminate in Consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive or less understood by physicians. R. V. Pierce, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y., is the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy—a perfect specific for Catarrh, "Cold in the head," Catarrhal Headache, which he sends to any address, postpaid, for sixty cents, or four packages for $2. Sold by most druggists everywhere.

We have heard recently of several severe cases of spinal disease cured by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment; one case of a man forty-five years ago, who had not done a day's work for four years. The back should first be washed, then rubbed with a coarse towel. Apply the Liniment cold and rub in well with the hand. ap22

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Try It.

It is amusing that the feeble should totter, with uncertain steps, over the face of the earth, in danger every day of falling victims to the morbid influences by which we are all surrounded, when a tested and proven vegetable tonic, capable of endowing them with the vigor they need, is procurable in every city, town and settlement. It might reasonably be thought that after the twelve years' experience which the world has had of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS, all would know that its effect is to prevent disease.

At certain seasons the atmosphere is surcharged with the seeds of intermittents, remittents, rheumatism, pulmonary disorders, bilious complaints and the like. Persons whose nervous systems are relaxed are the first to succumb to these dispersers. Brace up the physical energies then with this potential vegetable tonic. It is the most powerful recuperant which the botanic kingdom has ever yielded to patient research and experiment. Try it. The blindest disciples of the old medical dogmas will at least admit that a tonic and alterative, compounded of approved herbs, roots and barks can do no harm, while the testimony of thousands invites a trial of its virtues.

Vigor is the thing most needed in these cases as well as in dyspepsia and nervous affections, and HOSTETTER'S BITTERS is the safest, surest and most wholesome strengthening preparation that human skill has yet concocted.

Hundreds of physicians have abandoned all the official receipts and prescribed this harmless tonic as a preventive and cure for all cases of chills and fever.

THERE was a launch on Saturday, April 22, from the yard of Messrs. Tobey & Littlefield, of a schooner, the "G. W. Raitt." Her dimensions are; length 75 feet, breadth 22 feet, depth 4 1-2 feet. She is intended for the coast trade, and will carry a large cargo on a light draught of water. She will hail from Dover, where she is owned. We believe there is now no vessel in course of construction on the river.

JOHN Rice, Esq., whose death we chronice this morning, was a wealthy and esteemed citizen of the town of Kittery, which was his native place. He was a brother of Major Alexander Rice, so well known to the travelling public, and was formerly Naval Store Keeper at this Navy Yard, during President Fillmore's administration. It is stated that the deceased leaves a large amount of valuable real estate and other property.

Communicated.

Messrs. Editors:—I wish to call the attention of your numerous readers to the magnificent show of tea-roses to be seen at the Green-house in Kittery. Such a wealth of beauty and fragrance is seldom seen or enjoyed by poor plodding mortals in this latitude; so I hope that everybody who can steal an hour or two of time from business will improve it to make Mr. Rogers a visit, and if they don't feel that their time is well spent then I will not ask them to another show of the kind. THE Annual Parish Meeting of the Unitarian Society was held in the church on Monday afternoon. Wm. H. Rollins was chosen Moderator of the meeting, and James F. Shores, Jr., was elected Clerk of the Parish for the ensuing year.

The Treasurer's Report was then read, as also that of the Wardens and the Trustees of the Charity Fund, which reports were approved.

Messrs. John S. Pray, Alfred M. Hoyt, John T. French, Joseph A. Grace and William W. Cotton were chosen to act as Wardens for the ensuing year.

The following sums were then voted for the current expenses of the Society for the ensuing year: pastor's salary, $2500; music, $1200; and other items, bringing the total up to $6210.

It was voted that the interest of the Parish in the Trundy estate be referred to the Trustees of the Charity Fund, with power to act as they deem best for all parties concerned.

Mr. Ebenezer Wyatt was unanimously voted a gratuity of $50 or its equivalent, for his long and faithful services as sexton of the church for 25 years. That amount was then added to the appropriation bill, making a total of $6260.

JOE. Gardner, of Providence, known in various capacies fifty years ago; known on South Water Street for the last thirty years, has passed into the immortal life. "Truly as the Lord liveth," said David to Jonathan, "and truly as thy soul liveth, there is but a step between me and death." Joe Gardner was blind of an eye, and in a moment of confusion he stepped, in an instant, out of a receiving and discharging door in one of the warehouses into the ineffable glories of the celestial sphere.

BEN. Wade declines to run for Governor of Ohio.

Consumption,

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE,

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they only adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalids made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self assuring, self-convincing, self-evident.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the firstlow weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here, then comes the enfeebling cough, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Pedophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing, without its previous torpitors. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten throne that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words:

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption: confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pains and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since."

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Philadelphia. His son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday, from 8 A. M. to 1 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions, and kind Nature will do the rest, excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than simple instructions that accompany them: First, create appetite. Or returning health hunger is the most welcome sensation. When it comes it will come, let the despairing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweat is abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation: while the Pulmonic Syrup as a cure of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylactic against consumption in any of its forms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

7-30 GOLD LOAN

—OF THE—

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 260 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 130 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 560.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend as a Profitable and perfectly Safe investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths' per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on 20,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,000 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. TAX; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable at TEN PER CENT. ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment accessible to the people, which is more REMUNERATIVE OR SAFE.

EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX,

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established character equal to any mortgage issue dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market rates—thus placing them on the same basis; for temporary or permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.

These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands without competition, all the traffic of Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota—shortening the distance from St. Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 90 miles.

The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists that they will more than double within the ensuing year.

A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company obligating the latter or its successor, to pay 50 per cent of earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Road in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the Bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stock, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder, at his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the interest obligation.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 9½ per cent. interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Governments pay at present rate, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.

All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. f24dWaS

PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF

HAMLET'S SOLILOQUY.

To insure or not to insure? That is the question.
Whether 'twill be nobler for my family to suffer
The stings and arrows of outrageous fortune
Or take a policy against those dangers,
And, by insuring, end them? To fret, to fear,
No more; and by a policy to end
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to. Yes, my application's
Devoutly to be wished; apply, insure,
And pay the premium!—there's the rub
For in that time what premiums may come
Before I shuffle off this mortal coil
Does make me pause, tightens my purse,
And makes me rather pay the bills I have
Than fly to others I know not of.
Thus does meanness make brutes of us all.

LIFE'S "GOOD NIGHT."

The candle-light burns low,—
It is late, and I must go
To my rest;
Good night, dear! Good night!
We shall meet at morning light;
It is best.

The day has been so long!
Do not hold me with your strong
Bands of love:
I am weary of the toil;
From its traces I recoil,
O, my dove.

I will sleep now, my sweet!
In my path let other feet
Walk their way;
And God help them to be true
As was I to him and you
All the day.

There.—my eyes so heavy grow!
Now my darling, let me go!
Yes, O yes;
"Love has brightened all the way,"
And it will eternally
Give us bliss.

A MINING REMINISCENCE.—A mountain trail—a narrow, tortuous, difficult path. Two miners, with their estates tied up in ropes and slung across their backs, scrambled wearily up it, and sighed. As he looked across the green expanse of the valley below, to the brown majesty of the opposite mountain range, and over into the fathomless ether beyond, a look not of earth crept into his eyes, transforming his face with something of the glory of the Transfiguration. His companion, rough and hard though he was, observed the change and appeared to have some vague and imperfect idea of its nature, for without a word, he grounded his own luggage and sat himself thoughtfully upon a rock. For some time the two maintained a silence which was intensified rather than broken by the just distinguishable murmur of the river a thousand feet below. The wind whispered its eternal secret to the pines, and the sun, flaming grandly above, flung wave after wave of light against the hills, which sent back faint pulsations of heat, as it were an echo.

"Jim"—and the voice of the miner was choked and husky, as if troubled in its lowest depths by some struggling emotion—"Jim, we two've been good friends—aint we?"

Whether it was because he did not thoroughly know what was coming, and so declined to commit himself, or whether he had a delicate consciousness that to reply to such a question would imply a misconstruction of its purport, Jim maintained a grave silence, merely shifting his great hands alternately, the one above the other, upon the vertical handle of his pick. The uncertain light in the eyes of the speaker grew by imperceptible degrees into a positive gleam of intense longing, as he continued:

"Jim, I'm not a feller to ask favors: you know that. Ever since we two've been pardners, you've never knowed me to git a man to hold my dust while I attended to the cards, without my bein willin to hold his'n the same. Now, partner, I feel that I can't drift no further on this level, and I guess I've got to go down lower. But 'fore I go, I want you to tell me, honest, who 'twas shot me that night at the fandango over at Spanish Camp. The thought that I was fired into by some stranger who wasn't a-taken' no hand, and come near havin' my light snuffed out by some one unbeknown to me, is not a good thought to die on. When I git down yonder, and they ask me who made this yer hole in yer back? I'd like to tell 'em, so't they could spot him when he comes. 'Tain't no case for human justice; we hav'nt got nothing invented yet as'd do it right for him. And Jim, don't go for him yourself: that man's too mean for killin'." The dying man ceased, but Jim bowed his head lower and lower over the pick-handle in silence, and seemed struggling to suppress a sob. Finally he asked, in an almost audible tone:

"Bill, are you quite sure you're a-playin' out fast?"

"I'm coilin' up my riata, Jim."

"How long mout you last yet?"

"Not mor'n ten minutes at the outside."

Jim straightened himself up on his rock with a jerk.

"Bill, I won't never get after that feller—leastways, not till I commit suicide. I fired that shot that's a doin' for you!" Then half apologetically: "I didn't know you then, Bill, or I shouldn't 'a shot without singin' out to you that I was on it."

That extremely moribund miner rose to his feet; more properly, there was a vast upheaval of his frame, which seemed to expand at every point as it finally towered aloft like a blasted cedar:

"Jim," he flamed out, "'boards a fair play; and ever since we two've been pardners you never know'd me to take back a card. But in sayin' what I did about human justice, I throwed away a queen when I knowed I held a bower. Jim, I take back that play; I'm after your scalp, pardner!"

The spot is still pointed out to the traveller.—Overland Monthly.

DECAY OF THE LATIN RACES.—This triumph of Prussia over France has even a broader significance than appears to the unthinking observer. It revolutionizes the leading influence of Europe. It is the triumph of the Teuton over the Latin, of Protestantism over Romanism, of the new civilization over the old. The Latin races, with their intriguing priesthood, their ignorant, poor, and superstitious people, monkeries and nunneries, and relics had shame, are sinking to decay. Italy, France, and Spain are all in trouble, while Portugal is hardly counted among the nations, so insignificant and she become. All are bankrupt, and neither seems to hold within itself the power of recovery. France is a republic to day, nominally; but those who know France well, will be surprised if she remain a republic for a year. The whole head of France is sick, and the whole heart is faint. The Latin blood, wherever it flows, seems to be weak and corrupt.

There are men of ideas and pure life and noble aspiration in all these countries; but what are they, what can they do, against a church organization, hoary with experience and perfectly united in its object—that object being the perpetuation of its own power, at whatever cost, against all the encroachments of freedom and free thought? Spain knows, Italy knows, and poor France will know within a twelve-month. Nothing but universal education—instituted, controlled, and directed by the State—and a free Bible, with free men to preach its truths, can save the whole Latin race from fatal degeneration and decay. Without these regenerating influences, France will follow Spain and Italy into a powerlessness that will be alike her protection from national jealousy and her degradation from the world's respect. Bound as these people are by so many chains, it is impossible for them to hold a respectable footing in the race of free nations for power and greatness. The Teuton blood with its affiliations, is the blood of the future. The Teutonic languages are the languages of the future; and Protestant civilization, under various forms and phrases—moving through various modes of progress—is the civilization of the future. Does any one doubt it? Let him point to a single Catholic nation that is making progress to-day, and to a single Protestant nation that is not!—DR. J. G. HOLLAND, in Scribner's for May.

A Chicago paper, speaking of the performances at one of the theatres in that city, tells the following story:—

"A few nights since, Bob Hart and William Manning were doing the sketch of 'The Quiet Lodgings.' The position was Manning on the bed endeavoring to enjoy the Quiet Lodgings, and Hart at right of the stage. Enter a mechanical rat worked by a string leading to the wings. All was quiet as the rat entered, when a fourth party suddenly appeared in the shape of a huge yellow cat, who took up her position in the wings. Yellow cat caught sight of the mechanical rat, and prepared for the fatal spring. Hart tried to keep a sober face and forgot his lines. Manning, on the bed, begged Hart not to discourage the cat and forgot his lines. Yellow cat crouched to the stage floor, and, working her way along, made a spring for the rodent, but missed it, as the man in the wings hauled it back. Nothing discouraged, Tabitha took up her position again, with the audience screaming with delight.

"Then enter two rats, who were to disturb Manning in his Quiet Lodgings. Tabitha was fearful of the odds, ventured out on the stage a little ways and then retired in good order to await the motions of the enemy. When the two rats had gone, rat No. 1 was to re-enter. Tabitha was in readiness; she gave a plunge toward him and became tangled in the string. Clearing herself, she looked at the string and then at the rat, evidently impressed with the novelty of the situation. As the rat was going off, however, there was little time to lose. She gathered herself together, and, with a magnificent spring, described a curve through the air; but, alas for the deceptions of man, the rat was pulled into the wings, and Tabitha missed her supper and retired disgusted. Neither Manning nor Hart knew their lines after that, and the last words heard from William, as the curtain went down on the convulsed audience, were: 'Don't discourage her, Bob; she is doing her part well.'"

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.
After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.
No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.
All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.
TESTIMONIALS.
"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."
"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents.
"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S
COMPOUND FLUID
Extract Catawba
GRAPE PILLS.
Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.
For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not necessitate their being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

E

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than other preparations of Sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of Health and Purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pains and swelling of the bones, ulcerations of the throat and legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, and Beautifying the Complexion.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S
CONCENTRATED
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
THE GREAT DIURETIC,
has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Gravel, Bright's Disease, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucuous or Milky Discharges, and for Enfeebled and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.
Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, and Excesses and Imprudences in Life, Impurities of the Blood, etc., Diseases and Disorders of a Delicate Nature, from used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.
LADIES.
In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is unsqualed by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU CURES DISEASES ARISING FROM IMPRUDENCES, HABITS OF DISSIPATION, &c., in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Preventing and Curing Strictures of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED
ROSE WASH
cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It speedily eradicates Pimples, Spots, Scorbutic Dryness, Indurations, and all Cutaneous Eruptions, clipsels Redness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Rash, Moth Patches, Dryness of Scalp or Skin, Frost Bites, and all purposes for which Cosmetics or Ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of the vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin. H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unbounded patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refreshner of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

Full and explicit directions accompany the medicines.
Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character furnished on application, with hundreds of thousands of living witnesses and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest source, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, etc. The proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

The Chronicle.

FOR MODERATE DRINKERS.—A "merchant prince" of New York—a portly "six-footer" of great manly beauty, who never dined without his brandy and water, nor went to bed without a terrapin or oyster supper, and who was never known to be drunk — died of chronic diarrhœa, a common end of those who are never intoxicated, never out of liquor. Hall's Journal of health gives this account of his death:

Months before he died—he was a year in dying—he could eat nothing without distress, and at death the whole alimentary canal was a mass of disease; in the midst of his millions he died of inanition. He had been a steady drinker, a daily drinker for twenty-eight years. Scrofula had been eating up one daughter for fifteen years; another is in the madhouse; the third and fourth were of unearthly beauty; there was a kind of grandeur in that beauty; but they were blighted, and paled and faded—into Heaven, we trust—in their sweet teens; another is tottering on the verge of the grave, and only one is left with all the senses, and each one of them is as weak as water.

The same periodical instances another case that should supplement the one just given:—

A gentleman of thirty-five, was sitting in a chair with no specially critical symptoms present; still he was known to be a dissipated young man. He rose, ran fifty feet, fell down and died. The whole covering of the brain was thickened, its cavities were filled with a fluid that did not belong to it, enough to kill half a dozen with apoplexy; a great portion of one lung was in a state of gangrene, and nearly all the other was hardened and useless; blood and yellow matter plastered the inner coverings of the lungs, while angry patches of destructive inflammation were scattered along the whole alimentary canal. Why, there was enough of death in that one man's body to have killed forty. The doctor who talk about guzzling liquor every day being "healthy" is a perfect disgrace to the medical name and ought to be turned out to break stones for the term of his natural life, at a shilling a day, and find himself.

A MONKEY TEACHER.—In my drinking days I had a friend who had a monkey, which he valued at a high price. We always took him out on our chestnut parties. He shook all our chestnuts for us, and when he could not shake them off, he would go to the very end of the limb, and knock them off with his fist. One day we stopped at a tavern and drank freely. About half a glass of whiskey was left, and Jack took the glass and drank its contents, the effects of which soon brought him into full operation—skipping, hopping, and dancing, most entertainingly. Jack was drunk. Being six in number, it was agreed that we should come to the tavern next day and get Jack drunk again, and have sport all day. I called in the morning at my friend's house, who went after Jack. But instead of being as usual on his box, he was not to be seen. We looked inside, and there he was, crouched up in a heap. "Come out here," said his master. Jack came out on three legs, applying his fore paw to his head. Jack had the headache. He felt just as I felt many a morning. He was sick and couldn't go.

So we put it off three days. We then met, and while drinking a glass was provided for Jack. But where was he? Skulking behind the chairs. "Come here, Jack," said his master, "and drink," holding a glass out to him. Jack retreated, and as the door opened, he slipped out, and in a moment was on the top of the house.

His master went and called him down. He, however, refused to obey. My friend got a cowskin, and shook it at him, which the monkey disregarded and continued on the ridgepole, still obstinately disobedient. His master got a gun and pointed at him, but unsuccessfully. Jack slipped over to the back of the building. He then got two guns, and had one pointed on each side of the house, when the monkey; seeing his bad case, whipped upon the chimney, and got down in one of the flues, and held on by his fore-paws. My friend kept that monkey twelve years afterward, but never could prevail on him to taste another drop of whiskey.

—A good yoke—The matrimonial. P. S.—Some persons regard it as a good joke.

A GOOD OFFER TO THE Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.
E. A. JOY
Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to bring in lots of work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing whether a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.
MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make the above generous offer.
His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an excellent judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the Agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the Best SEWING MACHINES may always be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 9 PLEASANT ST., nearly opposite the Post Office, Portsmouth, N. H. Twelve Different Kinds to Select from. mh7

THE PUBLIC VERDICT.
THE SINGER
SEWING MACHINE COMP'Y
SOLD LAST YEAR
86781 MACHINES.

51,693 more than the Grover & Baker S. M. Co.
41,781 more than the Howe S. M. Co.
7,915 more than the Wheeler & Wilson S. M. Co.
We publish the above figures to show the uninitiated and those who contemplate purchasing, what machine is the public favorite.
The above list includes all of what are commonly called the first class machines, but the
NEW FAMILY SINGER SEWING MACHINE
Has proved itself the best for all classes and kinds of operators and work.
All that persons need to do to satisfy themselves of this is to enquire of those who have used them the most.
They Hem, Braid, Tuck, Quill, Cord, Embroider, Fringe, Ruffle, Fell, Puff, Gather, Fagot, Trim, Bind.
They are light running, easy to learn and keep in order and for durability unrivalled.
They will stitch equally well the heaviest beaver or the thinnest muslin, in fact they will do every useful work that mechanical skill has yet perfected in the Sewing art.
The celebrated Machines are Sold for Cash or on the installment principle, as best suits convenience of the purchaser, at the Home Agency for Portsmouth, Kittery, York, Eliot, Newcastle, Rye, Hampton, North Hampton, Hampton Falls, Greenland and Seabrook.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.
I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paint and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.
I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS,
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants.
They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawf&W

JURUBEBA. WHAT IS IT?
IT IS A SURE AND Perfect Remedy for diseases of the
LIVER AND SPLEEN, ENLARGEMENT OR OBSTRUCTION OF INTESTINES, URINARY, UTERINE OR ABDOMINAL ORGANS, POVERTY OR A WANT OF BLOOD, INTERMITTENT OR REMITTENT FEVERS, INFLAMMATION OF THE LIVER, DROPSY, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD, ABSCESSES, TUMORS, JAUNDICE, SCROFULA, DYSPEPSIA, AGUE AND FEVER, OR THEIR CONCOMITANTS.
DR. WELLS, having become aware of the extraordinary medicinal properties of the South American Plant, called
JURUBEBA,
Sent a special commission to that country to procure it in its native purity, and having found its wonderful curative properties to even exceed the anticipations formed by its great reputation, has concluded to offer it to the public, and is happy to state that he has perfected arrangements for a regular monthly supply of this wonderful Plant. He has spent much time experimenting and investigating as to the most efficient preparation from it, for popular use, and has for some time used in his own practice with most happy results the effectual medicine now presented to the public as
Dr. Wells' Extract of Jurubeba,
and he confidently recommends it to every family as a household remedy which should be freely taken as a BLOOD PURIFIER in all derangements of the system and to animate and fortify all weak and Lymphatic Temperaments. 4wap18

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

A Frenchman named Lees, residing at North Weare, was killed Tuesday afternoon between Martin's Ferry and Hooksett by the up train on the Concord Railroad. Nothing was known of the accident by those on the train until they arrived at Hooksett, when he was found lying across the cowcatcher, dead.

Mr. Charles E. Moses of Colebrook tried to ride a young horse on the 19th. The animal became frightened, ran against a barn door and broke its neck.

An Alstead goose has laid a three-quarter-pound egg, and lives to hiss.

J. H. Benton, Jr., has taken editorial charge of the Coos Republican.

Geo. F. Nutter of Farmington has disappeared, and leaves behind from $25,000 to $50,000 worth of forged paper, as a remembrance.

Another Democratic member of the legislature has been injured. Joseph E. Lombard of Colebrook dropped a heavy plank on his foot, crushing it. "Tike kire," ye members of the legislature—you'll be wanted in June.

E. W. Stoughton of New York city has recently presented Dartmouth College with $10,000 to found a museum of pathological anatomy in the medical department of the institution, under the direction of of Professor Phelps.

The Shaker mill at Enfield was in operation last Thursday for the first time since last fall.

Manchester will expend $500,000 on new buildings this summer.

FRANCE.

The Prussians have not given up Fort Charenton, as reported. Bismarck says the Germans will not evacuate the forts northeast of Paris until the final treaty of peace is concluded.

It is reported that a suspension of hostilities has been agreed upon, and that fear has seized upon prominent members of the commune, who dread the possible vengeance of the government.

The churches of St. Roch and St. Sulpice have been re-opened and their cures released from imprisonment.

THE Selma (Ala.) Times, which denies that there is any more crime in Alabama than in many a Northern State, makes the following significant admission:

"It is true that, now and then, in isolated localities, a party may have made himself so dangerous to the community in which he lived that it became a vital necessity to get rid of him."

This "necessity to get rid" of men without due process of law, by whipping, shooting or hanging, is the very thing which the government cannot allow, especially when teaching negro schools or voting the Republican ticket is held to make a person "dangerous."

THE Democratic Congressmen, in their address, attack the Administration for having $8,000,000 in gold in the treasury. This is perfectly consistent. They defended President Buchanan's Administration for having a bankrupt treasury at the commencement of the war.

Two negroes were taken from the hands of a Tennessee sheriff the other day, by a band of masked men and hung in the woods. They had stolen from the office of an ex-sheriff some papers which compromised the Ku-Klux, and were murdered by the latter to prevent trouble.

LATE English papers report the death of Schamyl, the Circassian chief, at the age of 74. From 1824 till 1859, when he was captured, he was the most troublesome enemy whom the Russians had to encounter in their frequent invasions of Caucasia. When he was captured he was treated with the utmost respect by the Russians, and given establishment at Moscow. In 1866 he and his sons took the oath of fidelity to the emperor of Russia.

SAN DOMINGO.—The troops of Baez have again defeated the troops of Cabral. Several indecisive engagements between the forces of Luberon and those of Baez have taken place recently in the northern provinces. The excitement at Port au Prince over the proposed annexation of San Domingo is subsiding.

AMONG the casualities reported Monday, were a $100,000 fire in Rome, N. Y., a $30,000 fire in New York City, and a $50,000 fire in Henry, Illinois, four smaller fires, and three fatal accidents.

THE Lowell Gas Light Company are to reduce the price of gas 25 cents on the 1000 feet, affording it at $2.75.

STATE SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT OF THE COMMON SCHOOLS OF MAINE.—We have received the Report from Hon. Warren Johnson, the State Superintendent. It makes in all 342 pages and is so full of statistics, the account of the operation of the schools and important suggestions, that it is an honor to the educational interests of the State.

There were 409 towns, all but ten of which made reports of the schools. There are 72 plantations, 12 of which failed to make reports. There are 4004 districts, about 4000 female teachers were employed and 2000 male. Scholars in attendance 228,167, and money expended, $1,078,927. Of 30 States, Maine stands the twelfth as to the money expended for the education of each scholar, it being $4 78.

Besides a State Superintendent, there is a Supervisor in each County, appointed by the Governor. These visit as many schools as possible, assist in Teachers' Institutes and otherwise labor for the promotion of the cause of education. These Supervisors, with State Superintendent, constitute the Board of Education, holding a session at Augusta, at least once a year.

There are in Maine two Normal Schools, one at Farmington, the other at Castine. We have given but a few items of this valuable Report. In examining it we are impressed with the superiority of the Superintendence of the Schools of the State in comparison to that of New Hampshire with but one Superintendent and no County Supervisors, and small attendance at most of our Teachers' Institutes.

A man was found dead in a house of bad repute in Omaha, a few days ago, and supposing he had committed suicide, the corner's jury so found. Next day one of the famale inmates called on the authorities and gave herself up as the murderer. On investigation it was found that she was innocent of the self-accused crime; and then came the evidence that the poor creature, weary of the life she has been leading, took this means to invite death at the hands of the law in preference to a continuance of a career of infamy. What a sermon is here for thoughtless girls who are now tending toward a similar life!

A Washington despatch says that the English members of the joint high commission have finally received information from their government that it approves the terms of settlement of all disputed points before the commission, and they will now proceed to draft treaties to be submitted to both governments.

HOW TO GET A DINNER.—A party who traveled about pretty extensively was greatly perplexed to understand how it was that other persons were waited upon promptly and well served at the hotels, while he was almost entirely ignored, and could scarcely obtain a square meal, complain to and swear at the waiters as he might. At last his eyes were opened to the dodge of feeing the waiters liberally, and being of an ingenious turn of mind, he determined to improve on the plan.

The next hotel he dined at, he took his seat very pompously at the table, and pulled out a well-filled pocket-book, extracted therefrom a ten dollor bill, which he laid on the white cloth beside his plate, and placed his goblet upon it.

In an instant, almost, he was surrounded by waiters, who seemed to vie with each other in attentions. Every wish was anticipated, and all the delicacies of the kitchen and pantry were placed before him in tempting array.

Having fared as sumptuously as a prince (to the envy of the other guests,) he took up the greenback and beckoned to the nearest waiter, when he was beseiged by a half a dozen or so. Holding the bill in one hand, he pointed to the other, and inquired of the crowd:

"Do you see that bill?"

"Oh! yes, sir! they all exclaimed in chorus.

"Then, take a good look at it," he replied, for you will never see it again. Saying which he departed, leaving the waiters aghast.

AN ADVENTURE IN A NEWSPAPER OFFICE.—We like to see a man make himself entirely at home; and we were never more thoroughly gratified in this respect than one day, when a good-natured, stout limbed Teutonic friend, who had given us a sturdy lift upon a heavy bit of machinery, sat down upon the ink-fountain of our newspaper press. We like to see a man "take comfort," too; and we didn't disturb him, and when he got up, with about two pounds of printer's ink on the broadest part of his pantaloons, and the impression of about a dozen set-screws, we didn't say a word about ink being 25 cents a pound—though perhaps it was our duty, considering that we have a family, and that floor is eight dollars a barrel. "The boys," who are only a little less polite than we are ourself, were equally considerate; and though we gave "April Fool" in their eyes, they didn't say an aggravated word, but fell to with a will and scraped him off with shoe-knives and shingles.—Lyons Republican.

—The New York canals were opened for navigation, Monday. The reports from all sections state that the canals are in good order.

HOW BRANDY CURED THE COW.—A certain Hampshire county farmer, a noisy temperance man by the way, who is justly proud of his fine imported stock, recently fancied that one of his best milkers was smitten with cattle disease, and sent in great fright for the village farrier, a ne'er do well sort of a fellow, whom he had often lectured for his tippling propensities. Dick came, examined the animal, looked grave and asked, "Have you any whisky or brandy handy?" "No," said the farmer. "Pat, run to the druggist as soon as possible, and tell him I want a quart of brandy for medicinal purposes." When the liquor arrived, Dick took the bottle, uncorked it, smelt of it, and, taking a good drink, put the bottle in his pocket, saying, "Your cow will be all right presently; I have pulled a thorn out of her foot," and walked off.

—A spoiled child—the one that played with a kerosene can.

—A poor washerwoman says that while there's life there's soap.

—Christ Church, Dublin, is to be restored at an expense of £50,000.

—A Delaware lady whose jaw became immovable from an injury, has had it sawed off and new hinges put in, and now none of the rest of family the can get in a word edgewise.

—The desponding editor of a paper in a small Wisconsin village feelingly remarks; "If Sunday night dances, free-and-easys, street rowdies, clothes-line thieves, assaults, are signs of prosperity, then there is reason for congratulation."

—"That man," said a wag, "came to Nashua forty years ago, purchased a basket, and commenced gathering rags. How much do you suppose he is worth now?" It was a conundrum we could not answer. "Nothing," he continued, after a pause, "and he owes for the basket."

BUSINESS NOTICES.

"Horse Men," and others who pretend to know, say that the following directions had better be observed in using Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders; Give a horse a tablespoonful every night for a week; the same every other night for 4 or 6 nights; the same for a milch cow and twice as much for an ox. The addition of a little fine salt will be an advantage.

We have heard recently of several severe cases of spinal disease cured by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment; one case of a man forty-five years ago, who had not done a day's work for four years. The back should first be washed, then rubbed with a coarse towel. Apply the Liniment cold and rub in well with the hand. ap22

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Try It.

It is amusing that the feeble should totter, with uncertain steps, over the face of the earth, in danger every day of falling victims to the morbid influences by which we are all surrounded, when a tested and proven vegetable tonic, capable of endowing them with the vigor they need, is procurable in every city, town and settlement. It might reasonably be thought that after the twelve years' experience which the world has had of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS, all would know that its effect is to prevent disease.

At certain seasons the atmosphere is surcharged with the seeds of intermittents, remittents, rheumatism, pulmonary disorders, bilious complaints and the like. Persons whose nervous systems are relaxed are the first to succumb to these distempers. Brace up the physical energies then with this potential vegetable tonic. It is the most powerful recuperant which the botanic kingdom has ever yielded to patient research and experiment. Try it. The blindest discipline of the old medical dogmas will at least admit that a tonic and alterative, compounded of approved herbs, roots and barks can do no harm, while the testimony of thousands invites a trial of its virtues.

Vigor is the thing most needed in these cases as well as in dyspepsia and nervous affections, and HOSTETTER'S BITTERS is the safest, surest and most wholesome strengthening preparation that human skill has yet concocted.

Hundreds of physicians have abandoned all the officinal precepts and prescribed this harmless tonic as a preventive and cure for all cases of chills and fever.

THE urbane and gentlemanly blower on the "copper horn" has had another severe attack of his old complaint, and comes out with a half-column of "vile slanders," "scandalous falsehoods," "crimes against decency," "disreputable crimes," "malicious falsehoods," "stupid blunders" and all the rest of it. He is troubled in that way, sometimes,—pretty often, in fact—and on such occasions generally endeavors to relieve his overcharged feelings by throwing the Billingsgate vocabulary up at us; but when we get tired of it and throw a brick down at him, we generally effect a cure. This time his trouble is brought on by a fancy that his Kittery correspondent was not treated with the lofty consideration that a contributor to the Lyre is entitled to, in an article which we published more than a week ago; and having taken all that time to brood over it, he has hatched out the "crushing" article referred to. But his statement that a Kittery district meeting which elected two copperheads as Agent and Clerk, was almost entirely composed of republicans, we take as much stock in as we do in his constant Munchausenisms about crowds of republicans swarming into his office to get their wrongs righted! But there is one truth in his tirade, for he intimates that both republicans and copperheads, in Kittery, take and read the Chronicle, which is a fact.

Communicated.

Messrs. Editors:—The letter of Hon. Samuel M. Wheeler in the Journal of last week, which you copied in your paper, seems to me to be equivocal and rather noticeable for its omissions. Mr. Wheeler perhaps means to have it inferred that he cast his vote at the last election for the Republican candidate for Congress in this district, but he does not say so; he only makes a general denial of the charge that he "publicly protested and denounced the nomination and voted against it." On the contrary it is asserted and generally believed in Dover that Mr. Wheeler did not vote for Mr. Small. I have it from highly authentic sources that Mr. Wheeler did not vote for Mr. Small, and has himself admitted the fact repeatedly since election.

Since Mr. Wheeler has deemed the matter worthy of his notice, will he be good enough to oblige his friends by stating explicitly whether he cast his vote for Mr. Small?

If he will relieve these doubts upon this point, I presume you will cheerfully give his statement a place in your columns. INQUIRER.

Consumption,

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE,

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure. Those near and dear to the lonely and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr Schenck has in his own case proved that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful action.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated. They rest upon the unerring action of the liver. Here, then comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophyllum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing, without its previous tortures. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the great Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the lingered and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings it prepares them for expectoration, and in a very short time, the malady, like a ripened boil, the rotten tissue that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

To despair of cure after such testimony of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words:

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption: confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week. then like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I raised up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pains and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was a delightful thing to feel I could eat. I weighed but twenty-six pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., will continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 2 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions, and kind Nature will do the rest, accepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the simple instructions that accompany them: First, create appetite. Of returning health hunger is the most welcome symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the despairing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows, the cough lessens, the night sweat is aborted. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation: while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylactic against consumption in any of its forms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

7-30 GOLD LOAN

—OF THE—

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 266 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 130 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 560.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend, as a Profitable and perfectly Safe investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on

23,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,000 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. Tax; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times' receivable at THE PAR OF AMOUNT PAID, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, accessible to the people, which is more REPUTABLE OR SAFE.

THE CHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, Maps, Pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX,

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established character equal to any mortgage bonds dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market price—thus placing them on the same basis for temporary or permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.

These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands, without competition, all the traffic of Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota—shortening the distance from St. Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 90 miles.

The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists that they will more than double within the ensuing year.

A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company obligating the latter to invest 50 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Road in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the Bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stock, at par, at any time. They secure to the holder, at his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the interest obligation.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 9½ per cent. interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Governments pay at present rates, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.

All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. f24dWaS

PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF

HAMLET'S SOLILOQUY.

To insure or not to insure? That is the question.
Whether t'will be nobler for my family to suffer
The stings and arrows of outrageous fortune
Or take a policy against those dangers,
And, by insuring, end them? To fret, to fear,
To worry; and by a policy to end
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to. Yes, my application 's
Devoutly to be wished; apply, insure.
And pay the premium: ay—there's the rub
For in that time what premiums may come
Before I shuffle off this mortal coil,
Does make me pause, tightens my purse,
And makes me rather pay the bills I have
Than fly to others I know not of.
Thus does meanness make brutes of us all.

LIFE INSURANCE AGENTS.—Philadelphia, according to the following which we cut from the Dispatch, is inflicted with a very intrusive and persistent set of life insurance agents, who, when they get hold of a subject, pester him almost to death. The Advertiser is glad to say that the Boston life insurance agents are quite a different class of men! When they ask a man if he wants to be insured and he says no, they make their best bow and modestly retire and never call again. Here is what the Philadelphians do:—

THE FATE OF BENJAMIN P. GUNN.—His name was Benjamin P. Gunn, and he was the agent for an insurance company. He came around to my office fourteen times in one morning to see if he could not persuade me to take out a life insurance policy in his company. He used to waylay me on the street, at church, in my own house, and bore me about that policy. If I went to the opera, Gunn would buy the seat next to me, and sit there the whole evening, talking about sudden death and the advantages of the ten-year plan. If I got into a street car, Gunn would come rushing in at the next corner, and sit by my side and drag out a lot of mortality tables, and begin to explain how I could beat his company out of a fortune. If I sat down to dinner in a restaurant, up would come Gunn, and, seizing the chair next to me, he would tell a cheering anecdote about a man who insured in his company for $50,000 only last week, and was buried yesterday. If I attended the funeral of a departed friend, and wept as they threw the earth upon his coffin, I would hear a whisper, and, turning around, there would be that indomitable Benjamin P. Gunn, bursting to say: "Great Smith! Knew him well. Insured for ten thousand in our company. Widow left in comfortable circumstances. Let me take your name. Shall I?"

He followed me everywhere; until at last I got so sick of Gunn's persecutions that I left town suddenly one evening, and hid myself in a secluded country village, hoping to get rid of him. At the end of two weeks I returned, reaching home at one in the morning. I had hardly got into bed before there was a ring at the door bell. I looked out, and there was Gunn, with another person! He asked if Max Adeler was at home. I said I was the man. Mr. Gunn then observed that he expected my return, and thought he would call 'round about that insurance policy. He said he had the doctor with him, and if I would come down he would take my name and have me examined immediately. I was too indignant to reply. I shut the window with a slam and went to bed again. After breakfast in the morning I opened the front door, and there was Gunn sitting on the steps with his doctor, waiting for me! He had been there all night. As I came out they seized me and tried to undress me there on the pavement in order to examine me. I retreated and locked myself up in the garret, with orders to admit nobody to the house until I came down stairs. But Gunn wouldn't be baffled. He actually rented the house next door, and stationed himself in the garret adjoining mine. When he got fixed he spent his time pounding on the partition and crying, 'Hallo! Adeler! Adeler, I say! How about that policy? Want to take her out now?' And then he would tell me some anecdotes about men who were cut off immediately after paying the first premium. But I paid no attention to him, and made no noise. Then he was silent for a while.

Suddenly, one morning, the trap-door of my garret was wrenched off; and, upon looking up, I saw Gunn, with the doctor and a crowbar, and a lot of death-rates, coming down the ladder at me. I fled from the house to the Presbyterian church close by, and paid the sexton twenty dollars to let me climb up to the point of the steeple and sit astride of the ball. I promised him twenty more if he would exclude everybody from that steeple for a week. Once safely on the ball, three hundred feet from the earth, I made myself comfortable with the thought that I had Gunn at a disadvantage, and I determined to beat him finally if I had to stay there a month. About an hour afterwards, while I was looking at the superb view to the west, I heard a rustling around on the other side of the steeple. I looked around, and there was Benjamin P. Gunn creeping up the side of that spire in a balloon, in which was the doctor and the tabular of the estimates of the losses of his company from the Tontine system. As soon as Gunn reached the ball he threw his grappling-iron into the shingles of the steeple, and asked me at what age my father died, and if any of my aunts ever had consumption or liver complaint.

Without waiting to reply, I slid down the steeple to the ground, and took the first train for the Mississippi Valley. In two weeks I was in Mexico. I determined to go to the interior, and seek some wild spot, in some elevated region, where no Gunn would ever dare to come. I got on a mule, and paid a guide to lead me to the summit of Popocatapel. We arrived at the foot of the mountain at noon. We toiled upwards for about four hours. Just before reaching the top I heard the sound of voices, and, upon rounding a point of rocks, who should I see but Benjamin P. Gunn, seated on the very edge of the crater, explaining the endowment plan to his guide, and stupefying him with a mortality table, while the doctor had the other guide a few yards off, examining him to see if he was healthy! Mr. Gunn arose and said he was glad to see me, because now we could talk over that business about the policy without fear of interruption. In a paroxysm of rage I pushed him backwards into the crater, and he fell a thousand feet below with a heavy thud. As he struck the bottom I heard a voice screaming out something about "nonforfeiture;" but there was a sudden convulsion of the mountain, a cloud of smoke, and I heard no more.

I know it was wrong. I know I had no right to kill Gunn in that manner; but he forced me to do it in self-defence, and I hope his awful fate will be a warning to other insurance agents who remain among us.

On time, as usual, is The Aldine for May, and it is in every way equal if not superior to the former issues of this superb publication. Among the numerous illustrations with which this number is embellished, we had three full pages ones—"Evening" (a group on the staircase of the Bruhl'sche Terrasse in Dresden), by Schilling, being a remarkably fine one; "Dante at the Studio of Giotto," by Keyser; and "The Old House," illustrating the beautiful old poem, by Samuel Rogers, of the same name. The matter in this number is varied and interesting, while the typography and general get up still excels anything of the kind published in the United States. BRIGHTON CATTLE MARKET,

FOR THE WEEK ENDING WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19.

[Reported for the Boston Journal.]

At market for the current week—Cattle 1717; Sheep and Lambs 6373; Swine 3900; number of Western Cattle 1637; Eastern Cattle —; Northern Cattle and Working Oxen 80. Cattle left over from last week —.

Prices Beef Cattle—Extra $11 50 @ $12 00; first quality $10 50 @ $11 25; second quality $10 00 @ $10 25; third quality $ 8 50 @ $9 75; poorest grade of coarse Oxen, Bulls, &c., $6 00 @ $8 00 ℔ cwt, (the total weight of hides, tallow and dressed beef.)

Brighton Hides 8c ℔ lb; Country Hides 7¼ @ 8c ℔ lb.

Brighton Tallow 6@6½c per lb; Country Tallow 5 @5½ ℔ lb.

Sheep and Lamb Skins $1 75 @2 50 each; Calf Skins 16 @ 18c ℔ lb.

The trade has been quicker than it was one week ago for Beeves. Prices remain unchanged; the best lots selling at 11¼ @ 12c ℔ lb. There were but a few Northern Cattle and none from Maine in market this week. The quality of Cattle from the West was not much different from that of last week. Cattle cost less at Albany and the trade has been full as good as drovers expected to see it after such a disastrous market as that of last week, it being one of the most severe ones which drovers ever experienced.

We quote extra and select lots $4 50 @ $5; ordinary $2 @ $4 ℔ head, or from 5 @ 9c ℔ lb. There are but few of the Western Sheep offered for sale, most of them being owned by butchers or bought for them at a commission in Albany. Trade has been quicker for Sheep and Lambs this week. The supply from the North was light.

Swine—Store Pigs—Wholesale 8 @ 10c ℔ lb; retail 8 @ 11c ℔ lb. Fat Hogs—at market 3200; prices 7¼ @ 7½c ℔ lb. Trade for Store Pigs not very active and a light supply in market.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS, For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs, No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON. After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

COMPOUND FLUID Extract Catawba GRAPE PILLS.

Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Calawba Grape Juice.

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither griping nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not necessitate their being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

E

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND

FLUID EXT. SARSAPARILLA

Will radically exterminate from the system Scrofula, Syphilis, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Sore Legs, Sore Mouth, Sore Head, Bronchitis, Skin Diseases, Salt Rheum, Cankers, Runnings from the Ear, White Swellings, Tumors, Cancerous Affections, Nodes, Blotches, Glandular Swellings, Night Sweats, Rash, Tetter, Humors of all kinds, Chronic Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and all diseases that have been established in the system for years.

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than other preparations of Sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of Health and Purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pains and swelling of the bones, ulcerations of the throat and legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, and Beautifying the Complexion.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

CONCENTRATED

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

THE GREAT DIURETIC,

has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of Prostate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for Disorded and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Intemperance, and Excesses and Imprudences in Life, Impurities of the Blood, etc., superseding Copaiba in Affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.

LADIES.

In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU CURES DISEASES ARISING FROM IMPRUDENCES, HABITS OF DISSIPATION, &c., in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Preventing and Curing Strictures of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED ROSE WASH

cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It speedily eradicates Pimples, Spots, Scorbutic Dryness, Indurations of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Rash, Moth Patches, Dryness of Scalp or Skin, Frost Bites, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. It is, however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin. H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash stands unrivalled, and has received the unqualified patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

D

Full and explicit directions accompany the medicines.

Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character furnished on application, with hundreds of thousands of living witnesses and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, etc. The proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

"JONES."

The following little story, with its moral thought, written for the Macon, Georgia, Telegraph, is quite too good to be enjoyed by the farmers of the South alone:

I know a man and he lived in Jones—
Which Jones is a country of red hills and stones—
And he lived pretty much by getting of loans,
And his mules were nothing but skin and bones,
And his hogs were fat as his corn-bread pones,
And he had 'bout a thousand acres of land.

This man—and his name was also Jones—
He swore that he'd leave them old red hills and stones—
For he couldn't make nothin' but yellowish cotton,
And little of that, for his fences were rotten,
And what little cotton he had, that was boughten,
And he couldn't get a living from the land.

And the longer he swore the madder he got,
And he rose and he walked to the stable lot,
And he hollooed to Tom to come there and hitch,
For to emigrate somewhere where the land was rich,
And to quit raising cock burs, thistles and sich,
And wasting their time on barren land.

So him and Tom they hitched up their mules,
Protesting that folks were mighty big fools,
That 'ud stay in Georgia their lifetime out,
Just scratching a living, when all of them sought
Get places in Texas where cotton would sprout,
By the time you could plant it in the land.

And he drove by a house where a man named Brown
Was living, not far from the edge of the town,
And he bantered Brown for to buy his place,
And said that seeing as money was skace,
And seeing as sheriffs were hard to face,
Two dollars an acre would get the land.

They closed at a dollar and fifty cents,
And Jones he bought him a wagon and tents,
And loaned his corn, and his woman and truck,
And moved to Texas, which it took
His entire pile, with the best of luck,
To get there and get him a little land.

But Brown moved out on the old Jones' farm,
And he rolled up his breeches and bared his arm,
And he picked all the rocks from off'n the ground,
And he rooted it up and ploughed it down,
And sowed his corn and wheat in the land,

Five years glid by, and Brown, one day,
(Who got so fat that he wouldn't weigh,)
Was a sitting down, sorter lazily,
To the bulliest dinner you ever see,
When one of the children jumped on his knee
And says, "pan's Jones, which you bought his land."

And there was Jones, standing out at the fence,
And he hadn't no wagon, nor mules, nor tents,
For he had left Texas afoot and cone
To Georgia to see if he couldn't get some Employment, and he was looking as hum-
Ble as if he had never owned any land.

But Brown he asked him in, and he sot
Him down to his victuals smoking hot,
And when he had filled himself and the floor,
Brown looked, at him sharp and rove and swore,
That "whether men's land was rich or poor,
There was more in the man than there was in the land."

S. L.

—Mr. Watts-his-name having heard the "Devil's Fiddle," relieved his feelings and acquitted himself of a moral duty to the boys by inditing the following:—

How do the busy little brats
Improve upon their toys,
And find new pleasures every day,
In some unearthly noise.

What pains they take to find a box,
And rig it with a string,
That they may rack our quivering nerves
With the infernal thing.

Let dogs delight to bark and bite,
Their discord we can bear;
Let turkey-gobblers, pigs and hens
Their sentiments declare,—

But, children, you should ne'er be let
To torture those tin cans,
Our ear-drums were not made to split
Nor any other man's.

THE ODOR OF TREES.—Sulphur introduced in small quantities into the circulating sap, by boring with a gimlet and inserting small pieces of brimstone has been found effectual to prevent the deposit of eggs by the apple moth in the blossom, probably by changing the odor and thereby causing the insect to regard the apple tree so guarded by disguise, as unfitted for food for its young;—a thing better done by sowing four quarts of plaster into a common sized tree, when the tree is just beginning to bloom, when the dew is on, so as to cause the gypsum to stick to the blossoms. This sulphate of lime is odious to the apple moth, and drives it away. The odor of the current bush and gooseberry may also be disguised by some wash not injurous to it, applied just before it comes into bloom, and its fruit saved.

This matter of disguising the real odor of trees at the time when the insects peculiar to each deposits their eggs, is one not generally understood, and its importance undervalued. I think it deserving of far more attention than it has hitherto received. Almost all animated nature selects its food by smell. I have seen a boorish man impolitely smell his victuals at the table, and have heard passengers on board steamers complain because the meat smelt and the coffee didn't.

I believe almost any wash that will change the odor of a plant at the time of depositing the eggs, will be effectual, especially with a little kerosene or carbolic acid in it.

A GOOD OFFER TO THE Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.
E. A. JOY
Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to bring in lots of work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing but the time a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.
MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make the above generous offer.
His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an excellent judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the Agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the Best SEWING MACHINES must always be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 9 PLEASANT ST., nearly opposite the Post Office, Portsmouth, N. H. Twelve Different Kinds to Select from. mh7

NEW FAMILY SINGER SEWING MACHINE
Has proved itself the best for all classes and kinds of operators and work.
All that persons need to do to satisfy themselves of this is to enquire of those who have used them the most.
They Hem, Braid, Tuck, Quilt, Cord, Embroider, Fringes, Ruffle, Fell, Puff, Gather, Fagot, Trim, Bind.
☞ They are light running, easy to learn and keep in order and for durability unrivalled.
☞ They will stitch equally well the heaviest beaver or the thinnest muslin, in fact they will do every operation of mechanical skill has yet perfected in the Sewing art.
☞ These celebrated Machines are Sold for Cash or on the Installment principle, the best suits convenience of the purchaser, at the Regular Agency for Portsmouth, Kittery, York, Eliot, Newcastle, Rye, Hampton, North Hampton, Hampton Falls, Greenland and Seabrook.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.
I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.
I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NOETTOING, Only Agent for the

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY?
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants.
They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs,
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawfeb16

JURUBEBA. WHAT IS IT?
IT IS A SURE AND Perfect Remedy for all diseases of the
LIVER AND SPLEEN, ENLARGEMENT OR OBSTRUCTION OF INTESTINES, URINARY, UTERINE OR ABDOMINAL ORGANS, POVERTY OR A WANT OF BLOOD, INTERMITTENT OR REMITTENT FEVERS, INFLAMMATION OF THE LIVER, DROPSY, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD, ABSCESSES, TUMORS, JAUNDICE, SCIROFULA, DYSPEPSIA, AGUE AND FEVER, OR THEIR CONCOMITANTS.
DR. WELLS, having become aware of the extraordinary medicinal properties of the South American Plant, called
JURUBEBA,
Sent a special commission to that country to procure it in its native purity, and having found its wonderful curative properties to even exceed the anticipations formed by its great reputation, has concluded to offer it to the public, and is happy to state that he has perfected arrangements for a regular monthly supply of this wonderful Plant. He has spent much time experimenting and investigating as to the most efficient preparation from it, for popular use, and has for some time used it in his own practice with most happy results the effectual medicine now presented to the public as
Dr. Wells' Extract of Jurubeba,
and he confidently recommends it to every family as a household remedy which should be freely taken as a BLOOD PURIFIER in all derangements of the system and to animate and fortify all weak and Lymphatic Temperaments. 4wap18

THURSDAY, APRIL 27, 1871.

FRANCE.

Thiers has issued a circular saying that the government is still making preparations. Ducrot has resigned and Douai and Clinchant now command the government troops.

A sortie on Sunday, the 23d, toward Chatillon, was repulsed with heavy loss after the insurgents had got possession of one barricade.

The Germans will still hold certain forts around Paris, as the government has no credit.

The Versaillists continue the bombardment of Paris. Fort d'Issy replies feebly. The insurgents are pontooning the Seine.

The blockade of Paris has commenced.

THE Legislature of Delaware, at its last session, refused to pass a law exempting $100 from levies by the Sheriff, but did pass a law attaching workmen's wages. The Delaware Legislature is democratic enough to suit even Jeff Davis; and its action in legislating to put working men still more in the power of capitalists agrees as well with the loud professions of the party; now, as the practice and precept of the same party formerly agreed,—when it called itself the workingman's party and at the same time legislated to continue the working man a chattel of his employer.

THREE men recently entered the house of an old man named Murren, near Bedford, Pa., on night of the 22d and while one held him down by sitting on his head, the others threw coals of fire on his legs, compelling him to tell where his money was concealed. They obtained seventy-five dollars, and tying the old man to the bed, set fire to the house. He released himself and extinguished the fire.

STEAMER Lumberman made a trip from Oshkosh, Wis., to Prairie du Chien, by way of the Fox and Wisconsin Rivers, in sixty hours; found good water the whole route. Should the canal communication be opened to the lake, this will be an important water communication from the Mississippi River east.

THE Southern Republicans say that the Ku-Klux game now is to keep quiet till a month before the Presidential election, and then to scare the colored voters from the polls by a short but effective reign of terror. With this expectation Congress will next winter extend the enforcement law over the Presidential election.

BASE BALL.—On the 4th of May, the first of the series of grand matches for the United States championship whippoonant will be played in Washington between the rival branches of the old Red Stocking nine, viz: the Blue Stockings, or the Washington Olympics, and the Boston Club.

HENRY C. Barnabee, basso, assisted by Miss Annie W. Galliford, soprano, Miss Addie S. Ryan, contralto, Mr. W. H. Fessenden, tenor, Prof. Rodolph Hall, cornet soloist, and Mrs. Martha D. Shepherd, pianist, gave an excellent and fully attended concert, Tuesday evening, in the new Town Hall, at Wakefield, Mass.

TEA culture is fast becoming a feature of importance in the southern and western States, and in a few years enough tea will be grown in those sections to meet the home consumption.

SCHOONER James Henry, Trueworthy, from Newburyport for Rockland, when off White Isle in a squall, lost foremast-head and maintop mast; she will proceed to Rockland for repairs.

A rebellion has broken out in Chiriqui, Central America, and the insurgents have captured the United States Steamer Montijo. U. S. Steamer Resaca has gone to the rescue.

AT Ossian, Iowa, a few days ago, Mrs. John Larber smothered her infant three weeks old, and then committed suicide by throwing herself under a train of cars.

THE war between San Salvador and Honduras is ended. The former holds the territory of the latter, having defeated the army of Honduras everywhere.

B. C. Foster's house in Conneaut, Ohio, was burned on the 25th, and two children, four and twelve years old, perished.

THERE is said to be a strong reaction throughout France favoring the restoration of Louis Napoleon as Emperor.

—New Bedford has a new $12,000 fire alarm telegraph.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

Mrs. M. M. Ricker of Dover, who came all the way from Washington to vote, has sued the Selectmen who refused to receive a ballot from her.

A fire at Keene, on the 26th, destroyed a building occupied by the Cheshire Chair Co., with most of its contents. Loss about $15,000.

THE Washington Chronicle publishes the following "Address of the democracy to the down-trodden citizens of Kentucky, New York city, and some other places," saying that if not exactly correct, it is what the address of the Democratic National Executive Committee might well have been:—

Whereas, the selfish and ungenerous Republican party is not satisfied with saving this nation from destruction and governing it for twelve years to the great detriment of rebels and impecunious Democrats, but is still resolved to win victories in the future as in the past; therefore,

Resolved, That we protest against their want of generosity in holding on to all the offices, and demand, in the home of justice and empty pockets, a fair divide.

Resolved, That our Democratic friends at the South be requested to suspend Ku Klux outrages for at least six weeks previous to the occurrence of any election in the Northern States, unless otherwise directed by the Democratic National Executive Committee.

Resolved, That the recent election in Washington was so arranged and guarded that Democrats could commit no more fraud than Republicans, and that we regard such regulations as an outrageous interference with the time-honored rights and practices of the Democratic party.

Resolved, That the defeat of R. T. Merrick in this District is "a blessing in disguise." It settles us down where we can take a good start; it renders it likely that we shall win some victories next year, for it knocks us into the middle of it.

Resolved, That with this lucid declaration of principles we will go before the people, and that in the future as in the past and as yesterday in the District of Columbia, with faint hopes but with unremitting energy, we will toil to realize the great plans and purposes of the eminent leaders of 1860. To whom we still look with honor and with confidence; all of which is ostensibly dedicated to the American people and to the American eagle by yours truly,

FERNANDYWUD,
J. DAVIS, ESQ.,
S. S. RUSTER,
J. RANDUL,
K. Klux Committee.

—The Tribune said yesterday, in reference to Gen. Butler's personal explanation, that he was "a man who has neither discretion enough to keep out of quarrels nor pluck enough to carry them through."

And this was very well said for the Tribune. Forcible sayings derive their force from the character of the person who utters them. When Louis le Grand proclaimed himself the State it was all very well; but when the three tailors of Tooley street proclaimed themselves the people everybody laughed at the absurdity of the joke. It is very proper that the editor of the Tribune should accuse Gen. Butler of lacking both pluck and discretion.' Gen. Butler's want of pluck was strikingly exhibited all through the war, from the time he abandoned his old associates and marched his army into Baltimore and took possession of Federal Hill, in defiance of Gen. Scott's protest against such a dangerous proceeding, until he hung the traitor Mumford in New-Orleans, and up to the close. His lack of discretion has been equally conspicuous all through his Congressional career, but it seems to have gained him the entire confidence of his constituency, the most enlightened and respectable that ever sent a representative to Congress. When the editor of the Tribune was in Congress he was so discreet that he got into hotter water than even Gen. Butler has, and his antagonists were mostly men of his own party. And he had so great an amount of that excellent quality, pluck, to "carry him through," that when Representative Rust struck him over the head with a rattan he had discretion enough not to resent it. If there is any paper which has an undoubted right to lecture Gen. Butler for his lack of pluck and discretion, it is beyond all cavil, the Tribune, whose editor never offended anybody, whose discretion is only to be equaled by his pluck. —Brooklyn Union.

THE BEST DRINK for sedentary persons is hot tea and coffee of moderate strength, and that at meal times; it is the best drink at meals for all who are past fifty years of age; all such will live longer by the use of these as a beverage. The fact is observable with the naked eye, that a glass of cold water during a meal arrests digestion instantly; which process can only be resumed when this cold water, of fifty degrees, has been long enough in the stomach to absorb heat sufficient from the body to warm it up to a hundred degrees. That a hot cup of tea at a meal does revive a person who is old, or feeble, or cold, or tired, is the daily experience of millions. If a healthy person greatly desires a drink of cold water during a meal, let him take it by all means; it is only intended to inculcate the general idea for the masses, that the habitual and large use of cold water at meal, or within half an hour before or after, is not wise, is not safe, and that a cup of hot drink is always safe, is always beneficial, is always reviving; if now and then there is an exception, it should be set down as a peculiarity or an idiosyncrasy.—Hall's Journal of Health.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

"Horse-Men," and others who pretend to know, say that the following directions had better be observed in using Sheridan's Condition Powders; Give a horse a tablespoonful every night for a week; the same every other night for 4 or 6 nights; the same for a milch cow and twice as much for an ox. The addition of a little fine salt will be an advantage.

We have heard recently of several severe cases of spinal disease cured by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment; one case of a man forty-five years ago, who had not done a day's work for four years. The back should first be washed, then rubbed with a coarse towel. Apply the Liniment cold and rub in well with the hand. 4p22

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DEATH IN THE HAIR!

Remember every hair is a tube. Don't fill these tubes with poison. Any dusted shade of color can be obtained without the slightest danger. Have you read Professor CHILTON'S statement (made after analysis,) that is absolutely harmless? Nothing can be more conclusive. If you wish to change the color of your hair to a magnificent black or brown, and to use the Excelsior Dye. Beware of unauthentic nostrums. A good dressing is necessary after dyeing, and the best is ap27dawim

Cristadoro's Excelsior Hair Dye

COMBINE SAFETY WITH BEAUTY,

CRISTADORO'S HAIR PRESERVATIVE.

Try It.

It is amusing that the feeble should totter, with uncertain steps, over the face of the earth, in danger every day of falling victims to the morbid influences by which we are all surrounded, when a tested and proven vegetable tonic, capable of endowing them with the vigor they need, is procurable in every city, town and settlement. It might reasonably be thought that after the twelve years' experience which the world has had of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS, all would know that its effect is to prevent disease.

At certain seasons the atmosphere is surcharged with the seeds of intermittents, remittents, rheumatism, pulmonary disorders, bilious complaints and the like. Persons whose nervous systems are relaxed are the first to succumb to these distempers. Brace up the physical energies then with this potential vegetable tonic. It is the most powerful recuperant which the botanic kingdom has ever yielded to patient research and experiment. Try it. The blindest disciples of the old medical dogmas will at least admit that a tonic and alterative, compounded of approved herbs, roots and barks can do no harm, while the testimony of thousands invites a trial of its virtues.

Vigor is the thing most needed in these cases as well as in dyspepsia and nervous affections, and HOSTETTER'S BITTERS is the safest, surest and most wholesome strengthening preparation that human skill has yet concocted.

Hundreds of physicians have abandoned all the official receipts and prescribed this harmless tonic as a preventive and cure for all cases of chills and fever.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

Hams, &c.—Butler & Laighton.

ABOUT 800 workmen are now employed at the Navy Yard..

U. S. S. Speedwell has arrived at the Navy Yard after a three days' cruise along the coast.

A beautiful situation for a rural residence, on South and Lafayette Roads, is advertised this morning.

ANOTHER $10 bill was received in this city Tuesday, for the White Rover fisherman, from John G. Whittier,—the donation of Mr. E. R. Dorr of Buffalo, N. Y.

IT is probable that the through night trains of Pullman cars on the Eastern road, between Boston and Bangor, will begin running between the 1st and 10th of May.

THE bridge over the Eastern Railroad at the Plains, has been raised fifteen inches, like all the rest on this Road, and hundreds of loads of gravel have been hauled to fill the highways up to the new and sharper grade.

CAME Brothers, of this city, are filling orders for Carriages, for our own citizens, and for parties in Boston, Portland, Manchester, Dover and many others places. They turn out a string of new ones, every week, almost as long as an Eastern Railroad train, and as hard to beat.

THE wag of the Concord Monitor says Portsmouth oughtn't to have the State Fair, but "will do for an 'agricultural horse trot,' or for a clam, lobster and general fish-show, much better than for a cattle-show". Keep cool, neighbor; eat more fish and you'll have more brain, you know—and then Concord will have something else to show besides sand, tar and ugly people.

THE Concord train stopped at the Tabor crossing, Tuesday evening, to allow the gentlemen appointed to select a location for the State Fair to alight. From there they were taken in carriages to the Piscataqua Fair grounds, and after visiting the farm of C. Hayes & Son, returned to the Kearsarge House and spent the night,—where they were called upon by prominent citizens interested. They left for Dover and Great Falls, Wednesday.

MEMORIAL DAY.—The members of Storer Encampment, Post No. 1, G. A. R., of this city, are making unusual efforts for the observance of Decoration Day, this year, creditable to themselves and our city. While we recall to mind the great interest our citizens took when a Regiment or Company departed for the seat of war, and the readiness with which Memorial Day has thus far been observed, we have no doubt that the coming anniversary will be a success. The Committee of Arrangements consists of 22 persons.

SAUNTERING through Water Street, recently, while the street was full of children on their way to school, we noticed two little urchins engaged in a very animated conversation, "stumping" each other to the performance of certain tricks, not legerdemanic but simply roguish. Said one, "I'll bet you're scared to ring that door-bell." "I ain't neither," said the other. The betting character alluded to, responding, said, "I know what that woman would do if you did ring her door-bell;—she'd wring your neck!"

THE Lyre is a self appointed exponent of the duties of policemen and says "it is the duty of a police officer to treat all persons in a civil and gentlemanly manner," and that "they have no right to be saucy or impudent"—all of which should be put in practice by the Lyre's editor, who has no equal in this city or elsewhere for treating people uncivilly or ungentlemanly, and has such unbounded "impudence" that it may well be believed that the sole aim of his life thus far has been to acquire a stock of "cheek" rather than an enviable reputation.

ELLEN Carroll an old inmate of the Alms House has a well-known attraction for alcoholic beverages, and on Monday night she imbibed a quantity sufficient to impair the controlling power of the brain, and while in this condition made several informal calls upon various residents in State Street, much to their displeasure at such late hours. On Tuesday she was arrested by the Marshal, and through the instrumentality and kindness of Judge Bufford was permitted to visit the House of Correction and there remain six months.

Patrick Murphy and Robert O'Donnell, having indulged in an assault on Mr. John W. Teague, were brought before Judge Odell and assessed respectively $8.55 and $8.76.

HIRAM HAYS IN STRATFORD.

Once I journeyed while the mavis
O'er the English meadows sang;
It was bounteous summer weather,—
All the roads with music rang.

Hiram Hays was my companion,—
Straight from Boston he had come,— Purse as long as John J. Astor's,—
Head as hollow as a drum.

Toward the leafy lanes of Warwick,
Merrily the stage-coach flew,—
How I clapped my hands and shouted,
"Soon in Stratford we'll be due!"

"What of that?" asked weary Hiram.
"Shakespeare's country! glorious Will!
We shall see the spire of Avon
When we mount up yonder hill!

There his home was; there his grave is;
There his fancies grew sublime;
There he planned his mighty pinions,
Built his fame up for all time."

"Drive on faster! I shan't stop there!"
Muttered Mr. Hiram Hays;
"Shakespeare never would be thought of,
If he hadn't writ them plays!"

—Atlantic for May.

A railroad collision took place about six o'clock on Monday evening at South Berwick. The passenger train from Boston was crossing the bridge over Great Works River, when it came in contact with the freight train, which was running on the passenger train's time. There being a curve just beyond the bridge the engineer did not see the coming train until it was too late to prevent the accident. Both engines were reversed and the whistles blown. The trains were probably moving at the rate of three or four miles an hour when the collision occurred, and both engines were badly damaged, that of the freight train suffering most. The tender of the freight train was telescoped in the car behind it, all its wood work splintered, trucks knocked off and stove in pieces. The cars behind were knocked off from their trucks. On the other train the end of the tender was loaded into the smoking and baggage car, smoke-pipe taken from the engine, etc. The damage was probably some $6000 or $8000. The engineers and firemen saved themselves by jumping from the engines, and none of the passengers were injured.

FROM the Norfolk Virginian we learn that the iron steamship Sapphire, which was wrecked on one of the Florida reefs two years ago, has been floated and towed to Key West by a Norfolk steamer, of which Capt. Stoddard, a son-in-law of Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett of this city, is commander. The Virginian styles it a mammoth undertaking, and says Capt. Stoddard is a stirring, energetic worker and only his pluck and perseverance effected the salvage of the Sapphire.

MISS Annie Cary has been engaged by the Handel and Haydn Society for three performances at the great May festival, her first appearance to be on the opening day, May 9. A choice programme is announced for that occasion, and seats will be in demand. The sale of single tickets for each separate performance has commenced at Music Hall, Boston.

JOHN Hackett, a young man in the employ of Charles Hayes & Son, was kicked in the face by a playful colt, Tuesday evening, so severely as to shatter the jaw and knock out nide teeth.

PERSONAL.—Thos. L. Tullock, Esq., is in town, fresh from the triumph at the District of Columbia territorial election.

LIEUT. Frank D. Webster, U. S. M. C., is ordered to duty at this Naval Station.

COAL mines and oil wells have been discovered thirty miles from Aspinwall.

Consumption.

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE.

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self asserting, self-convincing.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two agencies with which the disease of which we speak is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here, then comes the enfeebling result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—a Vegetable Mercurial Substitute. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing, without acute purgative tortures. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent Father to a suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten tissue that it occupied is removed and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was'

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moreover certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words:

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption: confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pains and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon regained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since."

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can see and learn what they are capable of not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow those directions, and kind nature will do the rest, excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the simple instructions that accompany them: First, create appetite. Of retonning, half a dozen meals are most welcome symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the digestive apparatus at once be put to work. Good blood, at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweat is abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation: while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure of coughs and colds, may be trusted as a specific antidote against consumption in any of its forms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

7-30 GOLD LOAN

—OF THE—

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 266 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 130 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 560.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend as a Profitable and perfectly Safe investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on

23,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,00 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. Tax; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable at TEN PER CENT. ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, these are the investments accessible to the people, which is more PROFITABLE OR SAFE.

EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 6 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds sent to us, and Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX,

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds a fixed and established character equal to any mortgage issue dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market price—thus placing them on the same basis; for temporary or permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.

These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands, without competition, all the traffic of Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota—shortening the distance from St. Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 50 miles.

The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists that they will more than double within the ensuing year.

A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company obliging the latter to invest 50 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Road in the bonds of the Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the Bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stock, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder, at his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the interest obligation.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 9½ per cent. interest, Instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Government pays at present price, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.

All marketable securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. f23dWaS

PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF

HAMLET'S SOLILOQUY.

To insure or not to insure? That is the question.
Whether t'will be nobler for my family to suffer
The stings and arrows of outrageous fortune
Or take a policy against those dangers,
And, by insuring, end them? To fret, to fear,
No more; and by a policy to end
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to. Yes, my application's
Devoutly to be wished; apply, insure,
And pay the premium: ay—there's the rub
For in that time what premiums may come
Before I shuffle off this mortal coil
Does make me pause, tightens my purse,
And makes me rather pay the bills I have
Than fly to others I know not of.
Thus does meanness make brutes of us all.

Street Scenes in a Factory Town.

Perley saw strange sights. Five Falls in the gusty weather was full of them. Full of knots of girls in bright ribbons, singing unpleasantly; of knots of men at corners drinking heavily; of tangles where the two knots met with discordant laughter; of happy lovers that one sighed over; of haggard sinners that one despaired of praying over; of old young children with their pipes, like Bob; of fragments of murderous Irish threats; of shattered bits of sweet Scotch songs, of half-broken English brogue; of German gutturals thick with lager; only now and then the shrewd, dry, Yankee twang.

It was to be noticed of these people that the girls swore, that the babies smoked, that the men, more especially the elder men, had frowns like Mr. Mell.

"One would think," said Kelso, as she watched the growing crowd, "that they had no homes."

"They have no houses," said Sip.

They passed a dark step where something lay curled up like a skulking dog.

"What's that?" said Miss Kelso, stopping and stooping. It was a little girl!—a very little girl. She had a heavy bundle or a pail upon her arm; and had been sent upon an errand, and had dropped upon the step asleep; had been trodden on once or twice, for her clothes bore the mark of muddy feet.

"That's Dib Docket," said Sip. "Go home, Dib!" Sip shook her, not ungently.

The little thing moved away uncertainly, like a sleep-walker, jostled to and fro by people in the street. She seemed either too weak or too weary to sit or stand.

"That's Dib Docket," repeated Sip. "That child walks, at her work in the mills, between twenty and thirty miles a day. I counted it up once. She lives three-quarters of a mile from the factory, besides. She's not so bright as she might be. It's a wicked little devil; knows more wickedness than you ever thought of, Miss Kelso. No, you'd not go after her; you wouldn't understand."

Women with peculiar blemished yellow faces passed by. They looked like beautiful moving corpses; as if they might be the skeletons among the statues that were dug against the face of day. Miss Kelso had them since she first came out.

"What are they?"

"Cotton weavers. You can tell a weaver by the skin."

Threading her way through a blockade of loud-speaking young people by the railroad station, (there was always plenty going on at the station, Sip said), Miss Kelso caught a bit of talk about "the Lord's day." Surprised at this evidence of religious feeling where she was not prepared to expect it, she expressed her surprise to Sip.

"Oh," said Sip, "we mean pay-day; that's all the Lord's Day we know much about."

Here is another passage, describing strike, and what came of it:

CALMING A STORM.

Said Perley, quietly, "I want Mr. Garrick to go out and tell them why we must reduce their wages."

"Truly a young lady's suggestion," said the Senior.

"It's none of their business," said Maverick, "why we reduce their wages."

Stephen Garrick said nothing.

"Such a course was never taken in the company," said the Senior.

"And never ought to be," said the Junior. "It is an unsuitable position for an employer to take—unsuitable! And disastrous as a precedent. Next thing we know, we should have them regulating the salary of our clerks and the size of our invoices. Outside of the fancy of a co-operative economist, such a principle would be im—— What a noise they are making!"

"Every minute is precious," exclaimed Perley, rising nervously. "I tell you I know these men! They will trust Mr. Garrick, if he treats them like reasonable beings before it is too late!"

* * * Mr. Garrick took his hat off, and stood in the door.

It was an ugly crowd, with a disheartening "setness" about it. He wished, when he looked it over, that he had not come; but stood with his hat off, smiling.

He was smiling still when he came back to the counting-room.

"Well?" asked Perley.

"For an unpopular master," repeated Mr. Garrick, "I did as well as I expected. In fact, just what I expected all the time has happened. Listen!"

He held the door open. A cry came in from outside—

"Ask the young leddy!"

"You see you should have gone in the first place," said the unpopular master, patiently. "The rest of us are good for little, without your endorsement."

"Call the young leddy! Let's hear what the young leddy says to't! The young leddy! The young leddy!"

The demand came in at the counting-room door just as the "young leddy" went out.

The people parted for her right and left. She stood in the mud, in the rain, among them. They made room for her, just as the dark day would have made room for a sunbeam. The drunkest fellows, some of them, slunk to the circumference of the circle that had closed about her. Oaths and brickbats seemed to have been sucked out to sea by a sudden tide of respectability. It has been said by those who witnessed it that it was a sight worth seeing.

"She just stood in the mud and rain," said Sip Garth, in telling the story. If we'd all been in her fine parlors, we wouldn't have been stiller. There was a kind of a shame and a sense came to us, to see her standing so quiet in the rain. The fellow that opened his mouth for a roughness before her would have ha' been kicked into the gutter, I can tell you. It was just like her. There's never mud nor rain among us, but you look, and there she is! That day there seemed to be a shining to her. We were all worked up and angered; and she stood so white and still. There was a minute that she looked at us, and she looked—why, she looked as if she'd be poor folks herself, if only she could say how sorry she was for us. Then she blazed out at us. Did Mr. Garrick ever tell any man of us a word but honest truth? she wanted to know. "And hasn't he proved himself a friend to every man of you that needed friendliness?" says she. "And when he told you that he must reduce your wages, you shouldn't have sent for me!" says she. But then she talks to us about the trouble that the company was in, and a foolishness creeps 'round among us, as if we wished we were at home. It's not that they so much disbelieved Mr. Garrick," said Sip, "but when she said she couldn't afford to pay them, they believed that."

"I don't understand about these things," said Reuben Mell, slowly stepping out from the crowd. "It's very perplexing to me. It doesn't mean a dollar's worth less of horses and carriages and grand parties to the company, such a trouble as this don't seem to. And it means as we go without our breakfast so's the children shan't be hungry; and it means as when our shoes are worn out, we know no more than a baby in its cradle where the next pair is to come from. That's what reduction o' wages means to us. I don't understand the matter myself, but I'm free to say that we'll not doubt as the young leddy does. I'll take the young leddy's word for it, this time, for one."

Mr. Mell, with this, peaceably stepped up and took the reduction from the counter, and peaceably went home with it.

There was a little writhing of the flood-tide at this, and then an ebb.

Miss Kelso came out of it, and left it to bubble by itself for awhile.

Within half an hour it had ebbed away, leaving only a few weeds of small boys and a fellow too drunk to float in sight of the mill-gate.—From Miss Phelps' "Silent Partner."

ORCHARD GRASS.—The more I become acquainted with this grass the better I like it. Not the least among its merits is its hardiness. It stood the hot, dry weather last summer better than any other valuable grass with which I am familiar. It should be sowed thick. I think two bushels is not too much seed for an acre; and it must be cut early, before it is in full bloom, to have the hay the best quality. On rich moist land it is as sure to yield three crops in a year, as is red-top to give one. Unlike clover, it never inclines to blossom but once in a season; the second and third crops are mostly leaves, and the best, feed for cows in winter I ever grew. It is a good grass to sow in early spring with clover, but without grain. Two good crops of leafy hay may be counted on the first year, and three crops a year afterwards, as long as the land will carry it out. I believe it the best of grasses to sow where I intend to keep the crop up by top dressing.

The dressing should be spread immediately after removing the hay, and should be well bushed down, then the new crop will come up and in a very few days, cover the ground and keep it from drying. I would recommend it to any one who is not afraid to begin haying the last of May or the first of June. By the 10th of June it is in full bloom in this latitude, and past its best condition for hay. I have grown it five years, and like it so well that I intend to sow it this spring on the whole of my reclaimed meadow.—Cor. N. E. Farmer.

—It will pay well to sow on grass seed to the bare spots in the fields where the roots have been killed out the past winter. Show a mixture herds-grass, red-top and clover, and give the ground a liberal sprinkling. It will catch and do much towards re-placing the turf upon these brown spots in the field, and a half day employed this way will be well spent.

—There are now about two hundred Japanese students in various institutions in the United States. Nearly all of them, it is said, are making commendable progress.

—A Connecticut school-boy has written a composition on the horse, in which he says it is an animal, having four legs, "one at each corner."

—The New York teamsters keep very cool now-a-days. There is a nice Bergh there which accounts for it.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS. R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS, For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs, No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON, After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of greatest ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND FLUID Extract Catawba GRAPE PILLS.

Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not necessitate their being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

E

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND FLUID EXT. SARSAPARILLA

Will radically exterminate from the system Scrofula, Syphilis, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Sore Legs, Sore Mouth, Sore Head, Bronchitis, Skin Diseases, Salt Rheum, Cankers, Runnings from the Ear, White Swellings, Tumors, Cancerous Affections, Nodes, Rickets, Glandular Swellings, Night Sweats, Rash, Tetter, Humors of all kinds, Chronic Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and all diseases that have been established in the system for years.

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than other preparations of Sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of Health and Purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pains and swelling of the bones, ulcerations of the throat and legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, and Beautifying the Complexion.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S CONCENTRATED FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU, THE GREAT DIURETIC, has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been used, no matter of how long standing. Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of Prostate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Gravel, Gleet, Mucous Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for Enfeebled and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms, Impotition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life, or after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, and Indiscretion, Imprudences in Life, Impurities of the Blood, etc., superseding Copaiba in Affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.

LADIES.

In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU CURES DISEASES ARISING FROM IMPRUDENCES, HABITS OF DISSIPATION, &c., in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Preventing and Curing Strictures of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It speedily eradicates Pimples, Spots, Scorbatic Dryness, Indurations of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Inflammation, Roughness, Heat, Rash, Moth Patches, Dryness of Scalp or Skin, Frost Bites, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; renders the skin in a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin. H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unbounded patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Agreeable character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an Injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in conjunction with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

D

Full and explicit directions accompany the medicines.

Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character furnished on application, with hundreds of thousands of living witnesses and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, etc. The proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

(From Our Young Folks for May.)

A GOOD TURN.

BY C. A. STEPHENS.

I still know a little rustic neighborhood away back among the mountains, where as yet the boys and girls have never dreamed that the dear old May games, with "baskets" in the vesper, are not the very pink of gentility. There I love to go back (for it used to be my home,) and when May night comes around get out a certain boy friend of mine, and race and run and "scrimmage" up and down, with a troop of merry girls hard behind us,—girls who (I doubt if I ought to tell of it) will get over a five-rail fence quicker than you can say Jack Robinson. Sometimes, despite all our doubling and dodging, we bring up on a brush-heap, and are caught in a wolful plight; and then we are poked and pinched and laughed at. Or, what is still more rare, by dint of hard scampering we catch, actually catch, the agile sirens flirting on before us. And then the homeward walk in the warm May evening, with the broad red moon peeping up over the dark, spruce-clad ridges; froggy voices in the swamp below, and the whippoorwill chanting from the white ledges up in the shrubby pasture. Quite romantic, when done according to programme.

Sometimes, though, it was anything but romantic. Ah! I still remember a May night when this same Tom Edwards and I were lads or boys (which is it a fellow is when he's eleven—and twelve?) It makes me shrug to think of it yet. I wonder if two chaps ever did get into such a scrape and catch it so before!

As usual there was but one house in the neighborhood where we really cared to hang baskets. We hung them elsewhere out of friendliness; but those going to the Lynches were more carefully prepared than the rest. For there was Cad and Jess and Lorette, especially Lorette. Perhaps Tom would have said, "especially Jess."

But, bless you! it was about as much as a fellow's neck was worth to go there with a May-basket.

For O, they kept a great fearful dog—old 'Scoge, of hateful memory. Wasn't I glad when the dog-law came and cut him off in the midst of his iniquities! And the old gentleman head of the family was worse still.

"Old Jack Lynch," as his neighbors called him, was a bear,—a grizzly one. It had been a long time, too, since he was a cub; and he had forgotten all about how he felt then, I suppose. To this day I haven't quite got over my amazement that he should have been the father of Lorette.

He was down on boys and all their "silly quirks," and had a long-standing antipathy to the May-basket business. Rather than to have fallen into his hands, we would have taken "Alvarado's Leap," had risked it.

But the sentiment which urged us on to brave these dangers was a strong one,—"strong enough to carry us through them. I remember that for a whole week before the May night in question we had been spending the nights together laying our plans. But it was a tough problem. We couldn't seem to manage it, till along toward morning of the night before Tom waked up all of a sudden.

"Kit, Kit," whispered he, "I've got it now! I've just thought how we can do it."

"How?" exclaimed I, broad awake at the happy announcement.

"You know their old corn-crib, back of the buildings, in the garden? Well, we'll hang 'em, and cut 'round through the garden, among the lilac bushes, and get into the corn-crib. You know the little door in the end buttons on the outside, and hasps on the inside. We'll unbutton it, slip in, and hasp it to; and in the night so, even if they should come 'round into the garden, they won't mistrust we're in there."

"That's just the thing, Tom."

"Yes; and we'll run in there after every one,—we've got three to hang, you know. They'll think we've run off down the road toward home, and chase on after us. We can hear everything they say through those great wide cracks in the crib. O, won't it be fun to hear them talk and wonder where we went?"

Fun alive! We didn't sleep another wink that night, the very thoughts of it were so exciting.

The next evening was warm, but moonless.

"Just the right sort," said Tom, as we were taking a last look at the baskets, to see that the "fixin's" had not lost out, and that the pins were in right for hanging them to the door.

We waited till ten o'clock, however. It would be better to let the elder Lynch go to bed, if he would, before getting too near. From a safe distance we kept watch; and when at length a light had been seen to appear from a window thought to belong to his bedroom, we entered the premises and made our way stealthily round to the corn-crib. At that season it was nearly emptied of corn. We unbuttoned the door and crept in. It had rather a mousey smell, but as Tom had pre-

A GOOD OFFER TO THE
Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.
E. A. JOY
Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to bring in lots of work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing whether a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.
MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make the above generous offer.
His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an excellent judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the Agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the Best SEWING MACHINES may always be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 9 PLEASANT ST., nearly opposite the Post Office, Portsmouth, N. H. Twelve Different Kinds to Select from. mh7

We publish the above figures to show the uninitiated and those who contemplate purchasing, what machine is the public favorite.
The above list includes all of what are commonly called the first class machines, but the
NEW FAMILY SINGER SEWING MACHINE
Has proved itself the best for all classes and kinds of operators and work.
Those who were used to do to satisfy themselves of this is to enquire of those who have used them the most.
They Hem, Braid, Tuck, Quill, Cord, Embroider, Fringes, Ruffle, Fell, Puff, Gather, Fagot, Trim, Bind.
☞ They are light running, easy to learn and keep in order and for durability unrivalled.
☞ They will stitch equally well the heaviest beaver or the thinnest muslin, in fact they will do every useful work that mechanical skill has yet perfected in the Sewing art.
☞ The-o celebrated Machines are Sold for Cash or on the installment principle, as best suits convenience of the purchaser, at the Regular Agency for Portsmouth, Kittery, York, Eliot, Newcastle, Rye, Hampton, North Hampton, Hampton Falls, Greenland and Seabrook.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot water without injuring it. It is excellent for walls inside, in the place of paper.
I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Linseed Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but month.
I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetisers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants.
They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, passessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawibbi6

DR. WELLS, having become aware of the extraordinary medicinal properties of the South American Plant, called
J U R U B E B A,
Sent a special commission to that country to procure it in its native purity, and having found its wonderful curative properties to even exceed the anticipations formed by its great reputation, has concluded to offer it to the public, and is happy to state that he has perfected arrangements for a regular monthly supply of this wonderful Plant. He has spent much time experimenting and investigating as to the most efficient preparation from it, for popular use, and has for some time used in his own practice with most happy results the effectual medicine now presented to the public as
Dr. Wells' Extract of Jurubeba, and he confidently recommends it to any family as a household remedy which should be freely taken as a BLOOD PURIFIER in all derangements of the system and to animate and fortify all weak and Lymphatic Temperaments. 4wap18

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

FRIDAY, APRIL 28, 1871.

THE International, a London paper, asserts that Bismarck has openly demanded of the Swiss government the cession to Germany of the German-speaking Swiss cantons. The demand has been refused by Switzerland, and that government is now actively mobilizing the land-wehr, and has issued a proclamation recalling all her citizens from abroad.

THE Bonnet Carre Crevasse above New Orleans is 1100 feet wide. Immense quantities of water are pouring through the break and running six inches deep over the track of the Jackson Railroad. Chief Engineer Thompson reports that the volume of water passing is 180,000 cubic feet per second, or one-sixth of the whole volume of the Mississippi at that point. The work of paving the ends of the embankment is progressing slowly on account of the inadequate force and facilities. It is utterly useless to attempt to close the crevasse. In the present circumstances, preparations could not be made before the river falls, and the damage that will yet be done is a question of months' duration.

WHILE a train on the Boston and Albany railroad was running at a speed of 25 miles an hour the other day, on a short curve between Richmond and State Line, the engineer noticed a man walking on the track some distance ahead of the train. He blew the whistle and rang the bell, but did not seem to attract his attention. He then made every endeavor to stop the train, but all to no avail. The cow-catcher struck the man and threw him in front of the engine against the boiler, and there he remained until the engineer stopped the locomotive, when the "stranger" jumped off and put his fingers to his nose as if to say, "You didn't kill me, did ye?" The engineer and firemen took it for granted that the man was dead, and their surprise when they saw him making up faces at them can be imagined. It was a miraculous escape; not once in a thousand times would a person escape death under similiar circumstances.

THE "working-men" of England evidently feel strongly on the question of dowries to the princesses. A paper called Reynolds', which claims to be their champion and which circulates over three hundred thousand weekly, announced the birth of a son to the princess of Wales, under the head of "An Inauspicious Event." The speedy death of the unhappy baby gave the editor a chance to show what he meant by the former headline, for the next week the following paragraph appeared under the caption of "A Happy Release":—

We have much satisfaction in announcing that the newly-born child of the Prince and Princess of Wales died shortly after its birth, thus relieving the working classes of England from having to support hereafter another addition to the long roll of state beggars they at present maintain.

PARIS has been enjoying a brief armistice.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

The saw-mill of Mr. Russell Tubbs of Deering was burned on Monday night. Loss about $1000, with a partial insurance.

A joint stock company, with a capital of $75,000, has been organized at Keene for the purpose of erecting a large steam mill.

THE Cincinnati Chronicle has bought the Cincinnati Times for $138,000.

—A Louisville woman was walking along the street on a windy day last week, the dust filling her eyes to such an extent that she could not see a switch engine that was bearing down on her. Just as it was about to crush her a man snatched her by the dress, pulled her off the track, and saved her life. In removing the female obstruction from the track he tore her dress, and when she saw the rent that was there she opened her mouth and swore at him until he left and came near being killed by the brother of the engine that was after the woman. He is not pulling women around by their dresses any more.

—In regard to the identification of signatures by experts, the New Orleans Picayune says: We recall an incident which happened in Camp street, as indeed it often happens in every bank. A gentleman asked the paying teller for a blank check, drew it on the spot to his own order and presented it; the teller glanced at the face of the paper turned it over and handed it back, asking that it be indorsed. This done and the check returned, the teller looked at the indorsement, then at the first signature, and again at the indorsement, smiled distractedly and said, "If I had not myself seen you write those two signatures, I would not pay this check, for they are not at all similar."

NEW HOTEL AT WELLS BEACH.—Acting on an invitation extended to us through Mr. Edward Fernald of the Great Falls Journal, from Messrs. Davis Worster & Co., to visit their new Island Ledge Hotel at Wells Beach and partake of an old fashioned clam-bake, we on Wednesday took the P. S. & P. train to Wells depot, where we found carriages in waiting to convey us to the house, at which we arrived after a pleasant ride of some eight miles. The new hotel is situated about half a mile from the old Atlantic House, some hundred yards or so from high water mark, and exactly abreast of the Island Ledge, which gives it its name. The situation is one of the finest for a summer resort, the house having seven acres of level land belonging to it, for a croquet or base ball ground, while the view is extensive and the beach one of the best to be found.

The house has a front of 100 feet, and extends 100 feet back; it has three stories and a mansard roof, surmounted by a cupola 12 feet square and 18 feet high; two verandahs, one above the other and each 12 feet wide, run along three sides of the building, giving over 500 feet of covered walks; and in the rear are separate buildings for laundry, bowling saloon and stables. The hotel contains 125 rooms, the sleeping apartments being large and the whole house well arranged. The dining hall, 65 by 27 feet, is finished in hard pine and brown ash, lighted by six chandeliers, and will seat 200 guests; it will be used for a ball room when required, and will make a good one. There is abundance of pure soft water; and every room, with the cupola, verandahs and bowling alley, are furnished with gas. There is a billiard room in the main building. The architect and builder is Mr. E. Blaisdell of Dover; 500,000 feet of lumber have been used in the building, and the whole cost of the hotel when furnished will be about $75,000.

The tables for the guests (some 200 in number, including Bros. Gray of the Dover Gazette, Fernald of the Great Falls Journal and other newspaper men, with a large number of railroad and manufacturing notabilities,) were spread near the beach, in front of the hotel; and the havoc occasioned among the clams, eggs and sweet potatoes, as they came on hot and fresh from the rock-weed, with all the other concomitants of a first class, "old-fashioned clambake," astonished even us —— and we have made one of a hungry crowd a good many times in our day. If the proprietors are as successful in their hotel cookery as they were in this out-door trial, they'll do.

After the dinner a party was made up to go on board the stranded steamer Clotilde, lying about a mile from the house; the wreckers courteously took their visitors off in a boat, and a general inspection of the vessel was held, men who are far more conversant with "grades" and water powers on shore than with salt water, talking in the most intensely salt style, in the endeavor to make the wreckers believe them men of vast nautical experience. The illusion would have been more perfect but for the slight confusion which they made with "port" and "starboard," and "bow" and "stern." The steamer has been turned from her original position and moved about twenty feet astern, and the men engaged in the work say she will probably come off at the next spring tides—as she may, though our faith in her so doing is not great.

At a late hour in the afternoon the string of coaches again took the road, to convey the party to the depot—where we arrived too late to catch our train, and therefore went to Great Falls with Bro. Fernald of the Journal, who knows how to take good care of one of the craft, who may for the time be adrift in a cold world.

The occasion was one of much pleasure to us; the proprietors (so far as we could judge on so short an acquaintance) are gentlemen, and they certainly know how to care for their guests. The clerk of the hotel, Mr. George D. Lamos, is well and favorably known in this city, from his former connection in a similar capacity with the City Hotel. A new road, under contract to be finished July 1, is being made across the flat from Wells Village, and will shorten the distance some miles; and the B. & M. Railroad extension, as surveyed, passes within a mile of the building. From the superior location of the hotel and the evident determination of the proprietors to keep a first-class house, we do not question but that a fair share of seaside visitors, during the coming season, will take up their abode and be well cared for at the Island Ledge Hotel.

—The "oldest newspaper man in the world" is what Lexis Dexat, who died in London recently, was called. He was born in 1773, and was a paragraphist at sixteen. Sixty-five years ago he edited the Morning Chronicle of London, and afterward conducted the Observer, a Sunday paper for fifty years.

—The beautiful Princess Frederica, the eldest daughter of Ex-King George of Hanover, is lying dangerously sick at the villa of her father near Vienna. On Christmas day, 1869, she was fixing up a Christmas tree for some poor children, when suddenly a green wax taper which she had lighted fell on her bare arm and burned her severely. Since that time her physicians have been unable to get the poison out of her system, and it is now believed that her life cannot be saved.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

"Horse-Men," and others who pretend to know, say that the following directions had better be observed in using Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders; Give a horse a tablespoonful every night for a week; the same every other night for 4 or 6 nights; the same for a mitch cow and twice as much for an ox. The addition of a little fine salt will be an advantage.

☞ If you have a discharge from the nose, offensive or otherwise, partial loss of the sense of smell, taste or hearing, eyes watering or weak, feel dull and stupid or debilitated, pain or pressure in the head, take cold easily, you may rest assured that you have the Catarrh. Sold by most druggists everywhere.

We have heard recently of several severe cases of spinal disease cured by Johnson's Anodyne Liniment; one case of a man forty-five years ago, who had not done a day's work for four years. The back should first be washed, then rubbed with a coarse towel. Apply the Liniment cold and rub in well with the hand. ap22

SPECIAL NOTICES.

DEATH IN THE HAIR!

Remember every hair is a tube. Don't fill these tubes with poison. Any desired shade of color can be obtained without the slightest danger. Have you read Professor CHILTON'S statement (made after analysis,) that is absolutely harmless? Nothing can be more conclusive. If you wish to change the color of your hair to a magnificent black or brown, and to use the Excelsior Dye. Beware of unauthenticated nostrums. A good dressing is necessary after dyeing, and the best is ap27dawlm

Cristadoro's Excelsior Hair Dye

COMBINE SAFETY WITH BEAUTY,

CRISTADORO'S HAIR PRESERVATIVE.

Try It.

It is amusing that the feeble should totter, with uncertain steps, over the face of the earth, in danger every day of falling victims to the morbid influences by which we are all surrounded, when a tested and proven vegetable tonic, capable of endowing them with the vigor they need, is procurable in every city, town and settlement. It might reasonably be thought that after the twelve years' experience which the world has had of HOSTETTER'S BITTERS, all would know that its effect is to prevent disease.

At certain seasons the atmosphere is surcharged with the seeds of intermittents, remittents, rheumatism, pulmonary disorders, bilious complaints and the like. Persons whose nervous systems are relaxed are the first to succumb to these distempers. Brace up the physical energies then with this potential vegetable tonic. It is the most powerful recuperant which the botanic kingdom has ever yielded to patient research and experiment. Try it. The blindest discipline of the old medical dogmas will at least admit that a tonic and alterative, compounded of approved herbs, roots and barks can do no harm, while the testimony of thousands invites a trial of its virtues.

Vigor is the thing most needed in these cases as well as in dyspepsia and nervous affections, and HOSTETTER'S BITTERS is the safest, surest and most wholesome strengthening preparation that human skill has yet concocted.

Hundreds of physicians have abandoned all the officinal receipts and prescribed this harmless tonic as a preventive and cure for all cases of chills and fever.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

Fancy Groceries—Butler & Leighton.
Prices Reduced—Morris Kichler.
Wanted—A Girl to do Housework.

MR. William B. Stoarns has purchased the business of Mr. Chas. W. Carter, corner of Congress and Chestnut Streets, and will keep on hand a complete assortment of confectionery and fruits in their season. His many friends will gladly welcome his convalescence.

WE hear it stated that the Navy Department will send the Wyoming to the Charlestown Navy Yard for the proposed alterations and improvements of a new propeller, well-room, &c., instead of having the work done here by undocking the Tuscarora and putting the Wyoming in her place.

MORRIS Kichler issues a manifesto this morning and now the world knows that he has a great variety of ready made clothing and furnishing goods, for sale at No. 19 Market St., where he will prove his "remarks" in language and deeds that are not vain. Shirley thinks so too—and we think as Shirley thinks.

THE friends of Hon. S. M. Wheeler of Dover regret to learn that he refused to vote for the Republican candidate for Congress at the late election. The Dover Enquirer is responsible for the statement. Mr. Wheeler's defeat in the Convention afforded no excuse for compromising his friends by bolting the nomination.

THE big anchor hoy belonging to the Navy Yard will to-day be towed up to the schooner Suliote, and lashed alongside that vessel, to keep her afloat when she is towed off the reef where she now lies. Empty casks and scows will probably be employed to assist the hoy, for the latter alone will not suffice to keep up 150 tons of coal, the amount yet remaining in the schooner, to say nothing of the weight of the vessel's hull. We are informed that Messrs. Tobey & Littlefield will have the job of repairing the damages to the schooner.

THE Lyre editor likes personalities when directed against any one but himself. He traduces his superiors, in the paper which he finds himself at present in control of, and sneaks behind the privileges of an editor, to make his cowardly attacks on respected citizens. It is with regret that we ever allude to the misrepresentations for which the Lyre is noted, and then we are reminded of touching pitch. When a disreputable paper has for its stock in trade nothing but abuse, it is our privilege to expose it, and in so doing we are personally responsible for all we choose to publish. Fair play does not consist in using unfair advantage. To be unfair or unjust is simply contemptible, and the files of the Lyre show that it is conducted unfairly and unjustly, and it is at once evident that its conductor makes public assaults through its columns, (intentionally or otherwise—and we don't think it is "otherwise" by any means,) that any decent man should be ashamed of.

For the Chronicle and Gazette.

How the Kearsarge won the great
Sea Fight in times not to be forgotten.

Some say she the victory got
With anchor chains hung o'er the spot,
Where the engine, scorner of wind,
Sails the ship with an iron mind.
Some, her long guns trained to starboard,
Into the foe shot and shell poured
So fast and thick, the buccaneer
His own dread doom was forced to hear.
Some, her brave captain and bold crew;
One man said who was there and knew—
Not guns nor chains nor sailors bold
Could that victory gain and hold;
But a good cause its own force had,
And the Flag made the ship iron-clad!
That power, the captain of the fight,
Sighted the guns unerring right,
While the base traitor's shot and shell,
From a false cause as falsely fell.

AN OLD TABLET.—In the old Cemetery at Exeter, west of the site of the old depot, is a horizontal slab, bearing the following inscription:—

Here lie the Remains of The Reverend DANIEL ROGERS
Pastor of a Church gathered in this Place 1643;
Who died December 9th, 1725, aged 78 years.
He had been long a Tutor in Harvard College,
Was a pious, faithful Minister of JESUS CHRIST
And a worthy son of the Rev'd JOHN ROGERS,
Pastor of the first Church in Ipswich,
Who died December 26th, 1745, in his 80 year;
Who was a son of JOHN ROGERS of same Place,
Physician and Preacher of GOD'S Word,
And President of HARVARD COLLEGE;
Who died July 2d, 1684, aged 54 years;
Who was eldest son of the Rev'd NATH'L ROGERS
Who came from England in 1638, settled at Ipswich,
Colleague Pastor with the Rev'd NATH'L WARD,
And died July 24, 1655, aged 57 years;
Who was son of the Reverend JOHN ROGERS,
A famous Minister of GOD'S Word at Dedham in England,
Who died October 18 1, 1636, aged 67 years;
Who was Grandson of JOHN ROGERS of London,
Prebendary of St. Pauls, Vicar of St. Sepulchres,
And Reader of Divinity,
Who was burned at SMITHFIELD Feb 14th, 1555,
First Martyr in Queen MARY'S Reign.

Thou martyred saint and all thy holy train,
O! be your honored names ne'er read in vain!
May each descendant catch your kindled fire,
And all your virtues, all their breasts inspire!
Prophets like you in long succession rise,
Burning and shining, faithful, firm and wise,
And millions be their crown beyond the skies.

THE James Mill at Newburyport was started up on Tuesday for the first time in two years.

MRS. Fair of San Francisco has been found guilty of murder in the first degree, for shooting Judge Crittenden.

ON Tuesday, May 2d, the ladies of the Unitarian Society, in Exeter, will hold their annual May Festival and Fair, at the Town Hall from 9 A. M. to 11 P. M.

A libel suit has been begun against the New Bedford Evening Standard by Robert W. Earley, on account of certain advertisements published in that paper. The damages are laid at $3000.

THE train from Plainfield, N. J., for New York, struck one of Barnum's circus wagons, near Cranford, N. J., killing three men outright and dangerously injuring two others, while the sixth was slightly injured. All belonged to the circus. The wagon, loaded with provisions, dishes, etc., was totally demolished. Two mules were carried over two hundred feet and killed. The driver's body was found seventy-five yards from the crossing.

—A white boy asked a young negro what he had such a short nose for: "I specks so it won't poke itself into other people's business."

—Two Missourians caught a horse thief and hanged him. His friends caught and hanged them. The citizens hanged his friends, and now who's going to hang the citizens?

—A suicide bungler lately dipped his head into a boiler of hot water because his wife flogged him for getting drunk. He can't get his name in the papers any such way as that.

—Wilhelm, the composer of the famous "Watch on the Rhine," which, as Bismarck is reported to have said, aided the Germans in the late war more than a well-equipped army of 100,000 men, died of apoplexy, having retired one evening in excellent health and been found a corpse in the morning.

—The latest novelty in watches for ladies is the crystal. It consists of a perfect sphere of glass, inclosing a watch movement. One side shows a petite dial. The reverse exhibits the works, and all is in the compass of a hazel nut. The movements are nickel, and the watch is a stem-winder. This curiosity can be secured for $250. It is worn pendant upon the necklace or bracelet.

THE OTHER SIDE.—While John Branch, of North Carolina, was General Jackson's Secretary of the Navy, he, Tazewell and Daniel Webster were walking on the north bank of the Potomac, at Washington. Tazewell, willing to amuse himself with Branch's simplicity, said, "Branch, I'll bet you a ten-dollar hat that I can prove that you are on the other side of the river."

"Done," said Branch.

"Well," said Tazewell, pointing to the opposite shore, "isn't that one side of the river?"

"Yes."

"Well, isn't this the other side?"

"Yes."

"Then as you are here, are you not on the other side?"

"Why, I declare poor Branch, so it is!" But here comes Webster. I'll win back the hat from him."

Webster had lagged behind, but now came up, and Branch accosted him:

"Webster, I'll bet you a ten dollar hat that I can prove that you are on the other side of the river."

"Done."

"Well, isn't this one side?"

"Yes."

"Well, isn't that the other side?"

"Yes, but I am not on that side."

Branch hung his head, and submitted to the loss of the two hats as quietly as he could.—Harper's Drawer.

Consumption,

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE,

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

DR. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr Schenck has in his own case been that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no requirement that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is simple, and differs little in its philosophy requires no argument. It is self-assuring, self-convincing.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. They are the two great means of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here, then comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophyllum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-purifying, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND,"

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are purged. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing, without its previous torturing, Dyspeptic accompaniments, painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten throne that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

The second thing is, the patients must stay in a warm room until they get well, for it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be prevented or a cure cannot be effected. Fresh air and riding out, especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased; and yet, because they are in the house they must not sit down and rest, they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear, to get up a good circulation of blood. The patients must keep in good spirits—be determined to get well. This has a great deal to do with the appetite, and is the great point to gain.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal testimony to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words:

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption: confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pains and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could get food, eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since."

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety-six pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed unintermitted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston, but his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 19 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions, and kind Nature will do the rest, exceeding fair in many cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the simple instructions that accompany them: First, create appetite. Of returning health hunger is the most unerring symptom. When it comes, all will depend upon the despairing at once be of good cheer. Good Blood at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweat is checked. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation: while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylactic against consumption in any of its forms. Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

7-30 GOLD LOAN,

OF THE

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 266 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 130 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 500.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend as a Profitable and perfectly Safe Investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths' per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on

20,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,00 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. TAX; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable at NEW YORK CURRENCY ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, accessible to the people, which is more PROFITABLE OR SAFE.

EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realising a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX,

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established character equal to any mortgage issue dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market price—thus placing them on the same basis for temporary or permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.

These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands, without competition, all the traffic of Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota—shortening the distance from St. Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 90 miles.

The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists that they will more than double within the ensuing year.

A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company obligating the latter to invest 50 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Road in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the Bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stock, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder of his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the interest obligation.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 3½ per cent. interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Governments pay at present price, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.

All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. f24dWaS

PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF

HAMLET'S SOLILOQUY.

To insure or not to insure? That is the question. Whether 't will be nobler for my family to suffer The stings and arrows of outrageous fortune Or take a policy against those dangers, And, by insuring, end them? To fret, to fear, No more; and by a policy to end The heartache and the thousand natural shocks That flesh is heir to. Yes, my application's Devoutly to be wished; I apply, insure. And pay the premium: ay—there's the rub For in that time what premiums may come Before I shrufle off this mortal coil Does make me pause, tightens my purse, And makes me rather pay the bills I have Than fly to others that I know not of. Thus does meanness make brutes of us all.

Morning Chronicle.

Concluded from first page.

dicted, was just the place to make our head-quarters in.

We listened; all was quiet.

"Now for it," said Tom; and, leaving two of the baskets there in the crib, we took Cad's and stole 'round to the door. Tom was to pin them on, and I was to knock; we had brought an old mortar-pestle for that purpose.

"All ready," whispered Tom, pressing in the pin.

Two ponderous knocks from the pestle! and in the crack of a whip we were around and safely housed in the old crib. We even thought it took some time to get out. But they came out at last,—Cad, Jess, and Lorette, with Dan, their little brother, — and raced off down the road, while we lay and snickered.

They were wofully at fault, though, and by and by came back, wondering and not a little chagrined.

"Haven't seen a thing of them," said Jess.

"Nor a sound either," said Lorette.

"O, they're round somewhere," said Cad taking down her basket. "Let's go in and wait. They'll be back."

We let them wait some time, though.

"Say is the word now," whispered Tom. "They'll rush out the moment the pestle strikes next time."

But after all had for a long time been still, we ventured 'round again with the second basket.

"Guess we've out-winded them," said Tom. "They're abed by this time."

But with the first stroke of the pestle the door flew open, and out rushed three of the girls at a pop. Coming out of a bright light, though, they were unable to see us quick enough. Dodging noiseless back, we scuttled away among the lilac, and regained the crib one more. Old Scoge sprang out, barked, and took a turn through the garden. We trembled; he didn't happen to nose us out, though, but ran off after the girls, who were chasing down the road again.

"A pretty snug shave," muttered Tom, drawing a long breath. And just then the gruff paternal voice was heard demanding from his bed-chamber what all that noise and rumpus was, that time of night. Here Mother Lynch probably informed him of the day of the month; for after a pause he snorted, "First day o' May! Little scullions! I'd like to get hold of 'em!"

Prayerfully hoping he wouldn't, we waited for the girls to come back, which they at last did, utterly nonplussed at their failure to get the least clew to our whereabouts.

"I know it's Kit and Tom," said Jess, "but where did they go to so quick?"

"That's the question," whispered Tom.

"They'll hang another, I guess," said Lorette; "I haven't had any yet."

The little minx doubtless knew she had good reason to expect one.

Here the father was heard wondering them into the house—and to bed.

"This time's the rubber," whispered Tom. "I do hope Old Jock won't come out, or Scoge either; he almost smelled us out.

We waited a full half-hour. There was too much at stake to make time any object. Then, with trembling and palpitation, we edged 'round for the third and last time; but ere Tom could pin on the basket, the door was opened with a jerk, and a savage grab made from a big, brawny hand. We sprang away like cats, traversed the garden and dived into the crib. Scoge was after us too; his great ugly head entered with us, out a knock on the nose from the pestle made him withdraw it; and we got the door to, and hasped it. But the racket thus had betrayed us; and Scoge, too, was now worrying at the crib.

"Gone into the corn-crib!" shouted little Dan, running up.

"Into my corn-crib!" exclaimed his father, stumbling out through the currant-bushes. "Hold 'em Scoge! Hold 'em!"

"We're in for it now!" gasped Tom, "and no mistake."

But the girls didn't come out; that was one comfort.

"And they've hasped the door, too," cried Dan, trying it.

"O, they want to stay, do they!" chuckled the old man. "Button the door, Dan. They shall stay till to-morrow. Whose boys are they?"

Dan didn't know.

"Whose boys are ye?"

We kept quiet; it wouldn't mend matters to confess now.

"Won't talk, will ye? Go get the good-stick, Dan. I'll make 'em talk."

Dan brought the good, a long white-oak one, with a fearful brad, made from an old awl. We knew that good-stick, and shuddered.

"You little skites!" growled Old Jock, thrusting the good in through the wide chinks, and prodding at random. "Se if you won't talk!" Tom got the first pricks, and squawked and screeched in spite of himself.

"Old Zack Edwards boy, if I live," muttered the old wretch. "Voice just like old Zack's."

"O, don't, father, don't hurt them so!" pleaded Jess from the window.

"You go to bed, gal. Now who's t'other one?" bradding recklessly into the corner where I was crouching.

Heavens! how I yelled!

"O ho," laughed he, "the old Deacon's son, sure's the world. Might have brought him up better," bradding again. "Take that, you Deacon's son! How does that taste?"

"Now don't father, please don't!" cried Cad coming into the garden.

"Go back gal! Step!"

Cad vanished.

"Now," continued he, with a few farewell prods at us, "you stay here till morning." And with this pleasant good night, he left us cribbed.

This was rather rough usage from a man whom we had fond hopes of making our father-in-law, certainly. But we had to stand it. We couldn't even get out of the crib; for it was a staunch one, and couldn't be burst. And that old button was a most incorruptible one. No amount of fingering through the cracks could stir it a hair's breadth.

"Kit, we're in a dreadful scrape," said Tom.

"A dreadful scrape," said I. Several hours passed. We didn't say much; we were profoundly taken down, and sat looking at the stars through the cracks. Despite the general misery of the situation, I was dropping off to sleep, when a whisper from Tom roused me. A little dusky figure was stealing out through the lilacs, stopping to listen at every step.

"It's Jess," said Tom.

"Lorette," said I.

And it was Lorette. Tip-toeing noiselessly up to the door, she hastily turned the button, then darted away through the garden and into the house.

It is needless to add that the good turn (of the button) was fully appreciated; and that we made ourselves scarce forthwith.

THE CLOVER PLANT.—Our farmers seem to be slow in accepting the statements of the value of the clover plant as a renovating crop, or in making any extended use of it for this purpose. The experiments of Dr. Voelcker clearly prove that there is fully three times as much nitrogen in a crop of clover as in the average produce of the grain and straw of wheat per acre; and that there remains in the soil, after the removal of a crop of clover, a great weight of roots, that on decomposing furnish in an available form a large amount of plant food which the plant has collected largely from sources that were inaccessible to the finer rootlets of the wheat plant. Moreover, the roots of clover penetrate deeply into the subsoil, and on decaying they leave it loose and open, fitted for the fine tendrils of succeeding crops to run down after moisture in time of drouth, and for the nourishment which the decaying clover roots furnish.

Of course the beneficial effects of growing clover are much more observable after two years' growth of the crop. Dr. Voelcker also ascertained that the clover roots were stronger and more numerous, and that more leaves fall on the ground, when clover is grown for seed than when it is mown for hay; consequently more nitrogen is left after clover seed than after hay, which accounts for wheat yielding a better crop after clover seed than after hay.

In some states, New York for instance, the value of the clover crop has for many years been understood; and in some sections it is said if this plant were struck out of existence it would be necessary to learn everything anew in regard to cultivating the land, so dependent are the farmers upon it. Land devoted to this crop is top dressed with plaster at the rate of about one bushel per acre, each spring after the ground is settled.

We are satisfied the plant affords the surest, easiest and most economical means of restoring fertility to our worn out fields, and of rendering the sub-soil preamble to roots of succeeding crops, that is embraced in the economy of agriculture, and hope our farmers will endeavor to get into the way of making great account of it.—Maine Farmer.

AN EARLY START.—In our climate, and with our short seasons, everything consists in giving crops—especially corn and the garden vegetable, of which great numbers are now beginning to be grown in our State—an early start. To do this the first thing needed is to wait. The requisite heat must be present in the soil in order that seeds may germinate quickly. In all cases practicable the aid of a hot bed should be secured to forward the growth of garden vegetables. Where this cannot, or has not been done the farmer must furnish all the assistance given by a fine tilth and special fertilizers to hasten forward the crops.

A most potent fertilizer for the corn crop can be manufactured of hen dung, unleached wood ashes and plaster, and it will be found upon most soils as efficacious as the most highly commended commercial fertilizer in the market. All the ingredients should be perfectly dry when mixed, otherwise the hen manure will give off more ammonia than the plaster can absorb. This mixture, like superphosphate and other concentrated manures, must have a slight covering of earth when placed under corn, and the seed must not come directly in contact with it, otherwise the vitality of the seed will be injured.

Many farmers who have used this home made fertilizer for years, consider it more valuable than that sold for $60 per ton in the markets, and regard hens as paying stock, even if kept for their manure alone. But it should not be forgotten that dependence must not be placed wholly upon special fertilizers. While they give crops the needed early start, the ground should be well manured, that after they have once commenced to grow they should not be checked for want of needed fertility.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS, For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs, No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON, After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S
COMPOUND FLUID
Extract Catawba
GRAPE PILLS.

Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not necessitate being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

E

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S
HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND
FLUID EXT. SARSAPARILLA

Will radically exterminate from the system Scrofula, Syphilis, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Sore Legs, Sore Mouth, Sore Head, Bronchitis, Skin Diseases, Salt Rheum, Cankers, Rheumatism from the Ear, White Swellings, Tumors, Cancerous Affections, Nodes, Rickets, Glandular Swellings, Night Sweats, Rash, Tetter, Ringworm of all kinds, Chronic Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and all diseases that have been established in the system for years.

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than other preparations of Sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of Health and Purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pains and swelling of the bones, ulcerations of the throat and legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, and Beautifying the Complexion.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S
CONCENTRATED
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
THE GREAT DIURETIC,

has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given. Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder with Stone in the Bladder, Diseases of Prostate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucuous or Milky Discharges, Retention of Urine, and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, and Excesses and Imprudences in Life, Impurities of the Blood, Injurious Medicines, and all diseases arising from the use of Mercury, Minerals or Poisons.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is unequalled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Preventing and Curing Strictures of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED ROSE WASH

cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It speedily eradicates Pimples, Spots, Scorbutic Dryness, Indurations of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Itch, Moth Patches, Dryness of Scalp or Skin, Frost Bites, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for cutaneous defects of the skin. H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unbounded patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

D

Full and explicit directions accompany the medicines.

Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character furnished on application, with hundreds of thousands of living witnesses and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, etc. The proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

AT THE WINDOW.

BY AUTHOR OF "JOHN HALIFAX, GENTLEMAN."

Only to listen—listen and wait
For his slow, firm step down the gravel walk;
To hear the click, of his hand at the gate,
And feel every heart-beat through careless talk;
Ah, love is sweet when life is young!
And life and love are both so long.

Only to watch him about the room,
Lighting it up with his quiet smile,
That seems to lift the world out of gloom,
And bring heaven nearer me—for a while,
A little while—since love is young,
And life is beautiful as long.

Only to love him—nothing more;
Never a thought of his loving me;
Proud of him, glad in him, though he bore
My heart to shipwreck on this smooth sea.
Love's faith sees only grief, not wrong,
And life is daring when 'tis young.

Ah me! what matter? The world goes round,
And bliss and bale are but outside things;
I never can lose what in him I found,
Though love be sorrow with half-grown wings;
And if love flies when we are young,
Why, life is still not long—not long.

And heaven is kind to the faithful heart;
And if we are patient, and brave and calm,
Our fruits will last, though our flowers depart;
Some day when I sleep with folded palm,
No longer fair, no longer young,
Life may not seem so bitter long.

* * * * * * * *

The tears dried up in her shining eyes,
Her parted lips took a saintly peace;
His shadow across the doorway lies,
Will her doubts gather, darken or cease?
When hearts are pure, and bold and strong,
True love as life itself is long.

FRUIT TREES FOR SHADE.—A correspondent of the Country Gentleman says truly: "Shade trees in the door-yard and by the road-side add much to the beauty and thereby to the value of the farm. Public attention has been attracted to this subject, and within a few years past very many trees have been set by the sides of our roads. It has cost but little to do it, and the increased beauty of the farms has more than paid the expense. And this principle will hold true universally. Shade trees will more than pay their cost.

The general tendency has been to set trees which would furnish shade and be ornamental, without reference to anything farther. But here is a good opportunity to combine beauty and utility. The shade and ornamental trees which are usually transplanted are injurious to the soil and make no return, except their shade and ornament. Now, if instead of maples and elms, we would set some of the best varieties of fruit trees, we would have shade and also a good supply of fruit. This plan, I think, is practiced to some extent in Germany, and would, no doubt, be successful here. Our public commons if set over, to some extent, with fruit trees, would yield an abundant supply of fruit for the poor, who have no trees and no land on which to set them. A common planted with the choice varieties of cherries, plums, peaches, pears and apples, would look full as tempting, especially in fruiting time, as one covered with maples and evergreens.

But my particular object in this article is to recommend farmers when setting trees on their land near the road, to set those which will yield an income rather than those which are merely ornamental and which are a constant injury to the land. Practical illustrations of the benefits of such a course are often seen. We have in mind two farmers whose land borders on the road. One of them has a nice row of maples, which furnish nothing but shade and seriously injure his land. The other has a splendid row of apple trees. They furnish shade—are ornamental and do not injure the land near as much as maples. They also furnish a large supply of valuable fruit."

—A German advertiser handed in the following "want," written in the German character: "Wandet: a kind wummun to tak kar for a little Scheild for risunbul Wirtscheb [compensation] or els gut pibel[good people] wat want to tek de bebi for her own Schild."—Newark Advertiser.

—At a menagerie in Indianapolis a small lioness escaped from her cage, and the chief of police went to the top of the centre pole in five seconds. He is now reported as saying that he went up there just for fun, to decide a bet. Besides that, he says he didn't go up the pole anyway.

—"Bob Brown, did you say that my father had not as much sense as Billy Smith's little yellow dog?" "No I never said any such thing. I never said that your father had not as much sense as Billy Smith's little yellow dog. All I said was that Billy's little yellow dog had more sense than your father; that's all I ever said." "Well, it's well you didn't say the other, I tell you."

—"Why do you oppose the giving of the ballot to women?" asked a lady the other evening of a confirmed bachelor. "Excuse me, madam," replied he, "but I have not sufficient confidence in their capacity to conduct government affairs." "What evidence of their mental inferiority to mankind can you advance?" queried the lady. "A simple fact is enough to satisfy my mind, and that is the frightful way in which they do up their back hair."

A GOOD OFFER TO THE
Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.
E. A. JOY
Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to bring in lots of work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing whether a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.
MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make the above generous offer.
His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an excellent judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the Best SEWING MACHINES may always be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 9 PLEASANT ST., nearly opposite the Post Office, Portsmouth, N. H. Twelve Different Kinds to Select from. mh7

The above list includes all of what are commonly called the first class machines, but the
NEW FAMILY SINGER SEWING MACHINE
Has proved itself the best for all classes and kinds of operators and work.
All that persons need to do to satisfy themselves of this is to enquire of those who have used them the most.
They Hem, Braid, Tuck, Quill, Cord, Embroider, Fringes, Ruffle, Fell, Puff, Gather, Fagot, Trim, Bind.
☞ They are light running, easy to learn and keep in order and for durability unrivaled.
☞ They will stitch equally well the heaviest beaver or the thinnest muslin, in fact they will do every useful work that mechanical skill has yet perfected in the Sewing art.
☞ The e celebrated Machines are Sold for Cash or on the installment principle, as best suits convenience of the purchaser, at the Regular Agency for Portsmouth, Kittery, York, Eliot, Newcastle, Rye, Hampton, North Hampton, Hampton Falls, Greenland and Seabrook.

F. W. ROGERS,
DEALER IN FLOUR,
WOOD COAL AND GROCERIES,
Corner Vaughan and Deer Streets.

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
—IF SO, USE THE—
AVERILL CHEMICAL PAINT.
It is Cheaper, Handsomer and more durable than the best of other Paints. One Thousand Gallons of it were sold in this City, in the year 1870, and not one complaint has come from those who have used it; but all speak in its favor; it is mixed ready for application, and is much easier put on than any other Paint, making a smooth, glossy surface for years, that can be cleaned with hot suds without injuring it. It is excellent for wood, brick, or the plaster of paper.
I shall keep this season a large stock of Chemical Paints of all shades on hand, to accommodate customers with any amount, without delay in ordering it. Those who want to use the Chemical Paints and have had them misrepresented by those who deal in Lead and Oil, are invited to call and examine my Paints that have been on Buildings two years, and you will find them as fresh as if laid but one month.
I am prepared to do Painting by Contract, or by the day, using the Chemical Paint, or furnishing good experienced workmen by the day at very low wages. B. NORTON, only Agent for selling the

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!
DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
VINEGAR BITTERS.
Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.
WHAT ARE THEY!
THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,
Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.
DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.
They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.
FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.
FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. ☞ Send for a circular.
They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawf6t6

IT IS A SURE AND Perfect Remedy for all diseases of the
LIVER AND SPLEEN, ENLARGEMENT OR OBSTRUCTION OF INTESTINES, URINARY, UTERINE OR ABDOMINAL ORGANS, POVERTY OF ACTION OF BLOOD, INTERMITTENT OR REMITTENT FEVERS, INFLAMMATION OF THE LIVER, DROPSY, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD, ABSCESSES, TUMORS, JAUNDICE, SCROFULA, DYSPEPSIA, AGUE AND FEVER, OR THEIR CONCOMITANTS.
DR. WELLS, having become aware of the extraordinary medicinal properties of the South American Plant, called
JURUBEBA,
Sent a special commission to that country to procure it in its native purity, and having found its wonderful curative properties to even exceed the anticipations formed by its great reputation, has concluded to offer it to the public, and is happy to state that he has perfected arrangements for a regular monthly supply of this wonderful Plant. He has spent much time experimenting and investigating as to the most efficient preparation from it, for popular use, and has for some time used it in his own practice with most happy results the effectual medicine now presented to the public as
Dr. Wells' Extract of Jurubeba,
and he confidently recommends it to every family as a household remedy which should be freely taken as a BLOOD PURIFIER in all derangements of the system and to animate and fortify all weak and Lymphatic Temperaments. 4wap18

SATURDAY, APRIL 29, 1871.

PUT UP THE BARS.

A mass meeting of Crispins, including delegates from all parts of the United States, has been recently held in Cooper Institute, New York City. The speakers denounced the Burlingame treaty for sanctioning the introduction of Chinese labor; criticised New England capitalists, who hold up their hands in horror at negro slavery, at the same time they foster a more degrading system of coolie slavery; urged the use of the ballot-box and force to oppose the tide of Chinese emigration; advocated the co-operative labor system and protested that their remonstrances to Congress were practically unheeded so long as the subsidy to the Pacific Mail Steamship Company is continued.

Resolutions were adopted pledging the Crispins to use every legal means to effect the repeal of the Burlingame treaty; promising persistent opposition to any party that will not guaranty the prohibition of coolie slavery; holding speculators in the traffic responsible for the evil that may accrue from it, and calling upon all Trades Unions to unite against the introduction of coolie labor.

No one can deny the right of workingmen to band themselves together for mutual assistance, their right to say they will not work for unsatisfactory wages, or their right to contribute to the support of each other, when idle from any cause whatever, if they so choose to do; but they can have no right to prevent any other man from working at whatever rate of wages suits him, be it high or low, nor to dictate to any man whom he shall employ or how much he shall pay for any given service. We have seen something, and read much, of the tyranny of Trades Unions in other parts of the world; and after making all allowances for the circumstances under which such societies are formed, and fully considering the objects they propose to attain—notably the protection of labor from the encroachments of capital—we much doubt if any good ever accrued to the workingmen from the violent means often used to attain it.

The Crispins have undoubtedly the largest and most powerful Trade Union in the United States; and so long as they confine their operations to a legitimate channel, it is their own business whether they demand one dollar per day, or five. But their mass meeting in Cooper Institute, "including delegates from all parts of the United States," stultified itself by advocating the importation of the ancient exclusiveness of the heathen Chinee, for the sole purpose of keeping out the Chinaman himself. "Force" is to be used to prevent the Chinese from coming here. This is genuine Celestial exclusiveness; and thus the Crispins have resolved,—after the civilzed world has for centuries sneered at the Chinese for keeping out all "barbarians," and with the memories of war against China in which all the maritime nations of Christendom have taken part, to break down that exclusiveness, fresh in their memories,—that America must adopt the Chinese wall, put up the bars against barbarians, and out-Chinee the veritable heathen himself.

A part of their programme is to break down the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, by stopping their subsidy—the reason, the company bring over Chinamen. Whether the company would keep on without a subsidy, or whether the subsidy should be continued, or not, we need not enquire; the Crispins evidently assumed that the steamers would stop running if the subsidy was cut off. The only advantage to the country, would be that the Chinese would not find it so easy to get here; and the question the Crispins should have asked themselves is, "Is the game worth the powder and shot?"

Owing mainly to a short-sighted policy on the part of the government in times past, America to-day has no interest worth mentioning in the vast steam-traffic between Europe and this continent; England, France and Germany are the monopolists of it, and millions of dollars would be required to give us a respectable footing on the Atlantic. But the Pacific is ours; and the steamship company the Crispins are so hostile to, is doing more to extend American influence and commercial power than all the "strikes" of all the trades unions that ever existed. And to give up this Pacific trade, from a fear that some Chinaman should get in and corrupt us or work us out of a job, is elevating that Chinamen to a height to which his own self-importance never raised him.

As to "coolie slavery" being worse than negro slavery—the coolie makes a voluntary agreement, where the slave was sold; and if American law will not protect the Chinaman as it does (or will do) the negro, then it needs reconstructing some more, that's all. And the fear that this country will prove too small for or be ruined by the Chinese, is as groundless as the old Chinese fear that the barbarous "Melican man" would corrupt the Celestial world if he once got into it. When the Chinaman finds that he does a dollar's worth of work, he is as quick to demand a dollar for doing it as any other man; at least, such has been our experience, and we have seen hundreds of such cases. The pauper labor of Europe was sure to ruin this country, once, and the vast influx of ignorance and lawlessness to destroy our free institutions; and later, the raising of four millions of black cattle, steeped as they were in ignorance and degradation, to the dignity of free men, was certain to make white labor dishonorable and unremunerative, and reduce the American workman to the level of the European laborer—these were the predictions. But neither the ignorance or the labor of Ireland or Africk overthrew our political or industrial institutions, (excepting in New York,) and the Chinese will prove equally harmless. That the latter will get rid of their own prejudices, if they come here, we may hope, though it would hardly be fair to expect it, if we are going to act on precisely similar ones; but the Chinese, as a people, cannot successfully compete with Americans, in any business or occupation where brain is required, and our country is extensive enough to employ all the Chinese who are likely to reach our shores, without any of us being crowded.

The Crispins' convention advocated co-operation; and "there they hit it." The branch of that society at North Adams, instead of saying that their old employer should not hire whom he pleased, commenced manufacturing themselves,—and in so doing did more for themselves and the country than if they had burned down every shoe-shop in the town and killed every Chinaman there. Their intelligence, skill, and the interest which they have in their work, have already made their goods popular in the market; and probably not one of the North Adams workmen now feels any terror lest he be outworked by a Celestial. We do not, at any rate.

PUT YOURSELF IN HER PLACE.—A young lady visiting in New York, the granddaughter of a Massachusetts statesman, came home recently from a ball, and bidding her escort good night at the house door, proceeded, as she supposed to her chamber. To her consternation, on turning up the gas, she discovered a number of trifles scattered about that told as plainly as inanimate things could tell that she was in the apartment of a luxurious young bachelor. At the moment of this discovery she was horrified to hear a heavy step in the hall, which was apparently coming toward the room into which the young lady had so unfortunately blundered. Following the impulse of her mind, she locked the door on the inside, and soon heard a hand trying the lock.

She remained as quite as a summer's day before a shower, and in a moment heard a tempest of words issue from the entry, which were evidently the upbraiding of an elderly gentleman to his son for too frequent dissipating until the dawn "chased the session of the stars from night." Receiving no answer, the voice gradually died away in the distance with murmurings about bringing a mother's hairs in sorrow to the grave, and then the young lady, quickly unlocking the door, glided noiselessly down the stairs, through the front vestibule into the street, thence to her own house, which was in the next block.

Now, mark the sequel, which points a moral for all believers in black spirits and white, red spirits and gray. The possessor of the voice referred to above—an elderly gentleman of unquestionably respectability, and who was never known to make a joke in his life—asserted that on a certain night, at the hour when the churchyards yawn and graves give up their dead, he was anxiously awaiting the arrival of his son, when he heard the front door of his residence open and some one enter the young gentleman's room.

He immediately descended, to have an interview with his boy, but he found the bed-room door locked, and there was no response to his knock. Subsequently he saw a sight that chilled his blood. A female figure in shadowy robes glided out of the apartment and down the stairs, and about an hour afterward his son came home utterly ignorant of the mysterious occurrence. After believing for a time there were more things in heaven and earth than are dreamed of in our philosophy, pater familias was informed by the pretty ghost herself how she inadvertently place herself in a delicate position, and how her woman's wit got her out of it.—Boston Gazette.

—Scholastic Boston is sorely troubled because the chief cook of the Parker House receives a much larger salary than the President of Harvard College. The effect of this on the mind of the students is such that many of them are reported to spend more time in the hotel than in the halls of recitation.

—A new planet, discovered by Dr. Luther, at Belk, near Dusseldorf, has been seen from Washington. It is of the 11th magnitude and is the 115th of the minor planets. The Begin astronomers have named it "Amalthea.".

FRANCE.

In a battle on the 25th, the Communists lost 9000 killed and wounded, and 3000 prisoners.

DR. Albion Cobb, principal of the academy at Wilton, Me., has been arrested by the Niagara frontier police near Buffalo, N. Y., charged with deserting his wife and four children and eloping with a young lady pupil, an invalid, under his charge. Cobb on being arrested denied hailing from Wilton. The victim acknowledged all. Both parties are retained in custody waiting instructions from Maine. Dr. Cobb had rented and furnished rooms for an office and living room, and hung out his shingle as a practising physician, but became frightened at a paragraph copied in a local paper of his elopement with Miss Dow, sold his furniture, packed his trunks, and was about leaving on the Falls Railroad when they were both arrested by detectives watching his movements.

—Salaries of all State officers are exempt from income tax.

—Somerville, Mass., has accepted a city charter, by a vote of 336 to 170.

—O'Baldwin, prize fighter, is out of the Massachusetts State Prison, having served a sentence of 18 months.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

We should not hesitate to recommend to any friend of ours, Parsons' Purgative Pills; they are scientifically prepared and are adapted to all the purposes of a good purgative medicine.

Decidedly the best remedy that has ever been discovered for rheumatism, swollen or stiff joints, flesh wounds, sprains, bruises, cuts and burns, is Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. We use it and always recommend it to our friends. ap29

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Preventive Medication.

A radical change has been introduced in the practice of medicine. Physicians have ceased to torture and prostrate their patients. Instead of pulling down, they build up; instead of assailing nature, they assist her. Cupping, leeching, blistering, venesection, calomel, antimony, stupifying narcotics and rasping purgatives, once the favorite resources of the faculty, are now rarely resorted to even by the most dogmatic members of the profession. The old creed was that disease was something which must be expelled by violent artificial means, irrespective of the wear and tear of the vital organization in the process. The new creed recognizes the improvement of the general health as essential to the cure of all local ailments. Hence it is that HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, the most potent vegetable tonic that pharmacy has ever brought to the assistance of nature in her struggles with disease, has been cordially approved by practitioners of the western school. It is pleasant to reflect that reason and philosophy have at last been victorious over the errors of the past, and that thousands and tens of thousands of human beings are alive and well to-day who would indubitably be mouldering in their graves, had they been subjected to the pains and penalties which were deemed orthodox and indispensable thirty or forty years ago.

Preventive medication was scarcely thought of then; but now it is considered of paramount importance, and the celebrity of the standard invigorant, alterative and restorative of the age, (a title which Hostetter's Bitters have fairly earned by their long career of success,) is mainly due to its efficiency as a protective preparation.

A course of the Bitters is urgently recommended as a safe and certain antidote to intermittent and remittent fevers, diarrhœa, dysentery and other maladies.

DEATH IN THE HAIR!

Remember every hair is a tube. Don't fill these tubes with poison. Any desired shade of color can be obtained without the slightest danger. Have you read Professor CHILTON'S statement (made after analysis,) that

THE prophet promises to reform. Plenty need of it.

AUCTION Sale this day, by J. P. Morse, of furniture, farming and stone mason's tools, &c., at No. 10 Dennett St. See adv't.

THE shade trees in front of the Rockingham House are not there any more, having been digged up; but the newly-turfed bank is already showing the good effect of the rain.

THE Lyre chose to ridicule a prominent Republican candidate for office previous to the late election—the result being that the candidate ran ahead of his ticket in the District on the total vote.

THE water supply is gradually increasing, although the clerk of the weather is still in arrears. A few more drenching rains like that of Thursday night and Friday are needed to fill the wells.

IN Board of Aldermen, April 27th, the Committee to whom was referred the subject of compensation for the Collector reported in favor of the present rate. Adopted.

Voted, to repair North Mill bridge.

MR. Charles W. Tucker, who has for many years owned and lived on a farm on the Rye road, was found dead in his bed Friday morning. He retired on Thursday evening in apparently good health, after having done a hard day's work on the farm.

HAM & Co. have a fine assortment of cloths for spring and summer wear, at No. 9 Congress Street. They pride themselves on the exact "fits" they give customers, and we just know that they have reason to. They appreciate the value of advertising, thoroughly.

FOR Speaker of the new House of Representatives, the names of Messrs. William H. Hackett of Portsmouth, Bainbridge Wadleigh of Milford and James O. Adams of the Manchester Mirror are being mentioned. The Republicans feel confident of organizing the House, if all are present on the 7th of June.

SOME time since, a couple of Portsmouth children were overheard discussing the important question of who was the best man, Moses or Jesus Christ. One, having listened to a glowing exordium on the life and character of Moses, was heard to say:—"Moses was the bestest man; he was in the burning bush, but he isn't there now, because the bush is growed to a big tree." The other responded in this wise:—"No, Jesus was the bestest man; Dr. Peabody and the other ministers say so."

A little four year old recently attended services at one of our city churches, and noticed the surplice worn by the pastor. On returning home, she said to a member of the family who had remained at home,—"I dess Mr. —— (the pastor) was shilly (chilly); he had on his dran'mother's waterp'oof."

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

The seat of Mr. I. N. Blodgett, Democratic representative elect from Franklin, is to be contested, on the ground that there are not ratable polls in that town sufficient to send three representatives.

George Gregg, a teamster, was thrown under his team on the 26th near Gilsum, and run over. He lived but a few moments. He leaves a wife and six children.

Henry Stewart, the convict who assaulted Mr. Flanders at the State prison, is to be sent to the insane asylum. He has always been considered as dangerous, and is liable to assail some of his fellow-convicts if allowed to remain among them.

Mr. Jerome Bickford of Concord was fatally injured, it is feared, while setting a stationary engine in motion. He was caught up by a sett-screw on the main shaft and carried 'round, he thinks, one hundred times.

The residence of Mr. Benjamin Wilder, in Winchendon, was burned on the 25th. Insured for $1500.

A saw mill of Mr. George F. Nutter of New Durham was burned on the 26th Loss about $5000, with an insurance of $3000.

Manchester estimates its expenses for the current year at $275,000.

The cost of the introduction of water into Manchester from Massabesic, which has been agreed on as the best source of supply by the engineer is $400,000.

—The emigration to Nebraska this year is estimated at 40,000.

THE Saco Firemen's muster will be held June 14th.

The Centre Harbor fire bug, B. F. Brown, has been sentenced to ten years in State Prison.

SIXTY four fisherman have been lost on the George's this season. They leave 24 widows and 50 children.

THE English government has added two pence on a pound to its income tax instead of taxing matches, which met with great opposition from the poorer classes.

THE Springfield Republican styles George G. Fogg, "the Concord politician." The N. Y. Times pertinently inquires: "Why not Discord, in view of the result of the late election?"

SIXTEEN thousand, three hundred and seventy five books are taken from the Boston Public Library every twelve days, or an average of 1365 daily. The Library contains 175,954 volumes and 89,099 pamphlets. What has become of the proposed Portsmouth public library?

THE Boston Advertiser urges the patronage of a line of steamers from Liverpool to East Boston, and thinks with the removal of head money, immigration can be encouraged towards the modern Athens,—and at the same time opposes the free ferries to East Boston. If the emigrant is to be assessed two cents to reach the city proper, would it not, in order to compete with New York, be feasible for Boston to free its ferries leading to deep water, or else cease claiming to be an enterprising, or a commercial town?

ADVICES received in Washington from South Carolina represent that the colored people are fleeing by hundreds from counties in the interior of the State, deserting their homes and partially raised crops. This is owing to the Ku-Klux outrages, which are alleged to be on the increase. In one county alone it is reported that eleven hundred negroes have fled through fear of assassination. The result of this stampede will be that in many sections of the State crops will perish through neglect, and many planters will be entirely ruined. In some sections of the State a perfect reign of terror is reported to exist.

S. J. COURT, Exeter.—We learn from the News Letter that the jury in the case Dolans vs. York returned a verdict of "not guilty."

In case, John Cook vs. John P. Bennett, executor of Wm. P. Bennett, an appeal from report of commissioner of insolvency disallowing claim of $450 for board, clothing, &c., furnished Minnie Bennett, the jury awarded $310. Exceptions filed.

Dr. Robert M. Otis recovered $70 from Dr. M. F. Wentworth, being one half of fees collected from the U. S. government for guarantine duty at Kittery, Me.

A divorce was decreed in the suit, James Johnson vs. Angeline Johnson.

The News Letter says some 30 or 40 complaints were laid before the grand jury at this session, against liquor sellers, but no indictment was found.

☞ THE NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE for this week, is now ready for delivery, at the Chronicle Office. Each number contains all the reading matter of the week's Dailies. Price $2 a year; single copies 5 cents,—in wrappers for mailing, if desired. Six copies for $10 per year, to Clubs—per mail or city carrier.

TRY IT!

How well we remember in days that are gone,
The feelings we felt as we saw the cork drawn—
The disgust—the recoil
From "Cod Liver Oil,"
Dealt out to poor souls in the days that are gone!
But who could complain
Of this to be ta'en?
It swallows as easy as sparkling Champagne—
Does "Marvins' Deodorized Oil."

Consumption,

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE,

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self-assuring, self-convincing.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes sympathize with the stomach. They respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here, then comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Pedophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It secures health in torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing, without its previous torture. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the hundred and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the lung is washed, the rotten throne that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

The second thing is, the patients must stay in a warm room, until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be prevented or a cure cannot be effected. Fresh air and filling out, especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased; and yet, because they are in the house they must not sit down quiet; they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear, to get up a good circulation of blood. The patients must keep in good spirits—be determined to get well. This has a great deal to do with the appetite, and is the great point to gain.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words:

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption: confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then like a drowning man catching at straws I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would raise it up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pain and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since."

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from A. M. to 4 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $3. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions, and kind Nature will do the rest, accepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the simple instructions that accompany them: First, create appetite. Of returning health hunger is the most welcome symptom. When it comes, it will come, let the despairing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweat is abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation; while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylacteric against consumption in any of its forms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

7-30 GOLD LOAN

—OF THE—

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 266 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 139 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 500.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend as a Profitable and perfectly Safe Investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths' per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on

20,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,00 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. Tax; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable at TEN PER CENT. ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. We consider this simple security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, accessible to the people, which is more PROFITABLE OR SAFE.

EXCHANGE WITHOUT U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cent. currency. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

FIRST MORTGAGE

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX,

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established character equal to any mortgage loans dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market price—thus placing them on the same basis; for temporary or permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.

These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands, without competition, all the traffic of Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota—shortening the distance from St. Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 90 miles.

The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists that they will more than double within the ensuing year.

A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company obligating the latter to invest 50 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota R. R. in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the Bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stock, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder of a bond, at his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the interest obligation.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 9½ per cent. interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Governments pay at present rates, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.

All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. 124dWaS

PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF

HAMLET'S SOLILOQUY.

To insure or not to insure? That is the question.
Whether t'will be nobler for my family to suffer
The stings and arrows of outrageous fortune
Or take a policy against those dangers,
And, by insuring, end them? To fret, to fear,
No more; and by a policy to end
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to. Yes, my application 's
Devoutly to be wished; apply, insure,
And pay the premium: ay—there's the rub
For in that time what premiums may come
Before I shuffle off this mortal coil
Does make me pause, tightens my purse,
And makes me rather pay the bills I have
Than fly to others I know not of.
Thus does manness makes brutes of us all.

MASTER CHARLES.

HIS SURPRISING ADVENTURES.

BY BRET HARTE.

At exactly half-past 9 o'clock on the morning of Saturday, August 28, 1865, Master Charles Summerton, aged five years, disappeared mysteriously from his residence on Folsom Street, San Francisco. At twenty-five minutes past 8 he had been observed by the butcher amusing himself by going through that popular youthful exercise known as "turning the crab," a feat in which he was singularly proficient. At a court of inquiry summarily held in the back parlor at fifteen minutes past 10, Bridget, cook, deposed to having detected him at twenty minutes past nine, in the felonious abstraction of sugar from the pantry, which, by the same token, had she known what was a-comin', she'd have never prevented. Patsey, a shrill-voiced youth from a neighboring alley, testified to having seen "Chawley" at half-past 9, in front of the butcher's shop 'round the corner, but as this young gentlemen chose to throw the gratuitous belief that the missing child had been converted into sausages by the butcher, his testimony was received with some caution by the female portion of the court, and with downright scorn and contempt by its masculine members. But whatever might have been the hour of his departure, it was certain that from half-past 9 A. M. until 9 P. M., when he was brought home by a policeman, Charles Summerton was missing. Being naturally of a reticent disposition, he has since resisted, with one exception, any attempt to wrest from him a statement of his whereabouts during that period. That exception has been myself. He has recited to me the following in the strictest confidence.

His intention on leaving the door-steps of his dwelling was to proceed without delay to Van Diemen's land, by way of Second and Market Streets. This project was subsequently modified so far as to permit of a visit to Otaheite, where Captain Cook was killed. The outfit for his voyage consisted of two car tickets, five cents in silver, a fishing line, the brass capping of cotton, which, in his eyes, bore some resemblance to metallic currency, and a Sunday school library ticket. His garments, admirably adapted to the exigencies of any climate, were severally a straw hat with a pink ribbon, a striped shirt, over which a pair of trousers, uncommonly wide in comparison to their length, were buttoned, striped balmoral stockings, which gave his youthful legs something the appearance of winter-green candy, and copper-toed shoes with iron heels, capable of striking fire from any flagstone. This latter quality, Master Charles could not help feeling, would be of infinite service to him in the wilds of Van Diemen's land, which, as pictorially represented in his geography, seemed to be deficient in corner groceries and matches.

Exactly as the clock struck the half hour the straw hat and short legs of Master Charles Summerton disappeared behind the corner. He ran rapidly, partly by way of inuring himself to the fatigues of the journey before him and partly by testing his speed with that of a North Beach car proceeding in the same direction. The conductor, not being aware of this generous emulation, and being somewhat alarmed at the spectacle of a pair of very short, twinkling legs so far in the rear, stopped his car and generously assisted the youthful Summerton upon the platform. From this point a hiatus of several hours' duration occurred in Master Charlie's narrative. He is under the impression that he rode out not only his two tickets, but that he subsequently became indebted to the company for several trips to and from the opposite termini, and that, at last, resolutely refusing to give any explanation of his conduct, he was finally ejected, much to his relief, on a street corner. Although, as he informs us, he felt perfectly satisfied with the arrangement, he was compelled, under the circumstances, to hurl after the conductor an opprobrious appellation, which he had ascertained from Patsey was the correct thing in such emergencies, and possessed peculiar exasperating properties.

We now approach a thrilling part of the narrative, before which most of the adventures of the "Boy's Own Book" pale into insignificance. There are times when the recollection of this adventure causes Charles to break out into cold sweat, and he has several times since its occurrence been awakened by lamentations and outcries in the night season by merely dreaming of it. On the corner of the street lay several empty sugar hogsheads. A few young gentlemen disposed themselves therein, armed with sticks with which they removed the sugar which still adhered to the joints of the staves, and conveyed it to their mouths. Finding a cask not yet pre-empted, Master Charles set to work, and for a few moments revelled in a wild saccharine dream. He was finally aroused by an angry voice and the rapidly retreating footsteps of his comrades. An ominous sound smote upon his ear, and the next moment he felt the cask wherein he lay uplifted and set against the wall. He was a prisoner, but as yet undiscovered. Being satisfied in his mind that hanging was the penality for the outrage he committed, he kept down manfully the cry that rose to his lips.

In a few moments he felt the cask again lifted by a powerful hand, which appeared above him at the edge of his prison, and which he concluded belonged to the ferocious giant, Blunderbore, whose features and limbs he had frequently met in colored pictures. Before he had recovered from his astonishment, his cask was placed with several others on a cart and rapidly driven away. The ride which caused he describes as being fearful in the extreme. Rolled around like a pill in a box, the agonies which he suffered may be hinted at, not spoken. Evidences of that protracted struggle were visible on his garments, which were of the consistency of syrup, and his hair, which for several hours, under the treatment of hot water, yielded a thin treacle. At length the cart stopped on one of the wharves and the cartman began to unload. As he tilted over the cask in which Charles lay, an exclamation broke from his lips, and the edge of the cask fell from his hands, sliding its late occupant to the wharf. To regain his short legs and to put the greatest possible distance between himself and the cartman were his first movements on regaining his liberty. He did not stop until he reached the corner of Front street.

Another blank succeeds in this veracious history. He cannot remember how or when he found himself in front of the circus-tent. He has an indistinct remembrance of having passed through a long street of stores, which were closed, and which made him fear that it was Sunday, and that he had spent a miserable night in the sugar cask. But he remembered hearing the sound of music within the tent, and of creeping on his hands and knees, when no one was looking, until he passed under the canvas. His description of the wonders contained within that circle; of the terrific feats performed by a man on a pole, since practiced by him in the back yard; of the horses, one of which was spotted and resembled an animal in his Noah's ark, hitherto unrecognized and undefined; of the female equestrians, whose dresses could only be equaled in magnificence by the frocks of his sister's dolls; of the painted clowns, whose jokes excited merriment somewhat tinged by an undefined fear, was an effort of language which this pen could but weakly transcribe, and which no quantity of exclamation points could sufficiently illustrate. He is not quite certain what followed. He remembered that almost immediately on leaving the circus it became dark, and that he fell asleep, waking up at intervals on the corners of the streets, on front-steps, in somebody's arms and finally in his own bed. He was not aware of experiencing any regret for his conduct. He does not recall at any time a disposition to go home; he remembers distinctly that he felt hungry.

He has made this disclosure in confidence. He wishes to have it respected. He wants to know if you have five cents about you.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS, For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

COMPOUND FLUID

Extract Catawba

GRAPE PILLS.

Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither pain nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not resemble their being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

E

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND

FLUID EXT. SARSAPARILLA

Will radically exterminate from the system Scrofula, Syphilis, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Sore Legs, Sore Mouth, Sore Head, Bronchitis, Skin Diseases, Salt Rheum, Cankers, Runnings from the Ear, White Swellings, Tumors, Cancerous Affections, Nodes, Blotches, Glandular Swellings, Night Sweats, Rash, Tetter, Humors of all kinds, Chronic Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and all diseases that have been established in the system for years.

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than other preparations of Sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of Health and Purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pains and swelling of the bones, ulcerations of the throat and legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, and Beautifying the Complexion.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

CONCENTRATED

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

THE GREAT DIURETIC,

has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Urethra, Gravel, Brick-dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for Enfeebled and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System.

Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from habits of Dissipation, Excess and Exposure and Imprudences in Life, Impurities of the Blood, etc., superseding Copaiba in Affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.

LADIES.

In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU

in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Preventing and Curing Strictures of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED

ROSE WASH

cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Eruption, such as Specific Pimples, Spots, Scorbutic Dryness, Inflammations of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Rash, Moth Patches, Dryness of Scalp or Skin, Frost Bites, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin, H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unbounded popularity, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

D

Full and explicit directions accompany the medicines.

Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character furnished on application, with hundreds of thousands of living witnesses and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, etc. The Proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles rank as Standard Preparations, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

Henry T. Helmbold's Genuine Preparations.

Delivered to any address. Secure from observation. ESTABLISHED UPWARD OF TWENTY YEARS. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Address letters for information, in confidence, to HENRY T. HELMBOLD, Druggist and Chemist.

He see that fire—he shine so bilght,
Too muchee man hab makee spilo.

He number one handsome—allo same Joes,
Spose he wanchee—he can talkee
That place typhoon welly cloes,
That typhoon quick he makee walkee.

Bimeby that boy he wanchee go,
That fire he blun he littee hand;
He fader no have talkee so
He makee die downside—how can?

He sing out large—"Hi, fader, hi,
This pidgin finish-wanchee while!"
No sabe he hab makee die,
And no can hear he piecee chiloo.

"Hi, fader!" one teem more he cly,
"My wanchee go—what for no can?"
That gun just now he bobely high,
That fire he come, he hear no man.

He facee now, he catch that hot,
He tallee too commeece blun;
He look all side, no man hab got,
He got no fear, but wanchee fun.

And one more teem he cly so strong,
"What fashion! my no likee he!"
That fire he catchee all along,
He blun that junk? He blunee he.

All side that junk hab got that fire,
He go that bamboo, catch that sail,
Chop chop he makee walkee higher,
That bookee allo same pale.

Hi yah; what ting! He makee bust!
That boy galuh, my no can see?
What side hab walkee?—allo same dust—

SCIENTIFIC AND POPULAR MEDICAL WORKS

—ON—

MANHOOD, WOMANHOOD AND NERVOUS DISEASES,

PUBLISHED BY THE

PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE,

No. 4 Bulfinch Street, Boston,

(Opposite Revere House.)

DR. W. H. PARKER, Assistant Physician.

Medical knowledge for everybody. 250,000 copies sold in two years.

A Book for every Man.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE, OR SELF-PRESERVATION. A Medical Treatise on the Cause and Cure of EXHAUSTED VITALITY, PREMATURE DECLINE IN MAN, NERVOUS AND PHYSICAL DEBILITY, HYPOCHONDRIA, and all other diseases arising from the ERRORS OF YOUTH, OR THE INDISCRETIONS OR EXCESSES of mature years. This is the book for every man. Price only $1.00. 285 pages; bound in cloth.

A Book For Every Woman,

Entitled SEXUAL PHYSIOLOGY OF WOMAN, AND HER DISEASES; or, WOMAN TREATED OF PHYSIOLOGICALLY AND PATHOLOGICALLY, FROM INFANCY TO OLD AGE, with elegant ILLUSTRATIVE ENGRAVINGS. 350 pages, bound in beautiful French cloth. Price $2.00.

A Book for Everybody.

Flattered by the reception of, and great demand for, the above valuable and timely treatises, and also to meet a great need of the present age, the author has just published a new book, treating exclusively of NERVOUS AND MENTAL DISEASES. 150 pp. cloth. Price $1, or SENT FREE on receipt of $3 for the other two books, postage paid.

These are, beyond all comparison, the most extraordinary works on Physiology ever published. There is nothing whatever that the MARRIED OR SINGLE, of either SEX, can either require or wish to know, but what is fully explained, and many matters of the most important and interesting character are introduced to which no allusion even can be found in any other works in our language. All the NEW DISCOVERIES of the author, whose experience is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any man, are given in full. No person should be without these valuable books.

"VALUABLE BOOKS.—We have received the valuable medical works published by the Peabody Medical Institute. These books are of actual merit, and should find a place in every intelligent family. They are not the cheap order of abominable trash, published by irresponsible parties, and purchased to gratify coarse tastes, but are written by a responsible professional gentleman of eminence, as a source of in-truction on vital matters, concerning which lamentable ignorance exists. The important subjects presented are treated with delicacy, ability and candor, and as an appendix, many useful prescriptions for prevailing complaints are added."—Coos Republican, Lancaster, N. H.

"The author of these books is one of the most learned and popular physicians of the day, and is entitled to the gratitude of our race for these invaluable productions. It seems to be his aim to induce men and women to avoid the cause of those diseases to which they are subject, and he tells them just how and when to do it."—Chronicle, Farmington, Maine, Sept. 7, 1869.

Either book sent by mail on receipt of price.

N. B. The Author of the above-named medical works is the Chief Consulting Physician of the Peabody Medical Institute, and is so constantly employed in consultation with invalids from all parts of the country, that he has no time to attend to mere business details. Therefore all letters should be addressed to the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, or to Dr. W. H. PARKER, the Medical Assistant of the Author, and his Business Agent, who, as well as the Author himself, may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill, secrecy and experience. oct26ly

A GOOD OFFER TO THE

Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.

E. A. JOY

Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to bring in lots of work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing whether a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.

MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make the above generous offer.

His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an accurate judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the Agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the Best SEWING MACHINES may always be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 9 PLEASANT ST., nearly opposite the Post Office, Portsmouth, N. Has proved itself the best for all classes and kinds of operators and work.

All that persons need to do to satisfy themselves of this is to enquire of those who have used them the most.

They Hem, Braid, Tuck, Quill, Cord, Embroider, Fringe, Ruffle, Fell, Puff, Gather, Ragol, Trim, Bind.

They are light running, easy to learn and keep in order and for durability unrivalled.

They will stitch equally well the heaviest beaver or the thinnest muslin, in fact they will do every useful work that mechanical skill has yet perfected in the Sewing art.

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawf6b16

LIVER AND SPLEEN, ENLARGEMENT OR OBSTRUCTIONS OF INTESTINES, URINARY, UTERINE OR ABDOMINAL ORGANS, POVERTY OR A WANT OF BLOOD, INTERMITTENT OR REMITTENT FEVERS, INFLAMMATION OF THE LIVER, DROPSY, SLUGGISH CIRCULATION OF THE BLOOD, ABSCESSES, TUMORS, JAUNDICE, SCROFULA, DYSPEPSIA, AGUE AND FEVER, OR THEIR CONCOMITANTS.

Dr. Wells, having become aware of the extraordinary medicinal properties of the South American Plant, called

JURUBEBA,

Sent a special commission to that country to procure it in its native purity, and having found its wonderful curative properties to even exceed the anticipations formed by its great reputation, has concluded to offer it to the public, and is happy to state that he has perfected arrangements for a regular monthly supply of this wonderful Plant. He has spent much time experimenting and investigating as to the most efficient preparation from it, for popular use, and has for some time used in his own practice with most happy results the effectual medicine now presented to the public as

Dr. Wells' Extract of Jurubeba,

and he confidently recommends it to every family as a household remedy which should be freely taken as a BLOOD PURIFIER in all derangements of the system and to animate and fortify all weak and Lymphatic Temperaments. 4wap18

MONDAY, MAY 1, 1871.

THE blank cartridge fired from that very heavy copper gun, the Democratic National Executive Committee, at the Republican party, in the shape of an Address to the People, has not killed a single man or blown away a single principle of the party at which it was aimed; in fact, to use the words of a local contemporary, the address has "fallen flat"—flatter than the sheet of paper on which it was written—on the minds of the members of both political parties. One or two northern democratic papers demur at the ambiguous language in which the address sets forth the right of every citizen to be protected by the law of the land; some of the southern democratic papers growl because it does not more boldly repudiate the constitutionality of all radical legislation; a few obscure democratic sheets at the north go into estacies over it, for what reason they do not explain, and dip deep into the vocabulary of spread-eagle bilslutin, after the old-time manner in which the democratic followers once cheered when a democratic leader spoke or acted, no matter what he said or did; but the great mass of copperhead papers preserve a discreet silence on the subject, while the republican press universally treat the address with derision and ridicule.

That the manifesto should be hooted at by the republicans is not surprising—any document from such a source would be similarly treated, if it exhibited the traditional retrospective policy of the democratic party; nothing short of a full and explicit acceptance of the results of the war, including the constitutional amendments and the abolition of class or "color" legislation, would secure respect from the republican party. But the address is carefully worded so as to really say nothing at all on the subject of the civil and political rights of the freedmen, while it assails the republican party on general principles, or rather, general want of principles; most people were already aware that the republican party displeased the democrats, before reading the address. It gravely condemns "protection" by taxation, but does not assail the Maryland and Pennsylvania democrats in Congress who fought so nobly to retain the protective duties on coal and pig iron; and its lofty buncombe about "protecting and perpetuating the rights which every freeman cherishes" and of throwing "around the humblest citizen, wherever he may be, the protecting ægis of" certain "safeguards of personal liberty," reads like a grim joke by the light of the burning school-houses in the Southern States, where men and women are daily being whipped and murdered for no other crime than because they are not democrats. Had the Democratic National Executive Committee said anything plainly, somebody might have been satisfied with their address; but as they merely "talked a good deal and said nothing at all," they have pleased neither their political opponents nor their party friends. For a crushing assault it is as harmless a one—to the republican party—as was ever made.

IN New York and Boston, associations have been formed to resist the payment of the income tax. The members are all wealthy men, who can't bear to have "the people" (rich people, that means,) burdened with a tax on their superfluous means, so long as a tax on the workingman's dinner or his children's shoes will meet the expenses of the government. The income tax will probably be abolished in democratic America, but in aristocratic England it has just been increased! and at the demand of "the people," too, tho' the benevolent rich in this country assert that such a tax is "odious" to them—not to the rich, but to the people. Great is humbug, indeed.

INDIAN outrages are of daily occurrence in Arizona and New Mexico. One of the coaches of Bennett & Co. has been found burned in the road between La Messila and Tucson. The body of the driver, horribly mutilated, was also found. His breast was laid open and his heart removed, split and placed upon his face. Four ranchemen on the route to San Pedro were killed; also six emigrants going from Tucson to New Mexico. The Indians a few days ago killed two Mexicans and a German at Lone Mountain and wounded an American. Near Silver City fourteen persons were killed and one wounded.

—Only one Versaillist was wounded in a recent attack near Paris, whereupon a joker remarks that he must have been a Uni-Versaillist.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

DR. TAYLOR.—A TRIBUTE.

Some men write their biographies in the lives of those with whom they come in contact, and the events in concurrence are wanting. So was it with that great master, Dr. Samuel H. Taylor. The thinking men among his scholars do not find it difficult to trace the record. Above all his accomplishments, he had a certain throughgoing character which left an impression on the dullest. There was never a boy at Andover who had not some kind of an opinion about Dr. Taylor. The youngest and the most lawless called him "Uncle Sam," the oftenest,—the unconscious tribute of their rebellious souls; and with all he was the unfailing topic of conversation, an object of down-right hate or profound respect. It is easy to mistake the officers of justice for justice herself, especially among boys; and we often laid upon him the obloquy of an exact and stern administration. There was no half-way house of criticism and speculation among us about him, with a little good here, and thou a little bad, and a set of statements all of which are to be knocked away to get at some fine point.

In a given case it was certain what he would do, and indubitable that he would do it. Few are the persons who extort attention by what they are in themselves. Such however was he and such his character. All vague, uncertain, visionary and vacillating conditions of mind were far removed from him. As I write of him, I seem to feel that I must be precise, unflincing, bold, or I shall hear his voice as of old in the recitation-room saying right in the middle of an ugly sentence of Sallust, without a conjunction to cling to, "You may sit down, sir; you don't understand it." How many hours of work and how many hours of idleness have come to one and the same ignominious conclusion, in that "Sit down, sir!" All other teachers whom I ever had would keep me on my feet while there was the least ray of hope. The consequence at Phillips Academy was that all his students made a great effort to get their ideas very clearly in hand before recitation; to get a thing settled in one way or another. With him it was better to be wholly wrong than half right and half wrong. He knew the one meant some kind of an attempt at work, the other none at all. I do not know how it may be with each one of Mr. Taylor's six thousand scholars, but for myself I never entered his recitation room without trepidation, nor left it without relief. And for an hour before the bell struck I felt the coming excitement of a recitation before him.

It amounted to an almost personal combat, developing the strong and crushing the weak. One felt a flutter and a dread, even when feeling most secure. He asked the most difficult questions with an air of triumph, as if you must fail; but if answered correctly, he had a way of dropping his head and eyes like a vanquished man. This gave us power and self-reliance, more appreciated now than then. His two or three hours' intercourse with his class each day was always a stern, unflinching, hard-fought field, in which, though many suffered, many, too, felt the germination of resolutions and purposes which have never forsaken them. Chief of these, perhaps, may be reckoned the determination to do everything thoroughly; if to plant a tree, to put it down firm and straight; if to do professional work, to make each effort complete, careful and vigilant. Under this powerful discipline of his, it is true the weak sank down at once; the mediocre struggled bravely awhile; the few maintained the unequal fight until, like the Indian's slaughtered foe, his strength passed into theirs. If you carried any trophies away, you were sure of the applause of the class; but his approbation could only be guessed at. He did not deal in praise and flattery.

I think he would have had some suggestions and some counsel to give even to his favorite Cicero and beloved Homer, and it does not seem to me possible that any Greek author whatever could have come unscathed from one of his examinations on the Greek particle. I have known him keep a scholar on his feet half an hour on a few lines of Homer, with such a running fire of questions as seemed impossible to stand under, and when the whole class scarcely breathed for fear of a single mistake of their champion. If he went through, we all felt joy and shared the honor; as Ajax's shield covered not only himself but his friends, so his performance saved that day from disaster for all of us.

The moral effect of all this was astonishing. No doubt, however, it strengthened the strong and overwhelmed the dunces. But for what purpose are dunces sent to school if not to find out that they are dunces? Well is it if they thus early learn to entertain no fruitless hopes. There was a good deal of that material at Andover, which because it proposed to enter the ministry thought itself entitled to be treated tenderly; and counting education not the chief thing, made it not even secondary. For such Dr. Taylor had no mercy, and he did his part toward preventing the divorce of religion and sound learning both in his school and in many other fields.

He was a natural leader: he would have made an admirable soldier or president where there was anything to be done. But he was content to make ladders for others to climb; to fit the characters that came under his hands for stations higher than his own, but not more noble nor less worthy of admiration and respect. The greatest of his scholars would turn with instinctive deference to him as to a rightful master.

BRIGHTON CATTLE MARKET,

FOR THE WEEK ENDING WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26.

[Reported for the Boston Journal.]

At market for the current week—Cattle 1647; Sheep and Lambs 7039; Swine 3500; number of Western Cattle 1537; Eastern Cattle —; Northern Cattle and Working Oxen 55. Cattle left over from last week 3.

Prices Beef Cattle—Extra $11 50 @ $12 00; first quality $10 50 @ $11 25; second quality $10 00 @ $10 25; third quality $ 8 50 @ $9 75; poorest grade of coarse Oxen, Bulls, &c., $6 00 @ $8 00 ₱ cwt, (the total weight of hides, tallow and dressed beef.)

Brighton Hides 8c ₱ lb; Country Hides 7¼ @ 8c ₱ lb.

Brighton Tallow 6@6½c per lb; Country Tallow 5 @5½c ₱ lb.

Sheep and Lamb Skins $1 75 @2 50 each; Calf Skins 16 @ 18c ₱ lb.

The trade for Beeves has not been so good as that of last week. Prices remain unchanged. Cattle cost higher at Albany, and the quality not much different from that of last market. There were not any Cattle in market from Maine and but a few Northern ones. Next week the trade will be resumed for all kinds of live stock; the Cattle Commissioners have rescinded all regulations and restrictions heretofore issued against the traffic in and movement of all classes of Cattle from place to place, the order to take effect May 1, 1871.

We quote extra and select lots $5 00 @ $10 00; ordinary $2 50 @ $4 00 ₱ head, or from 6 @ 9½c ₱ lb. Western Sheep cost from ½ @ 1c ₱ lb higher than they did one week ago. Most of them were taken at a commission. The trade for Sheep has been quick. The supply from the North was light.

Store Pigs—Wholesale 8 @ 10c ₱ lb; retail 8 @ 11c ₱ lb. Fat Hogs—At market 3500; prices 7¼ @ 7¾c ₱ lb. But few Store Pigs in market.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

We should not hesitate to recommend to any friend of ours, Parsons' Purgative Pills; they are scientifically prepared and are adapted to all the purposes of a good purgative medicine.

Decidedly the best remedy that has ever been discovered for rheumatism, swollen or stiff joints, flesh wounds, sprains, bruises, cuts and burns, is Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. We use it and always recommend it to our friends. ap29

Dr Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery, will not raise the dead, but it will benefit and cure the living. For all severe Coughs, Throat and Bronchial diseases it has never yet been equaled. For "Liver Complaint" or "Biliousness," and Constipation of the Bowels it is a never failing remedy. Sold by Druggists.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Preventive Medication.

A radical change has been introduced in the practice of medicine. Physicians have ceased to torture and prostrate their patients. Instead of pulling down, they build up; instead of assaulting nature, they assist her. Cupping, leeching, blistering, venesection, calomel, antimony, stupifying narcotics and rasping purgatives, once the favorite resources of the faculty, are now rarely resorted to even by the most dogmatic members of the profession. The old creed was that disease was something which must be expelled by violent artificial means, irrespective of the wear and tear of the vital organization in the process. The new creed recognizes the improvement of the general health as essential to the cure of all local ailments. Hence it is that HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, the most potent vegetable tonic that pharmacy has ever brought to the assistance of nature, in her struggles with disease, has been cordially approved by practitioners of the modern school. It is pleasant to reflect that reason and philosophy have at last been victorious over the errors of the past, and that thousands and tens of thousands, of human beings are alive and well-to-day who would indubitably be mouldering in their graves, had they been subjected to the pains and penalties which were deemed orthodox and indispensable thirty or forty years ago.

Preventive medication was scarcely thought of then; but now it is considered of paramount importance, and the celebrity of the standard invigorant, alterative and restorative of the age, (a title which Hostetter's Bitters have fairly earned by their long career of success,) is mainly due to its efficiency as a protective preparation.

A course of the Bitters is urgently recommended as a safe and certain antidote to intermittent and remittent fevers, diarrhœa, dysentery and other maladies.

DEATH IN THE HAIR!

Remember every hair is a tube. Don't fill these tubes with poison. Any desired shade of color can be obtained without the slightest danger. Have you read Professor CHILTON'S statement (made after analysis,) that

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

Kid Gloves, &c.—Hartley W. Mason.
Enlarged Store—J. S. Pfeiffer.

THE police of Charlestown, Mass., captured a burglar in the grocery of M. O. Butler of that city, Friday night. He gave the name of George McLaughlin and claims to belong in this city.

THE Crispins celebrate the 1st of May with a dance at Congress Hall. Harlow's band will make the music. This is the only May-Day observance we hear of,—and this one will not come off till evening.

MR. J. S. Pfeiffer celebrates May Day by moving into the new block on the site of the former Waldron building, where he offers a nice, new stock of Millinery and Fancy Goods. The new stores there abouts show marked improvement over the old ones.

THE HOUSE.—We copy to-day the corrected list of members published last week in the Concord Statesman, which is the only paper in the State having complete returns from town clerks. The Statesman's figures give the Republicans 166 to 163 for the combined opposition, and says at least four of the Democrats declared elected have no legal right to seats.

AN exchange, under the heading of "Lightning power," says that "a New Jersey inventor claims that the power can be by his invention indefinitely multiplied without increasing the battery or the strength of the current. He has a two-horse power engine, run by a single cup battery, the expense being no greater than the cost of a battery in a country office." If the Jersey inventor uses the lightning named after his native State, we do not doubt that he can do all he claims, and more; in this city, last week, a most intricate and wonderful machine was acted on by a "single cup battery" of Jersey lightning, from which sufficient motive power was obtained to carry the machine into lots of places where it had no business, then to the lockup, and finally to the House of Correction for thirty days.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

Deputy Sheriff A. P. Davis of Warner seized about $500 worth of liquors from Thomas B. Tucker's hotel in that town on the 27th.

The case of Richard M. Ordway vs. Dr. Timothy Haynes, which has been pending in court at Concord for over six years, was concluded on the 28th. The plaintiff sued for malpractice in setting a thigh-bone on the 20th of May, 1863. The case has had two previous trials, the first resulting in a verdict for the plaintiff of between $600 and $700. In the last trial, which began on the 17th instant, the jury, after being out about seven hours, brought in a verdict for Dr. Haynes, which completely reverses the former trials.

The change of the time of commencement at Dartmouth College, which is from the last of July to early in June, will not go into effect until next year.

The tax paid by the railroads in the State during the last year was $224,806 35, of which $117,786 75 was retained by the State.

Rev. David Bremner was installed on the 27th as pastor over the First Congregational Church in Derry.

An extensive brickyard is to be established at East Kingston.

Mr. Andrew H. Dorr, a teamster of Salmon Falls, was found in the river at that place on the 20th. He was last seen on the Berwick side of the river, under the influence of liquor, and may have walked into the river in the darkness. Mr. Dorr was about fifty years old.

Stephen Tibbetts of Madison, while engaged in blasting rocks on the extension of the Portsmouth, Great Falls and Conway railroad at West Ossipee on Monday of last week was badly injured, being hit by flying pieces of stone. His face was terribly cut, under jaw broken, and his legs crushed in a shocking manner.

"Tasso," an intelligent dog, belonging to Mr. B. F. Kendrick, ticket agent of the Boston, Lowell and Nashua R. R., disappeared March 31st. On the 25th he was found alive under the stage platform of Franklin Hall. He could hardly be recognized as the same dog that disappeared 26 days before.—Nashua Gazette.

POLITICAL.—No more Fish in the Cabinet.

Parson Brownlow thinks that General Grant will be renominated and elected.

THE Maine Farmer predicts a wet summer, because the winter has been characterized by unusual drouth, and "one extreme of atmospheric condition in the passing years usually succeeds another."

THE census bureau furnishes complete returns of the last census, which will only be subject to a few slight changes in western townships. The total population of the States is 38,104,-840; of the Territories and the District of Columbia, 442,694; total, 38,547,534.

Die Modenwelt is at hand, from S. T. Taylor, 391 Canal street, N. Y. This famous fashion journal is reprinted in this country in English, and is stuffed full of fashion illustrations. It is a monthly of twenty pages, with a fashion supplement, and large colored plate, being almost wholly devoted to fashion, it must be an invaluable organ for ladies.

HORRIBLE OUTRAGE.—Mrs. Wellman, employed in the millinery establishment of Mrs. Ames at Stoughton, Mass., was assaulted by two disguised ruffians as she was passing, and her eyes, mouth, nose and ears filled with vitriol. The perpetrators of the outrage evidently mistook her for Mrs. Ames, and let her go. She groped her way to her home, and has been in a terrible suffering condition since. The villains have not been discovered.

ARMY ORDERS.—Lieutenant-Colonels Horatio G. Wright and John G. Foster, of the corps of engineers, have been appointed on the commission to examine and report upon the Sutro tunnel. Captain William R. King will, in addition to his present duties, act as secretary to the Sutro tunnel commission. Lieutenant-Colonel George Thom will relieve Colonel John G. Foster of the charge of all works of river and harbor improvements and surveys. Lieutenant-Colonel James C. Duane will relieve Colonel John G. Foster of all other works.

A LEGAL JOKE IN IDAHO.—A certain Idaho judge who has just arrived here relates a case of sharp political practice in that Territory, which in novelty goes ahead of anything that has come to light for a long time. A certain lawyer in that locality, taking umbrage at some fancied insult put upon him by the court over which this judge presided, conceived the idea of writing a letter of resignation to the President and forging the signature of this judicial officer thereto. The letter was received here by the President in due time, and was couched in such forcible, not to say insulting language as to lead the chief executive to nominate his successor at once. The first that the judge learned of the proceedings was upon the arrival of his successor, who proceeded to enter upon the duties of his office without regard to the protests of our judge. Justly indignant, he came on here, and was apprised of the facts as stated above. He will await the return of the President to see what further steps will be taken in the matter.—Washington Cor. Boston Advertiser.

TRY IT!

How well we remember in days that are gone,
The feelings we felt as we saw the cork drawn—
The disgust—the recoil
From "Cod Liver Oil,"
Dealt out to poor souls in the days that are gone!
But who could complain
Of this to be ta'en?
It swallows as easy as sparkling Champagne—
Does "Marvine' Deodorized Oil."

Consumption,

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE.

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably efficacious means of cure. These near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faithful of the invalids it made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self assuring, self-evidencing.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition the mesenteric tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here, then comes the culminating moment, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-enriching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing, without its previous tortures. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no generation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, and it will perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gathermps it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten tissue that it occasioned is renovated, and made sound, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

The second thing is, the patients must stay in a warm room, until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be prevented or a cure cannot be effected. Fresh air and riding out, especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased; and yet, because they are in the house they must not sit down quiet: they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear, to get up a good circulation of blood. The patients must keep in good spirits—be determined to get well. This has a great deal to do with the appetite, and is the great point to gain.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words:

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption: confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pains and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have gone on in flesh ever since."

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then including flesh, clothes and weight; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn where they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions, and kind Nature will do the rest, excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the ample instructions that accompany them: First, create appetite; secondly, rally the liver to the final relentless symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the despairing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweat is abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a sheer anachronism: while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylactic against consumption in any of its forms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. They are available of all druggists and dealers.

7-30 GOLD LOAN

—OF THE—

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD,

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 266 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 130 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 560.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend, as a Profitable and perfectly Safe Investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on

23,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,000 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. Tax; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable at PAR PER CENT. ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, accessible to the people, which is more EMINENTLY SAFE OR SAFE.

EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

FIRST MORTGAGE

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX,

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established character equal to any mortgage issue dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market price—thus placing them on the same basis; for temporary or permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.

These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands, without competition, the trade of Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota—shortening the distance from St. Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 90 miles.

The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists that they will more than double within the ensuing year.

A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company obliging that road to invest 50 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Road in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the Bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stocks, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder, at his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the interest obligation.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 9½ per cent. interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Governments pay at present price, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.

All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. f24dWaS

PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF HAMLET'S SOLILOQUY.

To insure or not to insure? That is the question.
Whether it will be nobler for my family to suffer
The stings and arrows of outrageous fortune
Or take a policy against those dangers,
And, by insuring, end them? To fret, to fear,
No more; and by a policy to end
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to. Yes, my application is Devoutly to be wished; apply, insure.
And pay the premium! ay—there's the rub
For in that time what premiums may come
Before I shuffle off this mortal coil
Does make me pause, tightens my purse,
And makes me rather pay the bills I have
Thy to others I know not of.
Thus does meanness make brutes of us all.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 75 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

COMPOUND FLUID Extract Catawba GRAPE PILLS.

Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not necessitate their being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

E

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND

FLUID EXT. SARSAPARILLA

Will radically exterminate from the system Scrofula, Syphilis, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Sore Legs, Sore Mouth, Sore Head, Bronchitis, Skin Diseases, Salt Rheum, Cankers, Runnings from the Ear, White Swellings, Tumors, Cancerous Affections, Nodes, Rickets, Glandular Swellings, Night Sweats, Rash, Tetter, Humors of all kinds, Chronic Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and all diseases that have been established in the system for years.

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than other preparations of Sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of Health and Purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pain in the shoulders, of the bones, ulcerations of the throat and legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, and Beautifying the Complexion.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

CONCENTRATED

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

THE GREAT DIURETIC,

has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of Prostate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for Enfeebled and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, and Excesses and Imprudences in Life, Impurities of the Blood, etc., superseding Copaiba in Affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.

LADIES.

In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is recommended by many other remedies—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives for enfeebled and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU CURES DISEASES ARISING FROM IMPRUDENCIES, HABITS OF DISSIPATION, &c., in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, Relieves, removes by Ablutions, Preventing and Curing Strictures of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED

ROSE WASH

cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It specifily eradicates Pimples, Spots, Scorbutic Dryness, Inflammations of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Incident Inflammation, Fever Rash, Moth Patches, Dryness of Scalp or Skin, Frost Bites, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; produces a skin in a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much admired by all. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin, H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long established its principal claim to unbounded patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Exquisite character, combining in its simple formula those prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

D

Full and explicit directions accompany the medicines.

Evidence of the most responsible and reliable character furnished on application, with hundreds of thousands of living witnesses and upward of 30,000 unsolicited certificates, and recommendatory letters, many of which are from the highest sources, including eminent Physicians, Clergymen, Statesmen, etc. The proprietor has never resorted to their publication in the newspapers; he does not do this from the fact that his articles speak for themselves, and do not need to be propped up by certificates.

Henry T. Helmbold's Genuine Preparations.

Delivered to any address. Secure from observation. ESTABLISHED UPWARD OF TWENTY YEARS. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Address letters for information, in confidence to HENRY T. HELMBOLD, Druggist and Chemist.

AURORA is applied to the light of the morning. It is from the Latin words aure hora, which mean the morning hour. Borea is from a term that signifies the north wind. Aurora Borealis means northern daybreak, and is applied to the Northern Lights.

Accounts of these lights come down to us from early times. Aristotle, who lived 400 years B. C., mentions them, and says they appeared like flame mingled with smoke, and presented purple, bright red and blood-colored hues. In the middle ages they were frequently named; and in those dark, superstitious times it was supposed that they presented gleaming swords with which the aerial hosts were fighting. The first mention we have of them in more modern times in Europe, is in 1560. Their appearance was described as of burning spears. Their brightness, blood-color and swiftness of motion alarmed many. It was feared they would descend and burn the world. From that period to 1623 they were seen, but there was nothing extraordinary in their appearance. Dr. Halley, an astronomer, noticed them of great brilliancy in 1717, spreading over most of the north of Europe. The first record of them in this country was in 1719.

The cause of the Northern Lights is not known with certainty. It is believed that electricity, in certain states of the atmosphere, is the origin of them. Sometimes for a series of years they are frequent and splendid, and then for years less frequent and rather dim. In the north frigid zone they are more common and bright than in our latitude. When these lights are very bright, a dark cloud is seen low in the north, from which pencils of light shoot up, or groups of pencils, and soon the north is all aglow with streamers of light. The motion of the flashes is sometimes so swift that they pass from the horizon nearly to the zenith in a second or less.

The gorgeous colors have already been mentioned. We may add that besides red and blood-color, there are different shades of orange, green, gray, blue and purple; several of these colors often appearing at the same time and rapidly changing, make a beautiful and wonderful appearance. When the snow is covering the earth it partakes somewhat of the color of brilliant Northern Lights; such was especially the case Jan. 25, 1837. On the evening of Oct. 14, last passed, there were very wonderful lights; not once in ten years perhaps are they seen so splendid.

The Creator gives us much that is wonderful to see and contemplate; and we have reason for gratitude that the progress of knowledge has been such that the fears once engendered by comets, northern lights and other phenomena, are now unknown. J.

A GOOD OFFER TO THE Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity.

E. A. JOY

Has Fitted up a Spacious and Elegant SEWING MACHINE ROOM directly over his Music Store and employs a competent young lady to take charge of the same. A cordial invitation is hereby extended to all the ladies (not having good Sewing Machines of their own) to bring in lots of work and learn to make it up on the Machines. This will cost nothing whether a Machine is purchased or not. If you do not buy now, you will at some future time; for the day is not far distant when a SEWING MACHINE will be considered as indispensable as a Cook-Stove. Come as often and stay as long as you please.

MR. JOY'S business in the Sewing Machine line is very rapidly increasing, which enables him to make the above generous offer.

His long experience in this branch qualifies him to be an excellent judge of the goods he sells; and as he has had the Agency of all kinds offered him at different times it is reasonable to suppose that the Best SEWING MACHINES may always be had at the SEWING MACHINE EMPORIUM, No. 9 PLEASANT ST., nearly opposite the Post Office, Portsmouth, N. A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY! DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdaw8ab16

TUESDAY, MAY 2, 1871.

FRANCE.

The park, castle and cemetery of d'Issy were carried April 29th by the government forces, and eight cannon, a quantity of ammunition and 100 prisoners fell into their hands.

The commune has now only 25,000 men, and even that small number is rapidly diminishing from wounds, exposure and fatigue.

Fort d'Issy has surrendered.

THAT notorious city of Democratic misrule, New York, adds another to its multitudinous murders. Mr. Avery D. Putnam, a quiet citizen and gentleman, entered a street car with two ladies. An ex-conductor on the route, Foster by name, entered and left the door open. Mr. Putnam shut it and the drunken Foster reopened it. This was repeated several times, Mr. Putnam finally going on the outside and holding the door shut. When he wished to get off the car, he re-entered and escorted the ladies out. On reaching the street, Foster sprang off the front platform, with the driver's heavy iron hook in his hand, and running around the car struck Mr. Putnam a murderous blow on the head with the hook, fracturing the skull and injuring Mr. Putnam so much that he died on Sunday. The murderer has been arrested. The Herald refers to a horrible affair on a Second avenue car some time since, when a young girl was outraged by two ruffians; to a stabbing affair in a car on Church Street, and other instances of abuse and robbery, and says "from the testimony of the detectives and police there is every reason to believe that travel through the city is hazardous and full of peril." In this case, Mr. Putnam interfered for the protection of the ladies whom he was escorting early in the evening to a church up town. He is cruelly murdered, the conductor does not interfere, the other men in the car do not dare to, and scarce a movement is made to intercept the retreat of the murderer. It was formerly the boast of New Yorkers that any one could traverse its streets without harm. Now New York is the home of and is ruled by thieves and murderers, the scum of the earth, whose principal occupation aside from their chosen calling is to vote the Democratic ticket a dozen times each in as many wards, and send from their own number scoundrels who make laws at Albany in the interest of their constituents, these same thieves and murderers, to impede the execution of just enactments and to secure the appointment of judges of their own kind. What a nice time the Democracy (?) would have if they could rule the United States as they do New York!

POLITICAL.—Senator Schurz favors Republican union in Missouri.

A majority of Republican papers in Iowa favor the re-election of Senator Harlan.

The Portland Advertiser wants Senator Trumbull to be the Republican nominee for President. Characteristic!

Female suffrage works well in Kansas, and as jurors the women have given great satisfaction to the bench and bar.

Nebraska is about to elect a Constitutional Convention. At Omaha all parties unite (so far) on one ticket.

THE friends of humanity will not be inconsolable to learn that Pierre Bonaparte, the ruffian and assassin, who created such a sensation during the late Empire by murdering Victor Noir, is reported to be in very straightened circumstances in Belgium. It is said he has sent a begging letter to Louis Napoleon, stating that he deserves assistance, as he delivered L. N. from one of his most implacable enemies.

THE most thoroughly contented man in New York to-day is P. T. Barnum. For some three years the great American showman has been without a show, and in consequence has been as uneasy as fish out of water. At last he is again in his element, with a museum, menagerie, and circus of colossal proportions on his hands, and once more he is happy and gay. His new enterprise in proving immensely successful. Mr. Barnum says that he has money enough, and started this show from purely benevolent motives, namely, to give the people more than the worth of their money in moral amusement; but it promises to be the most profitable of all his enterprises.

IN about sixty days an extraordinary wedding is to take place—Lake Michigan is to be united with the Mississippi by the then completed work of deepening the Illinois and Michigan Canal.

OLD TIME CHRONICLES, No. 31.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

The Jenness Family of Deerfield.—This family has been of considerable note, besides social connection and influence, several of its members having held important offices and some possessed much wealth. Some 30 years ago it was thought wealth might be added from abroad, it being rumored that a large fortune was coming to those of that name from England. A meeting was held of which the late Hon. Benjamin Jenness of Deerfield was President, to devise measures to secure it, but it has not come yet.

The family in Deerfield originated in Rye, where connections of it still remain. Three brothers, Richard, Thomas and Jonathan, born in Rye, came to Deerfield about the time of the Revolutionary war in 1776. A fourth brother, Simon, remained in Rye. Rye was not a large township, and at the time these brothers left it, the population was but about 100 less than now. Deerfield, on the contrary, was large, having a territory more than three times that of Rye, while the population was but 50 more than of that town.

The Jennesses were enterprising, and wanted more room. Their feeling was like that of a poet. "No pent up Utica shall contract our powers." Their feeling, two, was in unison with a spirit prevalent in all countries and all ages."

"Westward the star of Empire takes its way." To be sure they did not go far, but it was equal to what would now be an emigration to a State some hundreds of miles away.

Deerfield is a fine rural township. It has some elevated swells of land, excellent for farming, and fertile valleys. The place to which the Jenness family came was well chosen. It lies in the south part, on a commanding elevation. The place has long been designated as the "South Road," sometimes latterly as "South Deerfield," that being the name of the Post Office there.

Of the three brothers, Jonathan and probably Thomas died here. We pass to Richard, of whom a more full account will be given. He built on the South Road a small house, and after the war closed, about 1785, a large one opposite that of the late Judge Butler. The last erected building is now owned by his grandson, A. L. Jenness, Esq. Richard Jenness had the confidence of his fellow citizens, and for several years was a representative to the General Court. In 1805 he was a member of the Senate. That was the first year John Langdon of Portsmouth was Governor. In 1809 he was Senator again. Jeremiah Smith of Exeter was Governor,—an able man, but too independent to be controlled by wire-pullers, that then began to appear, and he held the office but one year. Gov. Smith appointed Mr. Jenness Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and he held the office four years, closing in 1813. He had not a law education, but possessed good judgment, firmness that could not be shaken in what he considered just, and great integrity. Besides these offices, he was a Justice of the Peace and Quorum.

Mr. Jenness served the public well in the offices he held, and in the town of his adoption he was no less useful. His residence was in Deerfield for more than forty years. In that time the population more than doubled, and he was identified with much of the interest of the place. He died July 4, 1819, aged 72. His remains rest in the neatly kept cemetery, a few rods easterly of where he resided, and on the south side of the road.

THE infernal wretch, Joel W. Perkins, of Litchfield, Conn., who committed incest and murder, has been found guilty of murder in the second degree, by a brainless jury. Five daughters of Perkins testified that he committed incest with them, begining with each at the age of 13 years. Perkins' wife was his cousin, a simple minded woman. Several children were born to his daughters, he being the father. His wife swore to the same statements that her children did, and all united in testifying that he killed one or more of the children, who were fruits of his crime. Perkins acknowledges his guilt, with the exception that he denies killing any of the children. Some of them are now living. Perkins' wife has died since the preliminary examination. Judge Seymour gave Perkins the full extent of the law—imprisonment for life. The case is one of the most revolting on record.

DR. Lewis, the medical adviser of the Travellers Insurance Company, informs the Gardiner Journal that the Travellers have found $200,000 worth of dead men since they have been in business. That is, claims have been made for that amount of money, by persons said to be dead, whose live bodies have afterwards been found.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

We should not hesitate to recommend to any friend of ours, Parsons' Purgative Pills; they are scientifically prepared and are adapted to all the purposes of a good purgative medicine.

Decidedly the best remedy that has ever been discovered for rheumatism, swollen or stiff joints, flesh wounds, sprains, bruises, cuts and burns, is Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. We use it and always recommend it to our friends. ap29

Dr Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery, will not raise the dead, but it will benefit and cure the living. For all severe Coughs, Throat and Bronchial diseases it has never yet been equaled. For "Liver Complaint" or "Biliousness," and Constipation of the Bowels it is a never failing remedy. Sold by Druggists.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Preventive Medication.

A radical change has been introduced in the practice of medicine. Physicians have ceased to torture and prostrate their patients. Instead of pulling down, they build up; instead of assaulting nature, they assist her. Cupping, leeching, blistering, venesection, calomel, antimony, stupifying narcotics and rasping purgatives, once the favorite resources of the faculty, are now rarely resorted to even by the most dogmatic members of the profession. The old creed was that disease was something which must be expelled by violent artificial means, irrespective of the wear and tear of the vital organization in the process. The new creed recognizes the improvement of the general health as essential, to the cure of all local ailments. Hence it is that HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, the most potent vegetable tonic that pharmacy has ever brought to the assistance of nature in her struggles with disease, has been cordially approved by practitioners of the modern school. It is pleasant to reflect that reason and philosophy have at last been victorious over the errors of the past, and that thousands and tens of thousands, of human beings are alive and well to-day who would indubitably be mouldering in their graves, had they been subjected to the pains and penalties which the doctors orthodox and indispensable thirty or forty years ago.

Preventive medication was scarcely thought of then; but now it is considered of paramount importance, and the celebrity of the standard invigorant, alterative and restorative of the age, (a title which Hostetter's Bitters have fairly earned by their long career of success,) is mainly due to its efficiency as a protective preparation.

A course of the Bitters is urgently recommended as a safe and certain antidote to intermittent and remittent fevers, diarrhœa, dysentery and other maladies.

DEATH IN THE HAIR!

Remember every hair is a tube. Don't fill these tubes with poison. Any desired shade of color can be obtained, without the slightest danger. Have you read Professor CHILTON'S statement (made after analysis,) that STONE & Murray's Circus is coming June 19th.

MR. Robert O. Dennett of this city has been appointed storekeeper at the distillery of William Ward & Co.

IT is stated that the Boston and Maine Railroad has contracted for the sleepers and rails for the extension to Portland.

NEW FIRM.—Messrs. David Rodrick and Walter Hoyt have formed a copartnership for the continuation of the hair dressing business at No. 57 Congress street. Success to them.

ELSON the pedestrian commenced walking to Newburyport and back on Monday. He reached Newburyport and returned to this city all right, but was then too far gone to attempt the second trip to Newburyport, which would have completed his walk of sixty miles.

THE centennial anniversary of the birth of Hosea Ballou was observed at the Universalist Church on Sunday. Rev. G. W. Bickwell preached from the text, "The memory of the just is blessed." The discourse was very interesting. The Sabbath School children were seated in the galleries and joined in the singing.

As an illustration of the unusually advanced condition of vegetation for so early a period in the season, in this vicinity, we mention that on Monday, May 1, Mr. R. L. Lane of Newington brought into market a quantity of well grown rhubarb; and he informs us that a reference to his books—for he keeps books, as all farmers should do—shows that he never before had any fit for use before May 10th.

MR. Wm. P. Walker is so busy fitting out the rising and risen generation from his big stock of custom made clothing at No. 1, Market Square that he scarcely finds time to change his regular advertisement. Even the beaming James W., of Westmoreland, hasn't sufficient opportunity to make new clothes old, there is such a rush of patrons who must have their new suits "done immediately."

THE Berean Association, composed of ministers of the Christian church of this vicinity, hold a meeting on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week with the Court Street church of this city. The object of these meetings is the study of the Bible. They are held monthly. The lesson for this week is the sixteenth chapter of Revelation.

Tuesday & Wednesday evenings will be devoted to public lectures on parts of the 10th and 11th chapters of the same book. The meetings of this Association for the past year have been very interesting and profitable. The public are invited.

THE Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance of this State met at Ham's Hall, Dover, on the 26th ult., and were hospitably entertained by Union Division No. 4, of that city. Reports from all parts of the State show an awakening in the Temperance work, and four new Divisions have been instituted since the last session at Concord. The Grand Lodge was visited on this occasion by William Wells Brown, G. W. A., Mr. Jewell, G. S., and Mr. Dennett, G. C,. of the Grand Division of Massachusetts. The session was fully attended and much business done toward the promotion of the cause of temperance in the old Granite State.

PRESIDENT Grant returned to Washington on Friday.

THE public debt statement shows a reduction during April of $6,124,055.

MISAPPLICATION.—Clergyman's wife (who takes great interest in her industrial school)—"Jane Brown, I'm sorry to hear from your mistress that you are not diligent at your needlework. Now, you know who it is that 'finds work for idle hands to do?'"

Jane Brown (artfully thinking to propitiate)—"If you please, 'm, ,you do, m!'"

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

The Concord railroad is urged to held build a new railroad from Concord to Rochester; also to aid in building the Manchester and Keene Railroad, and in extending the Manchester and North Weare Railroad to Henniker.

P. C. Freeman, Esq., a prominent lawyer in Claremont for many years, died recently at the age of 63 years. He acted as police Judge of Claremont for several years.

On the 25 ult in Munsonville, the horse of Mr. John B. Wood ran away, throwing him from the carriage and injuring him so severely that he died next day: He was sixty years of age.

Dr. C. P. Wood of Manchester has been arrested on the charge of procuring an abortion on a woman named Woodward, who has died. He denies it and is out on $2000 bail.

Forty days ago, Eben Colby of Manchester was hit on the head by a falling sign. He is now a skeleton, being unable to take a particle of nourishment except cold water.

Some of the White Mountain hotels propose to charge only $1.50 a day.

THE CENSUS.—The population of New England is increased except in New Hampshire. The following are the figures:—

Maine	626,456
New Hampshire	318,300
Vermont	330,552
Massachusetts	1,457,351
Rhode Island	217,356
Connecticut	537,454

The population of some of the larger States is as follows:—

New York	4,374,703
Pennsylvania	3,529,601
Ohio	2,665,012
Illinois	2,538,408

The State of Nevada has but 42,491, and there are two Territories, namely, Utah and New Mexico, which have more. The State of Oregon with 90,933 is outnumbered by New Mexico, while Nebraska supports but 123,150.

—Amy Richardson, of Iowa weighs 352 pounds. No one will marry her for fear of big-Amy.

—A Washington editor is mad because a compositor headed his editorial "The Champagne Opened," when he wrote "The Campaign Opened." He says that printer is always thinking about something to drink.

—A man stopping his paper wrote to the editor: "I think folks ottent to spend ther munny for payper mi daddy diddent and everybodyy said he was the intelligentest man in the country and had the smartest family of boiz that ever dugged taturs."

—A Boston minister says he once preached on "The Recognition of Friends in the Future," and was told after service by a hearer, that it would be more to the point to preach about the recognition of friends here, as he had been in the church twenty years and didn't know any of its members.

—A farmer's wife, in speaking of the smartness of her son, a lad six years old, said: "He can read fluently, repeat the whole catechism, and weed onions as well as his father." "Yes, mother," added the young hopeful, "and yesterday I licked Ned Rawson, throwed the cat in the well, and stole old Hickey's gimlet."

—A Norwich man took a drink of whiskey from the family aconite bottle, the other night, and in about an hour two abled-bodied laborers were stirring up his alimentary canal with a stomach pump. The pump had a pretty good suction, and for some time it was a question whether the seat of his pants was going to give or the handle break. But he's all right.

JOB AND CARD PRINTING.—We have made great additions to our jobbing facilities—a mammoth Hand Press (the largest in Portsmouth,) new Display Type, Borders of various styles, &c.—and are prepared to execute with neatness and dispatch, all orders for FULL SHEET POSTERS, DATE SLIPS, PAMPHLETS, SERMONS, ADDRESSES, AUCTION BILLS, CONSTITUTIONS, BY LAWS, PROGRAMMES, HANDBILLS, CIRCULARS, ORDERS DANCES, BLANKS, BILL HEADS, RECEIPTS, TICKETS, BUSINESS, MARRIAGE, LOTTERY AND VISITING CARDS, LABELS, TAGS, and in fact PRINTING OF ANY DESCRIPTION, AT SATISFACTORY PRICES. Consumption,

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE,

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of the wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr. Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever other skill remains, that can be aided by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In his statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self assuring, self-convincing.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With the condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbid action of the liver. Here, then comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Digestion is now progressing, without its previous tortures. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering mankind. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten throne that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

The second thing is, the patients must stay in a warm room, until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be prevented or a cure cannot be effected. Fresh air and riding out, especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased; and yet, because they are in the house they must not sit down quiet; they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear, to get up a good circulation of blood. The patients must keep in good spirits—be determined to get well. This has a great deal to do with the appetite, and is the great point to gain.

To despair of cure after such evidence of the possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words:

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption: confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pains and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since."

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., will professionally be at Philadelphia, at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Following these directions, and kind Nature will do the rest, excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses. As a laxative medicine need no other accompaniments than the ample instructions that accompany them. First, create appetite. Of returning health hunger is the most welcome symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the dieting at once be of the plainest food. Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweats abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation: while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylacteric against consumption in any of its forms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

7-30 GOLD LOAN

OF THE

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 200 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 130 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 500.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend, as a Profitable and perfectly Safe investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on

25,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,00 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. Tax; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable AT TEN PER CENT. ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment accessible to the people, which is more PROFITABLE OR SAFE.

EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5-per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States 6 per cents. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—Valuable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX,

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established character equal to any mortgage issue dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market price—thus placing them on the same basis; for temporary or permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.

These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands, without competition, all the traffic of Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota—shortening the distance from St. Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 90 miles.

The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists that they will more than double within the ensuing year.

A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company, obligating the latter to invest 50 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railroad in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the Bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stock, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder, at his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the interest obligation.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 5½ per cent. interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Governments pay at present price, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.

All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. f24dWaS

PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF

HAMLET'S SOLILOQUY.

To insure or not to insure? That is the question.
Whether t'will be nobler for my family to suffer
The stings and arrows of outrageous fortune
Or take a policy against those dangers, the bonds
And, by insuring, end them? To iret, to fear,
No more; and by a policy to end
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to. Yes, my application
Devoutly to be wished; apply, insure,
To take the premium; ay—there's the rub
For in that time what premiums may come
Before I shuffle off this mortal coil
Does make me pause, tightens my purse,
And makes me rather pay the bills I have
Than fly to others I know not of.
Thus does mesuness make brutes of us all.

Morning Chronicle.

A GREAT "BORE."

A correspondent of the New York Evening Post gives the following vivid account of a curious phenomenon observable in Nova Scotia:

In some of these tidal rivers is to be seen, at the first moment of the return flow, the strange phenomenon called the "bore," that is the first tide wave, which rushes in with great force and rapidity, roaring like a surf. The very name "great bore" has a sound of terror in it, especially to the ignorant, who suppose, as did one man whom I asked in regard to it, that it is so called because it roars like a wild boar, and sometimes sweeps away cattle when it overtakes them on the sands. We saw it at Monckton, a small town in the meadows of the Petticodiac river, which empties into the Bay of Fundy eighty miles above St. John. This river has a more tunnel shaped mouth than most of the others, and for that reason the bore is higher.

The landlord of the Monckton Inn seemed to be accustomed to the arrival of strangers to see the bore, and was evidently concerned; as mothers are about children on exhibition, lest it might not, on this particular day, do its best. He explained to me as we drove to the wharf, that it was just now "a low run of tides," that "to-day the wind would be dead ahead, and that knocked it down considerable;" and that I "ought to be there in the time of the spring tides when it waked people up nights."

All my anticipations were vague. I had seen other tidal rivers in Nova Scotia empty, day after day, their thirty and forty-five feet of water, but it came in and went out like other tides, and made no noise about its gigantic work; what this one sudden, roaring wave could be, I had no conception. I confess that I held my breath for the first few minutes after we reached the wharf. There lay the river bed half a mile broad, curving just below us, away from the town towards the sea; it was one smooth valley of red mud, with a current of not more than twenty feet wide running out; the brief chance of the fresh water stream to make its way down to the bay.

On the town side were wharves with muddy beaches between; on the opposite the Parish of Coverdale, with its green meadows coming down till they met the muddy slopes of the river channel. Beyond the bend we could trace the brown band of the river bed for miles. Down this line we strained our eyes.

"Shall we hear it before we see it?" said I.

"Not to-day, because the wind is ahead."

Mystery of mysteries! Here was navigation with a witness; a wave riding on a wave against a current, in teeth of the wind, faster than a horse can trot. I held my breath again. The flies buzzed about the wharf; some little boys teetered idly on a pile of boards; the landlord looked at his watch; the horse settled down a little on his nigh hind leg, after the fashion of intelligent horses, when they comprehend that they are to have a long standing. Three-quarters of an hour passed in almost utter silence for I was afraid of losing the first sight and sound of the water, and did not encourage the landlord's stories of traditions of high tides which had swept into the town, of boats which had been hit by the bore and capsized, and of the grand sight in the breaking up of the river in the spring, when the great masses of ice are knocked and ground together in the bore with a noise like guns.

"Ah! there are the gulls," he exclaimed; "it will soon be here."

"Why, what can gulls have to do with it?"

"Oh, the little fishes get caught up and rolled over and over in the wave, and the gulls, they fly along just above it, and pick the fishes right out of—there it is!" he cried. Yes, there it was, three miles off, a low, white line, coming towards us steadily, and apparently faster and faster; directly across the river channel, in one solid rank of shining foam. On it came, looking higher and higher, and presently came the surf roar which broke in uncannily on the meadow stillness. At each point that it passed, the water spread out instantly over the whole space from bore to shore; still on it came, swift, deadly; behind it, smooth rippling water; before it, the empty bed; its white foam gleamed like vicious teeth; as it swept past the wharf, forty feet below us, it would not have surprised me if it had sprung at our throats; in a moment it was gone; far up the stream, under the bridge, frothing around the piers, and out of sight on the other side. A few cows were grazing far down on the Lovesdale meadows, and I fancied I heard a voice calling,

"Come uppe Whitefoot, come uppe Lightfoot;
Come uppe Jetty, rise and follow."

The wave on this day was only about six feet high. In the spring tides it is often twelve feet; and then its roaring can be heard long before it is in sight. The wharf from which we watched it was forty feet high. Two and a half hours later we returned to it, and the water was flowing smooth and dark, within a few feet of the top.

As we rode back in the cars to St. John, we seemed to hear the surf roar of the great wave, mingling dreamily with the sweet but wonderful Indian names which the conductor called out from station to station: "Apohaqui," "Ossakeag," "Penobsquis," "Petticodiac," "Nauwicewauk," and "Quispamsis."

Two girls in a small town in Ohio run a blacksmith shop all by themselves. They dress in blouses, sustain and shoe a horse just as well as a man.

One of the wisest and best women of The Golden Age's acquaintance has a family of sons and daughters, among whom one son, by the name of Bob, gives more than a due share of an urchin's provocations to his two sisters, named Maggie and Hattie. Whereupon this motherly mother, taking the part of each against the other, with a view to reconcile both, one day wrote on a slip of paper, and pinned on the window curtain of the girl's room, the following bit of good advice.

"Young ladies, be kind and patient with your little brother. Consider yourselves a kind of missionary to this little heathen, and with a religious earnestness labor for his salvation. Do not kick him out of your room, but kiss him and treat him with a sisterly love and tenderness. He was once a sweet little baby like the one in the picture, and I wish to say to you 'that he sleeps!' Now you perceive he is awake, and does the best he can to keep the rest of us awake also. You must regard Bob as a means of grace."

The effect of the above manifesto was equally happy on the girls and the boy. "Robert le Diable" became "Bob, the means of grace." Not that the young rebel surrendered immediately. He fought it out on the same old line for awhile, hoping to get put out of the room, or his ears nipped, or a pin stuck in his leg, or some other reasonable excuse for barricading the chamber-doors with twelve chairs, or for wheeling the pet goat up into the girls' closet, or for cutting the bed cords and letting down the mattress, or for executing several other ingenious tricks of his fertile mind; but he was so respectfully treated by the human enemy that he had not the heart to make war against the spirit of peace. The rebellion within him gradually surrendered and the latest bulletin from the orderly household is that universal amnesty prevails.—Golden Age.

The late Hugh Miller was once very ill with inflammation of the lungs, and related the following experience to his namesake, Professor Miller. He found, as he was lying on his bed and no doubt just emerging from a semi-delirium, that he lost his identity. What his name was he could not tell; but he settled that he was about to begin business as a travelling merchant, selling crockery through the country to the sound of two bowls rubbed together and he went through many elaborate calculations regarding his affairs. In the midst of these his eye lighted on a cornice in his bedroom, which he slowly recognized as something he had seen somewhere before then. He followed a line from the cornice to the floor; from the floor his eye travelled to the bed, which grew familiar to him and finally his glance settled on his body. He exclaimed, "Oh! I'm Hugh Miller." And there was an end of the crockery business.

A Book for every Man.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE, OR SELF-PRESERVATION. A Medical Treatise on the Cause and Cure of EXHAUSTED VITALITY, PREMATURE DECLINE IN MAN, NERVOUS AND PHYSICAL DEBILITY, HYPOCHONDRIA, and all other diseases arising from the ERRORS OF YOUTH, OR THE INDISCRETIONS OR EXCESSES of mature years. This is indeed a book for every man. Price only $1.00. 285 pages, bound in cloth.

A Book For Every Woman,

Entitled SEXUAL PHYSIOLOGY OF WOMAN, AND HER DISEASES; or, WOMAN TREATED ON PHYSIOLOGICALLY AND PATHOLOGICALLY, from INFANCY TO OLD AGE, with elegant ILLUSTRATIVE ENGRAVINGS. 200 pages, bound in beautiful French cloth. Price $2.00.

A Book for Everybody.

Flattered by the reception of, and great demand for, the above valuable and timely treatises, and also to meet a great need of the present age, the author has just published a new book, treating exclusively of NERVOUS AND MENTAL DISEASES. 300 pp. cloth. Price $1. SENT FREE on receipt of $3 for the other two books, postpage paid.

These are, beyond all comparison, the most extraordinary works on Physiology ever published. There is nothing whatever that the MARRIED OR SINGLE, of EITHER SEX, can either hear or read about, but what is fully explained, and many matters of the most important and interesting character are introduced to which no allusion even can be made in any other work in our language. All the NEW DISCOVERIES of the author, whose experience is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any man, are given in full. No person should be without these valuable books.

"VALUABLE BOOKS.—We have received the valuable medical works published by the Peabody Medical Institute. These books are of actual merit, and should find a place in every intelligent family. They are not the cheap order of abomnable trash, published by irresponsible parties, and purchased to gratify coarse tastes, but are written by a responsible professional gentleman of eminence, as a source of instruction on vital matters, concerning which lamentable ignorance exists. The important subjects presented are treated with delicacy, ability and care, and, as an appendix, many useful prescriptions for prevailing complaints are added."—Cross Republican, Lancaster, N. H.

"The author of these books is one of the most learned and popular physicians of the day, and is entitled to the gratitude of our race for these invaluable productions. It seems to be his aim to instruct mankind, so as to avoid the cause of those diseases to which they are subject, and he tells them just how and when to do it."—Chronicle, Farmington, Maine, Sept. 7, 1869.

Either book sent by mail on receipt of price.

N. B. The Author of the above-named medical works is the Chief Consulting Physician of the Peabody Medical Institute, and is so constantly employed in consultation with invalids from all parts of the country, that he has no time to attend to mere business details. Therefore all letters should be addressed to the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, or to DR. W. H. PARKER, the Medical Assistant of the Author, and his Business Agent, who, as well as the Author himself, may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill, secrecy and experience. oct261yr

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS, For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON. After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity of a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they can employ no more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases, and at very reasonable charges.

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

COMPOUND FLUID Extract Catawba GRAPE PILLS.

Component Parts—Fluid Extract Rhubarb and Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Juice.

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone, and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, it is not necessary to coat them with sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

E

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

HIGHLY CONCENTRATED COMPOUND

FLUID EXT. SARSAPARILLA

Will radically exterminate from the system Scrofula, Syphilis, Fever Sores, Ulcers, Sore Eyes, Sore Legs, Sore Mouth, Sore Head, Bronchitis, Skin Diseases, Salt Rheum, Cankers, Runnings from the Ear, White Swellings, Tumors, Cancerous Affections, Nodes, Rickets, Tubular Swellings, Night Sweats, Rash, Tetter, Humors of all kinds, Chronic Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, and all diseases that have been established in the system for years.

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than other preparations of Sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of Health and Purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pains and swelling of the bones, ulcerations of the throat and legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, and Beautifying the Complexion.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S

CONCENTRATED

FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

THE GREAT DIURETIC,

has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of Prostate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, and for Enfeebled and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, and Excesses and Imprudencies in Life, impurities of the Blood, etc., superseding Copaiba in Affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in these Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.

LADIES.

In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. It is prescribed extensively by the most eminent physicians and Midwives for confirmed and delicate constitutions, of both sexes and all ages.

O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU CURES DISEASES ARISING FROM IMPRUDENCES, HABITS OF DISSIPATION, &c., in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Preventing and Curing Stricture of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous Matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED ROSE WASH

cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It specifically eradicates Pimples, Spots, Redness, Dryness, or any Eruptions of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Itch, Itch Patches, Dryness of Skin, or Skin, Frost Bites, and all purposes for which Salves or Ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of its vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin. H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unbounded patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an injection for diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACTS BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases as is recommended, cannot be surpassed.

NEW HAMPSHIRE ITEMS.

Mr. Harrison Hale of Rochester has a 20 year old cat.

The Patriot says Gov. Stearns has made application to the U. S. Government to have the State triangulated. By Congressional enactment it is provided that any State which has a geological survey, can, also, be triangulated. The granting of the Governor's request is, of course, beyond doubt, as the request itself is merely a matter of form. Prof. Pierce, Superintendent of the Coast Survey, has appointed Prof. E. T. Quimby of Dartmouth College to do the work, which will be of great practical value and importance.

An Ashland chicken has three legs, the third having a foot with six toes.

On the 25th ult., in Great Falls, Mr. Ezra Butler was engaged in dumping a load of gravel into the river near the factories, when the bank caved and his valuable horse and wagon slid into twenty feet of water. The horse was drowned.

Goffstown is to have a steam mill and thirty new houses erected there the coming season.

At Rumney, on Saturday last, a bear got into a flock of sheep and killed thirteen of them, and on Sunday nearly all the male people of the town were scouring the woods for Bruin; but at last accounts he was still at large.

The commencement exercises at the Robinson Female Seminary will be held on June 27. There will be seventeen in the graduating class.

Mr. A. J. Towle, a highly respected citizen of Exeter, died on Sunday.

The Nutter forgeries at Farmington have assumed a new phase. John A. Sanborn of Rochester, who was clerk for Nutter for two years, has confessed that he wrote and signed all of the Nutter notes which had been negotiated, and that he did it at the instigation of Nutter, who had befriended him and made him believe that no harm would befall either, as Nutter was in a condition to take up all the papers as soon as he got over a tight place.

WEATHER PREDICTIONS.—The New York Times makes the following complimentary allusions to the telegraphic weather reports sent out by the War Department:

If people are not fully prepared for changes of the weather they have only themselves to blame. The weather foercasts, which we daily publish from the bureau at Washington, are marvellously accurate. We have watched them for weeks past, and they rarely turn out to be wrong. Yesterday we were promised rain—and we had it. "Clearing weather" is now reported as probable. These weather reports cannot fail to prove of great service to the shipping and commercial interests, and the bureau may fairly be congratulated on the great success it has already achieved.

—Dublin is fortunate in some of her citizens. A few years ago a great brewer restored St. Patrick's Cathedral, which had long been in a sorry plight, at an expense of $75,000, and now a millionaire distiller offers to spend anything that may be needed in restoring the other cathedral in that city—Christ Church. In olden time people founded abbeys by way of atonement; can it be that dealers in drink occasionally have qualms as to their calling which suggest splendid gifts to God?

—A health paper says that the habit of taking a nap after dinner is a bad one. Ten minutes' sleep before dinner is worth more than an hour after. It rests and refreshes, and prepares the system for vigorous digestion. If sleep is taken after dinner it should be in a sitting posture, as the horizontal position is unfavorable to healthful digestion.

—A new school teacher in one of the unexplored districts of Sodus, on entering the school house for the first time, noticed a three-legged stool. "Is this the dunce block?" he asked of a fair young girl who was standing near. The dark eyes sparkled, the curls nodded assent, and the lips rippled out, "I guess so; the teacher always sits on it."

—Some girls will never learn to restrain the natural impulses of their nature. A minister was baptising a girl at Ripon, Wisconsin, and when he had submerged her, and came out of the water, he asked her how she felt in her mind. Her answer was, "All hunkey, only a little wet."

—Mrs. Eddy caught her better half kissing the servant-girl. The doctor was sent for. He says he can patch up Mr. Eddy's face, but he'll always be baldheaded.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 3, 1871.

THE WORK AT HELL GATE.—The obstructions at the entrance of New York harbor are being gradually removed. A New York Standard reporter gives his experience of an exploration among the miners under water. He says the shaft is a great round opening made in the rock at the point of the land, and outward beneath the river the tunnels take their course. We entered the tunnel named in honor of President Grant, and where the richest quartz vein abounds. There were the brawny miners, drilling away in their dismal tomb, for to us it seemed dismal, but to them it is second nature. About 25 feet of stone had been removed, and the tunnel carved out as if intended for the passage of a locomotive and train of cars, and is 16 feet wide. There are only 8 feet of stone between the miners in this tunnel and the mighty waters above. The miners can hear distinctly the passing of the Sound steamers, and can discern what vessel it is from the peculiar revolution of the wheel or screw.

There are ten tunnels, the length of which will vary—some will be bored to the extent of 100 feet, and others more; the Farragut tunnel, No. 1, will be 400 feet in length. All the tunnels are named and numbered. In the interior of the tunnels, at 25 feet equidistant, the galleries, which will be seven in number, are to be cut through, so that they will encircle and form an intersection. In the pier of these galleries will be inserted the powder chambers, which will be charged in accordance with the hardness or softness of the strata. The piers of the tunnels will be charged with 505 to 800 lbs. of powder.

The tunnels are in a numerical order, and are named respectively Farragut, Madison, Humphrey, Gov. Hoffman, Sherman, Jefferson, Grant, McClellan, (the Grant and McClellan tunnels being the richest in quartz), Franklin and Jackson. Oxide of iron, iron pyrite, and traces of pure gold are found in small quantities in the heavy quartz veins. Three months ago, in the Farragut tunnel, at a depth of 32 feet, in a seam of decomposed mica, terchiary shell was found, which has been considered a great curiosity to find in a primary rock, and on that account was sent to Prof. Agassiz of Harvard University, who has very ably explained the remarkable incident. Intersected with the heavy quartz veins, the most beautiful vertically stratified gneiss rock has been found in large quantities. It would not be surprising if there was discovered larger quantities of the pure metal, as all the evidences of mineral deposits have been found.

The clearing will be 32 ft., 6 in. below mean low water, which is also the floor line of the great shaft, from which about 7,000 cubic yards have been blasted and removed by hoisting 60 feet and deposited on terra firma, and will be used for building purposes, instead of blocking one of the finest ports of entry in the world.

Mr. G. C. Reithemier, superintendent and resident mining engineer, is a most remarkable man; a native of Switzerland, his name is indentified with most of the great engineering operations of the present century all over the world. He adheres strictly to the rule of mathematical calculations, and will have no one under him who is not competent to carry out implicitly his orders, as he says success all depends upon a strict observance of the directions of the one controlling mind. He has the interest of the miners, mechanics and laborers, of whom he has under him two hundred in number, at heart, and also is mindful of the trust which the Government reposes in him. His men are all abstemious, and are devotedly attached to him.

THE following is a statement of the public debt of the United States, May 1:

Total debt—principal and interest,	$2,422,824,382
Cash in Treasury—Coin,	106,463,979
Currency,	12,796,860
Total,	$119,260,839
Debt less cash in Treasury,	$2,303,563,543
Decrease during April,	5,134,003
Decrease since March 1, 1871,	17,126,303
Decrease since March 1, 1869,	221,985,716

The monthly interest on the public debt is now $9,459,959—$1,072,503 less than March 1, 1869.

WHAT DONN PIATT KNOWS ABOUT ADVERTISING.—Donn Piatt in a recent Washington letter, says; I went out the other day to purchase some furniture for an office, and having selected my articles, I turned to the man and said:

"You advertise in our paper, do you not?"

"No sir; we never advertise."

I then quietly informed him that I never bought furniture, and moved on to another establishment. You will think I am romancing, but precisely the same conversation occurred at the second store. I tried a third, quite a large establishment, standing on a corner, kept by a Christian (and I proposed to advertise him now) of the Mosaic name of Moses—Moses & Sons at that. They have quite an assortment in the upholstery line, and I suggested advertising to the senior, and received in answer that he occupied a corner, a very conspicuous corner, and had a large sign on it that everybody could read from the street, and with that it was quite unnecessary to go to further expense in the way of advertising. Then I said unto Moses:

"Do you know, my Christian friend, that when a man possessed of any amount of money wishes to furnish a house in Washington he goes to Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and even unto Boston?"

"Yes," he responded, "I know that."

"Well," said I, "do you know the reason for it?"

"Why, of course I do," he replied, with some asperity. "These people come here from Boston and other places and are interested in the manufactories at home, and of course won't purchase in Washington."

"My Christian friend," I continued, "you labor under a monstrous delusion. These men do not own any manufactories of furniture at home, and if they did they would not purchase where they would have to pay heavily for transportation if they knew they could escape such taxes by getting their furniture of you. But they don't know that you exist.

They read the papers and they see no mention made of Moses, unless it be in a Sunday paper, and then the Moses spoken of is a man dead long ago; yet, however, no deader than you are, come to think of it. A man who does not advertise is as dead as Moses. You say you have a sign out here. This is not the sign asked for. Few people see, and those who do can't read it. For one man walking idly down the street who reads there are hundreds who hurry by with no time to read signs; for one man who does notice your abortion in black and white out there a newspaper would take your business to thousands.

Why my Christian friend, immense fortunes have been made by advertising. "Did you ever hear of the Ledger?" He had heard of the Ledger. "Did you ever hear of Helmbold's Buchu?" He never had heard of Helmbold's Buchu. He had seen a gentleman by the name of Helmbold driving down the avenue during the Carnival, with a great quantity of horses, and thought he was a part of the Administration. I gave him up in despair, and yet this is a specimen of the business man at the magnificent national capital of our great country.

—The nation and the human race never needed the Republican party more than they do now. We have only just come to understand that the war between slavery and barbarism, on the one hand, and liberty and civilization on the other, is not yet fought out. Beaten in the open field, the rebellion yet lives in the lawlessness of Southern scoundrelism. Beaten by ballots and beaten by bullets, it shows, like other venomous creatures, a wonderful tenacity of life. Liberty is not yet established at the South. Freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of political action are yet hardly known there. If the Democratic party were to come into power to-morrow, the whole work of reconstruction would be undone: the franchise would be taken from negroes, and under some form or other slavery or its equivalent would be restored.

Let us remember one thing. The lost cause is not an abandoned cause. When the rebellion fights us again, it will be with the arms, the forts, the ships, and the prestige of the government itself. When we vote at the next Presidential election, we vote face to face and ballot to ballot with the rebellion. The battle of next year will be more decisive than the taking of New Orleans and Vicksburg and Richmond together. If, under a Republican administration, the whole south is full of lawlessness, what would be the state of things with Fernando Wood and Sunset Cox in the cabinet? If mayors of cities are shot, banished and abducted while Grant is President, what will be done when Hoffman reigns? If they do these things in a green tree, what will they do in the dry?—N. Y. Independent.

The second annual meeting of the Fifth New Hampshire Veteran Association, will be held at Eagle Hall, Concord, Thursday, June 1st, 1871. It is hoped that all the survivors of that glorious old regiment will be present. Business meeting at 11 o'clock, to be followed by Dinner, Oration, Poem, and a general good time. Free return tickets will be furnished over the Concord Railroad and its branches, Northern and its branches, and Boston, Concord and Montreal.

—Mustapha, the pet lion of the King of Wurtemburg, which was as tame as a dog, is dead, and the King is inconsolable.

FRANCE.

The Prussian government has decided to notify the Versailles government that a further limited period would be allowed for the restoration of authority. Failing this, it is anticipated that the Regency of the Ex-Empress will be recognized as the only legitimate government of France.

THE census returns show a noteworthy change in the distribution of the colored population among the southern states. Compared with 1860, the following per centages of increase and decrease are exhibited: Increase—Florida, 50 per cent.; Texas, 25 per cent.; Arkansas, 12 per cent.; Georgia, 12 per cent. Decrease—Keutucky, 7 per cent.; Virginia, 8 per cent.; West Virginia, 15 per cent.; Louisiana, 19 per cent. Thus it appears that the colored population have been drawn off from Virginia and Kentucky to the more profitable employment in the cotton region. Equally they seem to flee from hard and trying labor of sugar harvesting in Louisiana.

PROVIDENCE people are indulging in strawberry shortcake.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

We should not hesitate to recommend to any friend of ours, Parsons' Purgative Pills: they are scientifically prepared and are adapted to all the purposes of a good purgative medicine.

Decidedly the best remedy that has ever been discovered for rheumatism, swollen or stiff joints, flesh wounds, sprains, bruises, cuts and burns, is Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. We use it and always recommend it to our friends. ap29

Dr Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery, will not raise the dead, but it will benefit and cure the living. For all severe Coughs, Throat and Bronchial diseases it has never yet been equaled. For "Liver Complaint" or "Biliousness," and Constipation of the Bowels it is a never failing remedy. Sold by Druggists.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Preventive Medication.

A radical change has been introduced in the practice of medicine. Physicians have ceased to torture and prostrate their patients. Instead of pulling down, they build up; instead of assaulting nature, they assist her. Cupping, leeching, blistering, venesection, calomel, antimony, stupifying narcotics and rasping purgatives, once the favorite resources of the faculty, are now rarely resorted to even by the most dogmatic members of the profession. The old creed was that disease was something which must be expelled by violent artificial means, irrespective of the wear and tear of the vital organization in the process. The new creed recognizes the improvement of the general health as essential to the cure of all local ailments. Hence it is that HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, the most potent vegetable tonic that pharmacy has ever brought to the assistance of nature in her struggles with disease, has been cordially approved by practitioners of the modern school. It is pleasant to reflect that reason and philosophy have at last been victorious over the errors of the past, and that thousands and tens of thousands, of human beings are alive and well to-day who would indubitably be mouldering in their graves, had they been subjected to the pains and penalties which were deemed orthodox and indispensable thirty or forty years ago.

Preventive medication was scarcely thought of then; but now it is considered of paramount importance, and the celebrity of the standard invigorant, alterative and restorative of the age, (a title which Hostetter's Bitters have fairly earned by their long career of success,) is mainly due to its efficiency as a protective preparation.

A course of the Bitters is urgently recommended as a safe and certain antidote to intermittent and remittent fevers, diarrhœa, dysentery and other maladies.

DEATH IN THE HAIR!

Remember every hair is a tube. Don't fill these tubes with poison. Any desired shade of color can be obtained without the slightest danger. Have you read Professor CHILTON'S statement (made after analysis,) that

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

New Advertisements to-day.

Notice—Steamer Clara Bateman.
Lager Beer—Martin Garrity.
New Stock—C. N. Shaw & Co.
Two columns on 1st page from H. T. Helmbold.

HOUSE hunters are plenty. Empty houses are scarce.

CORNER loafers are an abomination in the sight of humans.

REV. Hugh Montgomery will preach at the Methodist Chapel, on Daniel St., this Wednesday evening.

DR. DEARBORN wishes to notify the public that he has removed to Glen Cottage, corner of State and Middle streets.

THE Stone Crusher "busted" on Tuesday. It got a rock that was too hard to chew, in its mouth, and the jaws gave way.

AUCTION sale of real estate—house, barn and land—this day, by Mr. J. P. Morse, on the premises at Rye. See advertisement.

MR. Henry P. Winter, travelling agent of the Boston News, is in town, and the readers of that journal expect a series of local descriptions from his prolific pen.

SCHOONER Charles Carroll, whose master has sailed her safely through the lower harbor for five years, went ashore on her outward trip, on the 1st, but came off at flood tide.

THE economy which led the officer of the Engineer Corps having charge of the material at Fort Constitution to neglect painting the material there, is now manifest. The derricks are rotten and one of them recently broke while in use.

IT is a busy season with house-keepers; houses are turned topsy-turvy, and a generally unsettled spirit prevails. Sweet, lovable little woman, whose smiles, in peaceful times, chase away every care and dull thought from husbands' minds, wears now clouded faces.

LAIGHTON Brothers, the enterprising proprietors of the Appledore House at the Shoals, are immediately to lay a "submersible tellegraph under the boundin' billers of the nasty deep" between their island home and the main land. This will be a great convenience to their hosts of patrons, and will furnish one more attraction to the many who wish to enjoy summer by the seaside, yet who must remain within easy communication with their places of business.

IN our advertising columns can be read—and easily read, for there are not many words in it—the announcement of C. N. Shaw & Co., who not only know how to select and make up in the best style the choicest millinery goods, but how to advertise the fact in a manner to attract the eye of every person who takes up the paper containing their notice. The firm have long enjoyed a "good run" of the best custom, and their goods being selected in person from the wholesale stocks in the large cities, are invariably of the best quality.

—Ebenezer Leavitt, of North Hampton, his brother Benning Leavitt, of Chicopee, Mass., and his brother-in-law Richard R. Locke, of Rye, are all entitled to pensions for service in the war of 1812, under the recent act of Congress, and have applied for them. The ages of these gentlemen are respectively 78, 75 and 75, and they volunteered for coast defence when mere boys, and all in different companies, Mr. Locke being at one time a captive in Dartmoor prison. The fact that so many relatives are alive to draw a pension for a war so long ago is probably without parallel.—Exeter News Letter.

Mrs. Ruth Odlorne, of this city, now in her 92d year, is also entitled to a pension, her husband having served in the war of 1812.

"How much will that make?" asked a gentleman, laying an advertisement of a few lines on our desk. "Half an inch," we answered. "Well, I want it to take up three inches," he continued, and added: "I don't believe in crowding too many words for people to read; my plan is to decide how much space I can afford to pay for, and then see in how few words I can say what I want to. People will read a six-line advertisement that's spread over six inches a great deal quicker than they will sixty lines jammed into an inch, I fancy." We fancy so, too,—tho' sixty lines to the inch would be an unusual number; a concise statement of what the advertiser will do or has to offer, well displayed as to space so that it can be read at a glance, will in our opinion be found the most judicious and useful method of advertising, and have a dozen readers where the crowded-up notice has one.

EARLY WHITES.—Capt. Robert White of Newcastle had potatoes in his garden showing their stocks two inches high, and hoed by the 25th of April. Who can beat this in New Hampshire?

WE have received the first number of the Pittsfield Times, which is to fill the gap occasioned by the demise of the Suncook Valley Times. It is a good looking sheet and shows signs of being well edited as well as neatly printed. The Suncook Valley people should give warm support to the energetic proprietor, Mr. D. T. Neale, and they cannot fail to receive a quid pro quo in return.

THE Concord Monitor wants the Republicans to compromise with the Democrats at the coming session of the legislature, and divide the offices. We prefer a dead-lock, if necessary, and so would the Monitor if it was faithful to the party it pretends to support. The time to test the sincerity of men is when they are needed, and now is the time for all true men to show their colors. The State would be more of a gainer than loser by a cessation of legislation for a year. We do not see any necessity for compromise when the Republicans have a clear majority in the legislature. The wish seems father to the thought, with the Monitor—which reminds us of an item in the Meriden (Conn.) Recorder-Journal, which reads as follows:—

Andy Johnson has got sick of feeding upon the lean calves of Tennessee Democracy, and now, like the repentant prodigal of old, is hankering for the fatted corn-shucks of the Republican household, again. There will be more grief among Radical angels, when he returns, than over ninety-nine scallawags who never went away.

TRY IT!

How well we remember in days that are gone,
The feelings we felt as we saw the cork drawn—
The disgust—the recoil
From "Cod Liver Oil,"
Dealt out to poor souls in the days that are gone!
But who could complain
Of this to be taken?
It swallows as easy as sparkling Champagne—
Does "Marvins' Deodorized Oil."

Consumption,

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE,

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have died.

Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr. Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid it is made no representation that is not thousand times substantiated by living and visible proofs. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as simple as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self asserting, self-convincing.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the disease is assaulted. Two-thirds of the cases of consumption originate in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With these medicines the mucoid tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here, then, comes the enfeebling drain, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophyllum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the Alimentary canal are cleansed. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing, without the previous fermentures. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no constriction of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an Indigenous Father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lung. In the form of gatherings it prepares them for expectoration, and lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten tissue that it occupied is removed and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

The second thing is, the patients must stay in a warm room, until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be prevented or a cure cannot be effected. Fresh air and riding out, especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased; and yet, because they are in the house they must not sit down quiet: they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear, to get a free and circulation of blood. The patients must keep in good spirits—be determined to get well. This has a great deal to do with the appetite, and is the great point to gain.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words:

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption: confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pains and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have grown in flesh ever since."

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth Street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions, and kind Nature will do the rest, excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the ample instructions that accompany them: First, create appetite. Of returning food by hunger is the most delicious symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the designing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens, the night sweat is abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation: while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylactic against consumption in any of its forms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

7-30 GOLD LOAN

—OF THE—

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 266 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 130 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 560.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend as a Profitable and perfectly Safe Investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths' per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on

23,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 ACRES for each $1,00 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. Tax; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable AT TEN PER CENT. ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, accessible to the people, which is more profitable or safe.

EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan has induced many holders of Five-Twenties to place their money in Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current price in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

FIRST MORTGAGE

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX,

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established character equal to any mortgage issue dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market 60 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with the Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Road in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the Bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stock, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder, at his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the interest obligation.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 9½ per cent. Interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Government pays at present price, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.

All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. f24dWaS

PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF

HAMLET'S SOLILOQUY.

To insure or not to insure? That is the question.
Whether t'will be nobler for my family to suffer
The stings and arrows of outrageous fortune
Or take a policy against those dangers,
And, by insuring, end them? To fret, to fear,
No more; and by a policy to end
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to. Yes, my application's
Devoutly to be wished; apply, insure,
And pay the premium: ay—there's the rub
For in that time what premiums may come
Before I shuffle off this mortal coil
Does make me pause, tightens my purse,
And makes me rather pay the bills I have
Than fly to others I know not of.
Thus does meanness make brutes of us all.

The Daily Chronicle.

Portsmouth, N. H.

THURSDAY, MAY 4, 1871.

THE Connecticut Legislature convened Wednesday. Republican officers were chosen throughout. A joint committee on the canvass of votes for State officers was raised, to whom was referred the report of the Board of Canvassers and petitions of the presiding officers of town meetings in New Haven, Enfield and Cheshire, praying that the evident errors in the returns from those towns be corrected. The Legislature will probably adjourn till next week, to give the committee time for its investigations and report who have received the majority of votes cast for Governor and other officers not yet declared elected.

MORE "TIDAL."—Indianapolis, Greencastle, Lafayette, Shelbyville and Greensburg, Indiana, have elected Republican municipal officers.

FRANCE.—The Clamart railway station was captured on the night of the 1st, at the point of the bayonet. Three hundred insurgents were killed in the action. The Chateau d'Issy, the defence of which the insurgents temporarily abandoned, was simultaneously attacked by two regiments of Versailles troops. Three hundred communists found in the supposed deserted castle surrendered.

The insurgents have reoccupied fort d'Issy.

THE Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press says it appears that the Spanish government is very desirous of disposing of Cuba to the United States. Her main object seems to be to get as large a sum as possible. Her first proposition to our minister, General Sickles, was to sell the island for two hundred millions. The sum was then reduced fifty millions, and finally to one hundred millions. Some time ago Mr. Fish informed our minister that the government could not at present entertain any proposition looking to the acquisition of that island.

THE following address from the New York Globe to the press of that city, is equally applicable to every portion of the country. Speaking of the recent brutal murder of a respected gentleman by a drunken bully, it says that "almost without exception, the papers of that city are disposed to ignore the cause of the Putnam. In one chorus they tell us the car-conductor was to blame; the driver was a rogue; that rowdyism is on the increase; that the police are to blame, etc. Gentlemen of the press of New York, rum is the cause of nine-tenths of all the crime committed in this city. Foster was drunk when he murdered Putnam. If he had been sober, he never would have done the deed. Rum is the arch-fiend which killed Putnam. Until we abolish rum, we shall never prevent murder. It is a waste of time to scold about conductors, and read them lessons on their duty. The system which allows such men as Foster to get drunk is at fault. If we would see sober people on the cars; if we would put animalism under, and elevate the good, the gentlemanly, the intellectual, we must educate all our people, must close up those saloons which deal out the stuff which fires men's brains, and causes them to commit awful deeds. Until we do this we shall have "ruffianism on the rails," and such outrages as the murder of Mr. Putnam."

WILLIAM Foster, the murderer of Mr. A. D. Putnam of New York, has been indicted for murder in the first degree.

ON the 2d, several towns and cities of Massachusetts voted on the question of permitting the sale of cider and malt liquors the ensuing year. Worcester, Springfield, Lynn and Lawrence voted yes; Salem, Somerville, Chelsea, Cambridge and New Bedford voted nay. In Lawrence, Ward One, the vote for councilman was Gilbert [democratic], 178; Colburn [republican], 153. The vote for prohibition in that ward was: No, 179; yes, 152. Democratic majority, 25; prohibition majority, 27.

IN Angelos county, California, near Tahashahie, seven men died recently from eating jerked beef, which had been poisoned and was left on the line for them to take.

—Since the editor of the Montgomery Mail bit off a man's ear in a sanctum fight, the circulation of his paper has wonderfully increased.

—A Bureau school-ma'am in Georgia thrashed one of her pupils, a colored boy of eighty, for holding his book bottom up, and his grandchildren looked on and applauded.

MANY of the northern democratic papers now deny the accuracy of the reported speech of Jeff. Davis at Selma. They say that it was reported by a "radical," who made it as obnoxious as possible. But the denial comes from the wrong sources, and too late. Davis has not denied it, and too many of the democratic papers in the South have already approved it to leave any doubt as to the temper of the southern wing of that party regarding the issues of the war.

THE democratic State Convention of Missouri, it is said, will probably make up a platform "of resolutions in accordance with the principles set forth in the address of the National Executive Committee." In common with every one else, we shall be glad to find out what those "principles" are, for we could not detect any at all in the document.

HENRY Clay Dean, typical Democratic stump orator, has not been heard from within a year or two, outside of Iowa, but there he continues to stir up strife. Having meddled in some local railroad question at Bloomfield, he has been threatened with a shower of condemned eggs by the Ku-Klux of the neighborhood, and the press of the State are busily discussing the question whether Dean or the eggs will get the worst of it.

THE following appeal to the Republican party to reward two of its most powerful assistants, we think rates their services none too high, as there is no question that they are great aids to the party:

There are two men to whom the Republican party is especially indebted. One is that old blatherskite and humbug, Jefferson Davis. Having held his tongue as long as he was in any danger of punishment, he came out at Selma, Alabama, and made a speech in which he proclaimed his willingness to fight over again the battles he had lost in the rebellion. This speech is a godsend to the Republicans, and they ought to find some means of rewarding Davis for the service he has rendered them.

Another man to whom the Republican party is indebted is Frank Blair of Missouri. Frank is a good-natured fellow and does not mean any great harm to anybody; but his tongue is powerful and always swift. He wants to fight over the battles of reconstruction, and whenever he gets a chance he drags them out again and holds them up like a Raw Head and Bloody Bones, for peaceable people to be frightened at. All Democrats are not fools, we hope; but some of them are, and so loud in their folly that people in general are convinced that it belongs to the whole party. We trust the Republicans will not be ungrateful, and that they will at an early day present suitable testimonials to Jeff. Davis and Frank Blair.

—The clerk of an old Scotch merchant brought to his employer, at the end of the year, his balance sheet, showing a profit of an amount altogether too large for the business. The Scotchman ran his eye over the figures, detected the blunder, and shouted, "Why, ye scoundrel, ye've added up the year of our Lord among the pounds."

This shows us exactly how the Patriot figures up a Democratic gain in Connecticut. Their arithmetic man added the year of the Lord with the column of votes. The gain is 1,774, which is the exact year they are living in. The rest of us, of course, live in 1871.—Washington Chronicle.

CATCHING A TRAIN.—The editor of the Fairfield County (Conn.) Democrat gives his experience in catching a moving train as follows:—

We started for the train, and the train started. If we did not catch the train we would certainly be left, so we concluded we would catch the train or lose a leg—and we did. Take warning—we caught the train, yet we were left; furnished two surgeons a little practice, lived on light diet for ten days, and felt satisfied to wait for the next train rather than to be in a hurry and lose another leg. We feel contented and paddle along with crutches, and conclude we have paid well for the lesson. Never attempt to get upon or in front of a moving train.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Preventive Medication.

A radical change has been introduced in the practice of medicine. Physicians have ceased to torture and prostrate their patients. Instead of pulling down, they build up; instead of assanilting nature, they assist her. Cupping, leeching, blistering, venesection, calomel, antimony, stupifying narcotics and rasping purgatives, once the favorite resources of the faculty, are now rarely resorted to even by the most dogmatic members of the profession. The old creed was that disease was something which must be expelled by violent artificial means, irrespective of the wear and tear of the vital organization in the process. The new creed recognises the improvement of the general health as essential to the cure of all local ailments. Hence it is that HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS, the most potent vegetable tonic that pharmacy has ever brought to the assistance of nature in her struggles with disease, has been cordially approved by practitioners of the modern school. It is pleasant to reflect that reason and philosophy have at last been victorious over the errors of the past, and that thousands and tens of thousands, of human beings are alive and well to-day who would indubitably be mouldering in their graves, had they been subjected to the pains and penalties which were deemed orthodox and indispensable thirty or forty years ago.

Preventive medication was scarcely thought of then; but now it is considered of paramount importance, and the celebrity of the standard invigorant, alterative and restorative of the age, (a title which Hostetter's Bitters have fairly earned by their long career of success,) is mainly due to its efficacy as a protective preparation.

A course of the Bitters is urgently recommended as a safe and certain antidote to intermittent and remittent fevers, diarrhœa, dysentery and other maladies.

OLIVER Ditson & Co. hav eissued The Pestalozzian Music-Teacher; or, Class Instructor in Elementary Music, on the analytic or inductive system:—By Dr. Lowell Mason and Prof. Theodore Seward. The book also contains illustrative lessons on form, number and arithmetic, language and grammar, psychology, and other school topics, by John W. Dickinson, Principal of the State Normal School, Westfield, Mass.

The Inductive or Analytic Method was first brought prominently to notice about a hundred years since, in Switzerland, by Pestalozzi. He applied it to all branches of education; but by his talented students, Nageli, Schneider, and others, it was soon made use of in Music-teaching.

Dr. Mason introduced it into America, and for nearly forty years it has been in very general use among instructors in music. Price $2. For sale by D. H. Montgomery.

Consumption,

ITS CURE AND ITS PREVENTIVE,

By J. H. SCHENCK, M. D.

Many a human being has passed away, for whose death there was no other reason than the neglect of known and indisputably proved means of cure. Those near and dear to family and friends are sleeping the dreamless slumber into which, had they calmly adopted and availed themselves of his wonderfully efficacious medicines, they would not have fallen.

Dr. JOSEPH H. SCHENCK'S SIMPLE TREATMENT,

Dr. Schenck has in his own case proven that wherever sufficient vitality remains, that vitality, by his medicines and his directions for their use, is quickened into healthful vigor.

In this statement there is nothing presumptuous. To the faith of the invalid is made no representation that is not a thousand times substantiated by living and visible works. The theory of the cure by Dr. Schenck's medicines is as definite as it is unfailing. Its philosophy requires no argument. It is self assuring, self-convincing.

The Seaweed Tonic and Mandrake Pills are the first two weapons with which the citadel of the malady is assailed. Together, they prevent consumption originated in dyspepsia and a functionally disordered liver. With this condition the bronchial tubes "sympathize" with the stomach. They respond to the morbific action of the liver. Here, then comes the culminating result, and the setting in, with all its distressing symptoms, of

CONSUMPTION.

The Mandrake Pills are composed of one of Nature's noblest gifts—the Podophillum Peltatum. They possess all the blood-searching, alterative properties of calomel, but unlike calomel, they

"LEAVE NO STING BEHIND."

The work of cure is now beginning. The vitiated and mucous deposits in the bowels and in the alimentary canal are ejected. The liver, like a clock, is wound up. It arouses from its torpidity. The stomach acts responsively, and the patient begins to feel that he is getting, at last,

A SUPPLY OF GOOD BLOOD.

The Seaweed Tonic, in conjunction with the Pills, permeates and assimilates with the food. Chylification is now progressing, without its previous tortures. Digestion becomes painless, and the cure is seen to be at hand. There is no more flatulence, no exacerbation of the stomach. An appetite sets in.

Now comes the greatest Blood Purifier ever yet given by an indulgent father to suffering man. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup comes in to perform its functions and to hasten and complete the cure. It enters at once upon its work. Nature cannot be cheated. It collects and ripens the impaired and diseased portions of the lungs. In the form of gatherings it prepares them for expectoration, and, lo! in a very short time the malady is vanquished, the rotten throne that it occupied is renovated and made new, and the patient, in all the dignity of regained vigor, steps forth to enjoy the manhood or womanhood that was

GIVEN UP AS LOST.

The second thing is, the patients must stay in a warm room, until they get well; it is almost impossible to prevent taking cold when the lungs are diseased, but it must be prevented or a cure cannot be effected. Fresh air and riding out, especially in this section of the country in the fall and winter season, are all wrong. Physicians who recommend that course lose their patients, if their lungs are badly diseased; and yet, because they are in the house they must not sit down quiet; they must walk about the room as much and as fast as the strength will bear, to get up a good circulation of blood. The patients must keep in good spirits—be determined to get well. This has a great deal to do with the appetite, and is the great point to gain.

To despair of cure after such evidence of its possibility in the worst cases, and moral certainty in all others, is sinful. Dr. Schenck's personal statement to the Faculty of his own cure was in these modest words:

"Many years ago I was in the last stages of consumption! confined to my bed, and at one time my physicians thought that I could not live a week; then like a drowning man catching at straws, I heard of, and obtained the preparations which I now offer to the public, and they made a perfect cure of me. It seemed to me that I could feel them penetrate my whole system. They soon ripened the matter in my lungs, and I would spit up more than a pint of offensive yellow matter every morning for a long time. As soon as that began to subside, my cough, fever, pains and night sweats all began to leave me, and my appetite became so great that it was with difficulty that I could keep from eating too much. I soon gained my strength, and have gone on flesh ever since."

"I was weighed shortly after my recovery," added the Doctor, "then looking like a mere skeleton; my weight was only ninety-seven pounds; my present weight is two hundred and twenty-five (225) pounds, and for years I have enjoyed uninterrupted health."

Dr. Schenck has discontinued his professional visits to New York and Boston. He or his son, Dr. J. H. Schenck, Jr., still continue to see patients at their office, No. 15 North Sixth street, Philadelphia, every Saturday from 9 A. M. to 3 P. M. Those who wish a thorough examination with the Respirometer will be charged $5. The Respirometer declares the exact condition of the lungs, and patients can readily learn whether they are curable or not.

The directions for taking the medicines are adapted to the intelligence even of a child. Follow these directions, and kind Nature will do the rest, excepting that in some cases the Mandrake Pills are to be taken in increased doses; the three medicines need no other accompaniments than the simple instructions that accompany them: First, create appetite. Of returning health hunger is the most welcome symptom. When it comes, as it will come, let the despairing at once be of good cheer. Good blood at once follows, the cough loosens, night sweat is abated. In a short time both of these morbid symptoms are gone forever.

Dr. Schenck's medicines are constantly kept in tens of thousands of families. As a laxative or purgative, the Mandrake Pills are a standard preparation: while the Pulmonic Syrup, as a cure of coughs and colds, may be regarded as a prophylacteric against consumption in any of its forms.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Seaweed Tonic $1.50, a bottle, or $7.50 a half dozen. Mandrake Pills, 25 cents a box. For sale by all druggists and dealers.

7-30 GOLD LOAN

—OF THE—

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

RAPID PROGRESS OF THE WORK.

The building of the Northern Pacific Railroad, (begun July last,) is being pushed forward with great energy from both extremities of the line. Several thousand men are employed in Minnesota and on the Pacific coast. The grade is nearly completed 266 miles westward from Lake Superior; trains are running over 130 miles of finished road, and track-laying is rapidly progressing toward the eastern border of Dakota. Including its purchase of the St. Paul & Pacific Road, the Northern Pacific Company now has 413 miles of completed road, and by September next this will be increased to at least 500.

A GOOD INVESTMENT.—Jay Cooke & Co. are now selling and unhesitatingly recommend as a Profitable and perfectly Safe investment, the First Mortgage Land Grant Gold Bonds of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. They have 30 years to run, bear Seven and Three-Tenths per cent. gold interest (more than 8 per cent. currency) and are secured by first and only mortgage on the ENTIRE ROAD AND ITS EQUIPMENTS and also, as fast as the Road is completed, on

23,000 ACRES OF LAND to every mile of track, or 500 Acres for each $1,00 Bond. They are exempt from U. S. TAX; Principal and Interest are payable in Gold; Denominations; Coupons, $100 to $1,000; Registered, $100 to $10,000.

LANDS FOR BONDS.—Northern Pacific 7-30's are at all times receivable at PAR PER CENT. ABOVE PAR, in exchange for the Company's Lands, at their lowest cash price. This renders them practically INTEREST BEARING LAND WARRANTS.

SINKING FUNDS.—The proceeds of all sales of Lands are required to be devoted to the re-purchase and cancellation of the First Mortgage Bonds of the Company. The Land Grant of the Road exceeds Fifty Million Acres. This immense Sinking Fund will undoubtedly cancel the principal of the Company's bonded debt before it falls due. With their ample security and high rate of interest, there is no investment, accessible to the public, which is more REMARKABLE OR SAFE.

EXCHANGING U. S. FIVE-TWENTIES.—The success of the New Government 5 per cent. Loan will compel the early surrender of United States Five-Twenties. Many holders of Five-Twenties are now exchanging them for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties, thus realizing a handsome profit and greatly increasing their yearly income.

OTHER SECURITIES.—All marketable Stocks and Bonds will be received at their highest current prices in exchange for Northern Pacific Seven-Thirties. EXPRESS CHARGES on Money or Bonds received and on Seven-Thirties sent in return, will be paid by the Financial Agents. Full information, maps, pamphlets, etc., can be obtained on application at any agency, or from the undersigned. For sale by

FIRST MORTGAGE

7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS,

ON A COMPLETED ROAD,

FREE OF U. S. TAX,

At 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.

Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Railway.

The completion of this Road has given to these Bonds an established character equal to any mortgage issue dealt in at the Stock Exchange. We are prepared to buy and sell them at any time, at our Banking House, at market price—thus placing them on the same basis; for temporary or permanent investment, with Governments or any other security.

These bonds are a first and only mortgage on a railroad that has cost double the amount of the issue, and which commands, without competition, all the traffic of Northern Iowa and Southern Minnesota—shortening the distance from St. Paul to Chicago 45 miles, and to St. Louis more than 90 miles.

The net earnings are already largely in excess of interest on the bonds, and no doubt exists that they will more than double within the ensuing year.

A contract has been secured with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad Company obligating the latter to invest 50 per cent. of gross earnings derived from traffic with this road, on Cedar Rapids and Minnesota Road in the bonds of this Company. This arrangement is a strong guarantee of the Bonds, and establishes a large sinking fund for their redemption.

The convertibility privilege in these bonds enables them to be exchanged for stock, at par, at any time. This secures to the holder, at his option, a share in any excess of earnings over the interest obligation.

An exchange of Government securities for these bonds returns 9½ per cent. interest, instead of 5 per cent., which is all that Governments pay at present price, besides leaving an immediate gain of about 20 per cent. in price for re-investment.

All marketable Securities taken in exchange free of Commission and Express charges. f24WaS

PRACTICAL APPLICATION OF HAMLET'S SOLILOQUY.

To insure or not to insure? That is the question.
Whether 'twill be nobler for my family to suffer
The stings and arrows of outrageous fortune
Or take a policy against those dangers,
And, by insuring, end them? To fret, to fear,
No more; and by a policy to end
The heartache and the thousand natural shocks
That flesh is heir to. Yes, my application's
Devoutly to be wished; apply, insure.
And pay the premium: ay—there's the rub
For in that time what premiums may come
Before I shuffle off this mortal coil.
Does make me pause, tightens my purse,
And makes me rather pay the bills I have
Than fly to others I know not of.
Thus does meanness make brutes of us all.

Morning Chronicle.

THE BLEEDING GIRL OF HAINAULT. Dr. Day, an eminent English physician, has just published in MacMillan's Magazine an account of a new wonder that turned up in Hainault, Belgium, the same being a girl named Louise Lateau. A summary of the case may well stagger the most incredulous. In 1868, at the age of seventeen, Louise fell into ill health. For a month she seemed on the verge of the grave. At this juncture began her extraordinary performances. One Friday morning a slender rivulet of blood began to trickle from her left side. After a while it ceased, but on the next Friday blood oozed from the upper surface of her feet. On the third Friday it came simultaneously from side, feet and hands. A few months after blood came also from her head; and now, by the latest accounts, "she presents every Friday—and on Fridays only—an awful sort of image of the bleeding form of Christ on the cross." Cataleptic symptoms accompany this exhibition.—The young woman goes at 8 o'clock in the morning into a species of trance. In this, she says, she beholds in vision the scene of the Passion. Tears roll down her cheeks, but now and then she smiles in ecstacy. She is insensible to all outward sights or sounds, and remains unmoved by even very strong electric shocks. Until 5 in the day she remains in coma, blood appearing constantly as described. She then leaps up with a bound, falls into a cold sweat, has a rattle in her throat and an imperceptible pulse, and she recovers in about fifteen minutes, and then remains in her usual state until the following Friday.

When news began to spread of this strange affair, crowds of people naturally began to flock to witness it. The Roman Catholic clergy of the neighborhood, at once, we are assured, called in able physicians. One of these, Dr. Lefebore, has given great attention to the case, and has printed a monograph of it. This gentleman has been for two years at the head of the medical staff of two lunatic asylums, and is likewise a Professor in Louvain University. His report is examined at length by Dr. Day, and the letter has received a note from Dr. Lefebore, stating that, as lately as the middle of January, the condition of Louise Lateau remained unchanged. His experiments have been numerous and interesting. He scrutinized the places from which the blood exuded with a microscope, and found that on these places the epidermis is very thin so that the true skin can be seen through it. When the bleeding is going to begin, a little bladder appears on the spot, filled with a transparent reddish fluid. A rent presently takes place in the cuticle, the serus fluid escapes, and the blood begins to ooze from the surface of the exposed papillæ within. The quantity of blood often amounts to nearly a quart. Pending its flow the doctor repeatedly tickled Louise's nose with a feather, made her smell ammonia, pricked her with a needle, and passed a strong electro-magnetic current along her arm. All this the girl invariably bore without the least sign of uneasiness or even of feeling. Dr. Lefebore carefully wrapped her hands in strong, well-stitched leather gloves, drew them tightly at the wrist, sealed the strings, and then watched the result. This was, simply, that the gloves, when taken off were filled with blood. In brief, this physician and others feel totally unable, however awkward may be any different assumption, to declare that the girl is consciously an imposter.

COPPER IN THE COLORING OF A BIRD'S WING.—The turaco or plantain-eater of the Cape of Good Hope is noted for the beauty of its plumage, and especially for the rich red upon its wings. This red coloring matter has been analyzed, and found to contain nearly six per cent of copper, which cannot be detected by the ordinary tests, nor removed from the red compound without destroying it. This coloring matter is in fact a natural organic compound, of which copper is an essential constituent. The name turacine has been given to this substance. Traces of copper had previously been found in animals, as in oysters, which, living in streams of water flowing from the neighborhood of copper mines, had assimilated certain salts of that metal. The copper apparently had no effect upon the health of the oyster, though it did upon the health of people who ate the bivalve.

But in this case, as in all others of the kind heretofore observed, the presence of the copper was clearly accidental; while in the turaco the metal is a normal part of the coloring-matter of the bird's plumage. Of course it must be present in minute quantities with the food, and stored up in this singular way in the system of the animal. In the every same feather, partly red and partly black, the copper is found in the red parts, but not at all, or the merest trace, in the black. If a few fibres from the red part be burned, the spectrum of copper is readily detected in the flame.

It is curious fact this red in the wing of the turaco is not a fast color. A pair of fine birds which were kept in captivity washed it all out of their plumage in a few days by bathing in the water which was left them to drink, the turacine being soluble in water. Except for the loss of their beauty, the birds did not appear to be any the worse for the change. It would seem, therefore, that we have here an instance of the elaboration of a chemical substance perfectly unique in its nature and containing a metal whose salts are usually regarded as poisonous to animals: and yet the sole purpose which, so far as we know, it serves in the animal economy, is one of pure decoration. How will those who take an exclusive-ly utilitarian view of the plan of creation explain this?—Journal of Chemistry.

THRILLING BALLOON ADVENTURE.—The balloon ascension by Professor Torrey, of Grady's circus, was a very exciting affair, and came near proving a terrible disaster. The balloon was inflated with hot air by means of a furnace set in the ground, the chimney or tube for insertion in the mouth of the balloon being a section of steam boiler. Just as the rising balloon cleared the tube the flame flashed fiercely and set fire to it. The ropes were let go when the immense canvas globe, inflated with heated air, rose rapidly upward, the daring aeronaut clinging to a trapeze suspended from beneath with ropes, and performing a number of graceful feats as the air ship soared aloft, and was borne along by the wind, which was blowing almost a gale at the time. Meantime the fire, which had been communicated to the lower portion of the balloon at starting, continued to blaze around the edges, but the professor, apparently oblivious to the dangerous position in which he was placed, kept up his daring feats on the trapeze, hanging alternately by one foot or one hand, and performing sundry graceful evolutions while carried along at an elevation of about one thousand feet from the earth.

The balloon was borne eastward for some distance by the current, when the heated air having cooled it commenced a rapid descent, landing on the commons east of the hydraulic, near Gary's flax mill, about half a mile from the starting point. While approaching the earth with considerable force, the balloon came in contact with a willow tree, when the professor, releasing his hold of the trapeze, took refuge in the branches, and broke his fall by seizing hold of a limb, which gave way and he came to the ground, ending his perilous journey without serious injury, though his ankle was slightly sprained by the concussion. The ascension was witnessed by hundreds of people, who were thrilled with the spectacle of the daring aeronaut dangling in the air, and performing astonishing acrobatic feats while the flames threatened to consume the frail bark which bore him along. It was, altogether, the most exciting exhibition of the kind ever witnessed here. The balloon was dragged for a distance after the professor landed, and was gathered up considerably damaged by fire, and torn by coming in contact with a tree in its descent. —Dayton Journal.

A Book for Everybody.

Flattered by the reception of, and great demand for, the above valuable and timely treatises, and also to meet a great need of the present age, the author has just published a new book, treating exclusively of NERVOUS AND MENTAL DISEASES. 150 pp. cloth. Price $1, or SENT FREE on receipt of $3 for the other two books, specified above.

These are, beyond all comparison, the most extraordinary works on Physiology ever published. They show the Married or the Married or Single, of Either Sex, can either require or wish to know, but what is fully explained, and many matters of the most important character, having character are introduced to which no allusion EVER HAS been found in any other works in our language. All the New Discoveries of the author, whose experience is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any man, are given in full. No person should be without these valuable books.

"VALUABLE BOOKS.—We have received the valuable medical works published by the Peabody Medical Institute. These books are of actual merit, and should find a place in every intelligent family. They are not the cheap order of abominable trash, published by irresponsible parties, and purchased to gratify coarse tastes, but are written by a responsible professional gentleman of eminence, as a source of instruction on vital matters, concerning which lamentable ignorance exists. The important subjects presented are treated with delicacy, ability and care, and, as an appendix, many useful prescriptions for prevailing complaints are added."—Cass Republican, Lancaster, N. H.

"The author of these books is one of the most learned and popular physicians of this country, and is entitled to the gratitude of our race for these invaluable productions. It seems to be his aim to induce men and women to avoid the cause of those diseases to which they are subject, and he tells them just how and when to do it."—Chronicle, Farmington, Maine, Sept. 7, 1869.

Either book sent by mail on receipt of price.

N. B. The Author of the above-named medical works is the Chief Consulting Physician of the Peabody Medical Institute, and is so constantly employed in consultation with invalids from all parts of the country, that he has no time to attend to mere business details. Therefore all letters should be addressed to the PEABODY MEDICAL INSTITUTE, or to Dr. W. H. PARKER, the Medical Assistant of the Author, and his Business Agent, who, as well as the Author himself, may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill, secrecy and experience. oc26tyr

For Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Bilious Affections, Sick or Nervous Headache, Costiveness, etc. Purely Vegetable, containing no, Mercury, Minerals or Deleterious Drugs.

H

These Pills are a pleasant purgative, superseding castor oil, salts, magnesia, etc. There is nothing more acceptable to the stomach. They give tone and cause neither nausea nor griping pains. They are composed of the finest ingredients. After a few days' use of them, such an invigoration of the entire system takes place as to appear miraculous to the weak and enervated. H. T. Helmbold's Compound Fluid Extract Catawba Grape Pills are not sugar-coated; sugar-coated Pills pass through the stomach without dissolving; consequently do not produce the desired effect. The CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, being pleasant in taste and odor, do not necessitate their being sugar-coated, and are prepared according to rules of Pharmacy and Chemistry, and are not Patent Medicines.

L

Being prepared expressly for the above Complaints, its blood-purifying properties are greater than other preparations of Sarsaparilla. It gives the complexion a clear and healthy color and restores the patient to a state of Health and Purity. For purifying the blood, removing all chronic constitutional diseases arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual known remedy for the cure of pains and swelling of the bones, ulcerations of the throat and legs, Blotches, Pimples on the Face, Erysipelas and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin, and Beautifying the Complexion.

M

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S
CONCENTRATED
FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,
THE GREAT DIURETIC,

has cured every case of Diabetes in which it has been given, Irritation of the Neck of the Bladder and Inflammation of the Kidneys, Ulceration of the Kidneys and Bladder, Retention of Urine, Diseases of Prostate Gland, Stone in the Bladder, Calculus, Gravel, Brick-Dust Deposit and Mucous or Milky Discharges, Weak, Debilitated and Delicate Constitutions of both sexes, attended with the following symptoms, Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Power, Loss of Memory, Difficulty of Breathing, Weak Nerves, Trembling, Horror of Disease, Wakefulness, Dimness of Vision, Pain in the Back, Hot Hands, Flushing of the Body, Dryness of the Skin, Eruption on the Face, Pallid Countenance, Universal Lassitude of the Muscular System, etc.

Used by persons from the ages of eighteen to twenty-five, and from thirty-five to fifty-five or in the decline or change of life; after confinement or labor pains; bed-wetting in children.

B

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is diuretic and blood-purifying, and cures all diseases arising from Habits of Dissipation, and Excesses and Indiscretions in Life, Impurities of the Blood, and superseding Copaiba in Affections for which it is used, and Syphilitic Affections—in those Diseases used in connection with HELMBOLD'S Rose Wash.

LADIES.

In many affections peculiar to Ladies, the Extract Buchu is unequalled by any other remedy—as in Chlorosis or Retention, Irregularity, Painfulness or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrus State of the Uterus, Leucorrhœa or Whites, Sterility, and for all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from Indiscretion or Habits of Dissipation. O

H. T. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU CURES DISEASES ARISING FROM IMPRUDENCES, HABITS OF DISSIPATION, &c., in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience, and no exposure. It causes a frequent desire, and gives strength to Urinate, thereby removing Obstructions, Preventing and Curing Strictures of the Urethra, Allaying Pain and Inflammation, so frequent in this class of diseases, and expelling all Poisonous matter.

L

HENRY T. HELMBOLD'S IMPROVED
ROSE WASH

cannot be surpassed as a FACE WASH, and will be found the only specific remedy in every species of Cutaneous Affection. It speedily eradicates Pimples, Spots, Redness, and Irritation of the Cutaneous Membrane, etc., dispels Redness and Incipient Inflammation, Hives, Rash, Moth Patches, Dryness of Scaly or Skin Eruptions, and all Impurities of the Skin. Ointments are used; restores the skin to a state of purity and softness, and insures continued healthy action to the tissue of the vessels, on which depends the agreeable clearness and vivacity of complexion so much sought and admired. But however valuable as a remedy for existing defects of the skin. H. T. Helmbold's Rose Wash has long sustained its principal claim to unbounded patronage, by possessing qualities which render it a Toilet Appendage of the most Superlative and Congenial character, combining in an elegant formula those prominent requisites, Safety and Efficacy—the invariable accompaniments of its use—as a Preservative and Refresher of the Complexion. It is an excellent Lotion for diseases of a Syphilitic Nature, and as an Injection for Diseases of the Urinary Organs, arising from habits of dissipation, used in connection with the EXTRACT BUCHU, SARSAPARILLA AND CATAWBA GRAPE PILLS, in such diseases, as recommended, cannot be surpassed.

From Our Magazine.

"LEE AT GETTYSBURG."

BY GEN. KILPATRICK.

In the April number of the Galaxy an article appeared, entitled "Lee at Gettysburg," written by Gen. Imboden of the late Confederate army, which, on account of its source, has attracted much attention, especially among military men. During the war the writer found time to take very complete notes of what transpired under his own observation, of the various army movements in which he participated, and of the men who played leading parts in the great drama of the rebellion.

After reading Gen. Imboden's article in the Galaxy, I was so struck with its manifest injustice to our cavalry, to say nothing of the false impression it is calculated to give of the real cause of Lee's great disaster at Gettysburg, that I determined to give to the public some recollections of that important and decisive campaign; and in doing so I beg leave to say to the readers of Our Magazine, that in simple justice I have a right to speak for the old Third Cavalry Division, who fought the first battle and won the first victory on the free soil of the North, at Hanover, Pa., and struck Lee's shattered army the last blow at Williamsport and Falling Waters as it fled, wrecked and ruined, across the Potomac, over which it had so proudly marched a short two weeks before.

Gen. Imboden of course writes about what he remembers of that campaign, and boldly draws conclusions without taking into consideration any of the many great difficulties which the Union cavalry met and overcome in the sixteen days of battles and marches from Aldie to Hanover, and from Hanover to Falling Waters.

The opinion long prevailed, and even now is widely entertained, that the battle fields of the rebellion were never fair tests of the relative daring, ability, energy and fortitude of the respective combatants—that the rebel armies were defeated by numbers alone, and that brute force, and not true bravery, crushed the Southern cause. There never was a greater mistake; there never was more injustice done a gallant people; and since Confederate generals have laid aside the sword from necessity, and have taken up the pen, it is proper that these erroneous impressions should be subjected to the test of actual historical facts. Certainly it cannot be claimed that in the Gettysburg campaign the preponderance of numbers was on the side of the Union army.

Since the death of the Confederate chief, General Lee, his friends have spared no pains to immortalize his name, and convince the world that he was a great general. With this object in view, General Imboden, no doubt, wrote his article for the Galaxy; and while I would not detract a feather's weight from the just fame of any soldier, Federal or Confederate, yet I submit to General Imboden that it would have been better for his purpose, and added more to the fame of Lee, if he had written his recollections of some one of Lee's defensive battles or campaigns, in which alone he was great. General Lee was unfortunate in all his great advance movements, and always met with disaster whenever he essayed offensive battle. In '62, after McClellan's retreat before Richmond, Lee quickly started northward, thinking to crush Pope and McDowell before McClellan's troops could be brought up from the Peninsula. Jackson had already fought the battle of Cedar Mountain and returned across the Rapidan, when Lee joined him, and rapidly advancing northward, under cover of lofty mountain ranges, through our carelessness, ignorance, or utter indifference, was enabled to debouch through Thoroughfare and Ashby's Gaps, and get into position on the hills beyond, before Generals Pope and McDowell were ready to meet him; and yet he preferred to receive rather than give battle. Winning the fight next day, almost without a struggle, he quickly moved on, crossed the Potomac, and, just beyond, gave battle; and although his army was fresh from recent victories, he was defeated in two engagements and driven with heavy loss back across the Potomac by the rallied fragments of the Army of the Potomac led by McClellan. And his last grand offensive campaign, culminating in disaster and ruin to his army and the Confederacy at Gettysburg, even convinced him, if it did not his historians, that he could not plan and successfully carry out an offensive campaign.

Gettysburg was the direct result of Chancellorsville, although it is not generally so understood. Hooker's disastrous retreat, with a vastly superior force, from his own chosen position at Chancellorsville, inspired Lee with contempt for Hooker and our army, and led him to believe that the Army of the Potomac would be but a slight obstacle to a march upon Washington, Baltimore, and possibly the cities further North. In fact Lee contemplated just such a march through the North as Sherman afterwards made through Georgia and the Carolinas; and there can be no doubt that he intended to

A GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

VINEGAR BITTERS.

Hundreds of Thousands Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

WHAT ARE THEY!

THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Root and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER, and a LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to direction and remain long unwell, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the stomach and stimulate the torpid liver and bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins, cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. For full directions, read carefully the circular around each bottle, printed in four languages—English, German, French and Spanish.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal. Send for a circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs. 1yrdawk8t6
